Ace, none of my radios, even the Eton E1, would pick up 9740 tonight, so I listened to Big Ben strike in the new year on the Internet.
Happy New Year and many thanks for all you do for the DX/SWL hobby.

What's funny is, in the 1970s people would talk about how the golden age of shortwave was over precisely BECAUSE the bands were so crowded with weird, cold war political broadcasts and cultural programming. My guess is that shortwave will be lingering on its deathbed long after your grandchildren (if you have any) have left this world, though the diagnosis will probably change three or four more times in the interim.

Most of the best SW listening nowadays isn't in the form of broadcasts but rather the many "utilities" you hear on SSB. That's where I'd be looking now if hamming weren't taking up all my time.

Ever consider getting your ham license and learning CW? CW is really where the fun is!

I tried the wooden tube radios some years ago, but found that the filaments kept setting their little cellulose based enclosures on fire.
Glass just plain works better.

I'm a stone's throw from Singapore, and generally can hear anything coming from there (or thereabouts) like a local MW station. There was no sign whatsoever of anything on 9740 here. :(

Band allocations and time zone conversions for the USA. Includes broadcast bands used outside the USA. For multi-use bands, primary usage is shown.
Some stations operate outside official bands. Information is from Oct 2008
FCC rules and Sep 2009 NTIA manual, see Chapter 4 of:
http://www.ntia.doc.gov/osmhome/redbook/redbook.html

Frequencies are in kHz. Usual spacing in shortwave broadcast bands is 5 kHz. Frequencies above 10000 kHz tend to propagate better during the day;
frequencies below 10000 kHz tend to propagate better at night.

Phone line as SW antenna

Changes preceded by "|".

WARNINGS AND DISCLAIMERS

Connecting unapproved devices to phone lines may be illegal in your area.
Telephone lines present a potential shock hazard. Do not use this antenna for transmitting. Use at your own risk.

INTRODUCTION

This article describes how to use a phone line as a shortwave receiving antenna. Performance will vary depending on the kind of phone line you have. Overhead lines usually make okay antennas, while underground lines | usually don't. Phone lines carrying DSL service may be unsuitable because | DSL operates over a wide spectrum. A phone line antenna will generally pick up more power line noise than a dedicated antenna, so don't expect to | use it for DX work. Nevertheless, I found that it outperformed the
| telescopic whip antennas built into many portables.

A reader sent in this suggestion: If you're concerned about connecting the phone line directly to the receiver, try wrapping the phone cord several times around the receiver's telescopic whip antenna instead.
Performance may not be as good as a direct connection, but it will probably be better than the whip antenna by itself.

Someone else wrote asking about lightning protection. I haven't thought much about it because thunderstorms are rare in my area. Most phone lines have lightning arrestors on them where they enter the house, but the lightning arrestors may pass enough energy during a lightning strike damage a receiver. My suggestion is to disconnect the antenna when not in use if you experience frequent thunderstorms.

HOW TO DO IT

The simplest connection is a single capacitor between the phone line and receiver. The capacitor eliminates all phone line voltages, including | ringing, so that they will not harm the receiver. The capacitor should
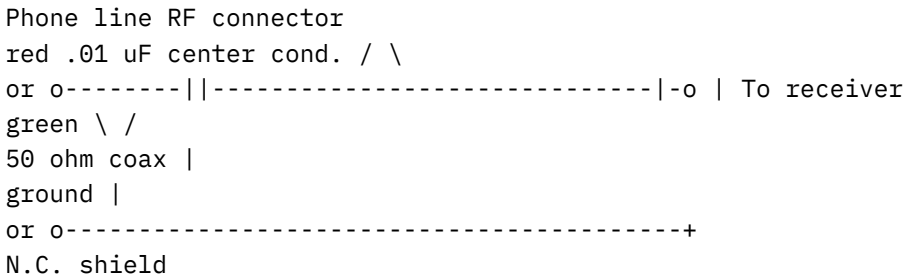
| be rated 250 volts or higher.



N.C. = no connect. I originally connected the phone line ground (yellow wire) to this terminal, but reception was better without it (if you do this, play it safe and put a .01 uF capacitor in series). If another ground is available, you can connect it to this terminal.

If you are picking up local AM or FM radio stations on the shortwave bands, it is likely that your receiver is overloaded. Inexpensive and portable receivers usually lack the filtering needed to eliminate this interference, but you can make your own filters. Filters can also be

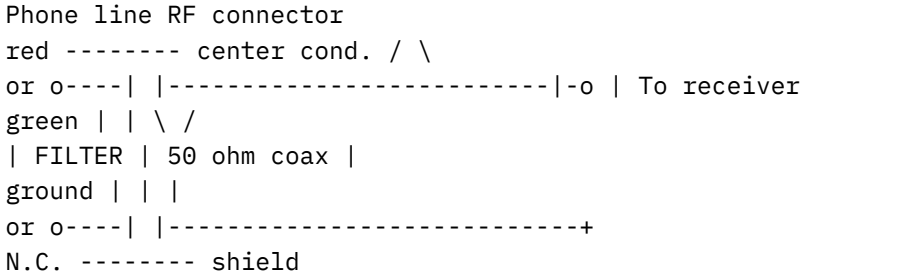
A high-pass filter can be used to remove signals below the shortwave bands. It rejects interference from local AM stations and presents a high impedance to the phone line at audio frequencies so that the phone line remains balanced.

A low-pass filter can be used to remove signals above the shortwave bands. It rejects interference from FM and TV stations, as well as VHF 2-way radio transmitters. If you use both filters, connect the output of the first filter to the input of the second (don't forget to connect their ground terminals together). It doesn't matter which filter is connected first.

These filters also work well with random wire antennas. Just connect the antenna in place of the phone line.

The filter(s) should be connected to the phone line in this manner:



| RECOMMENDED FILTERS
| If you don't want to make your own filters, the following have good | performance, are well-built and affordable:
| Model 400 BCB interference filter (3.5 MHz highpass)
| http://www.iceradioproducts.com/filtersrf.html#bcb

| Model 420 HF lowpass filter (30 MHz lowpass)
| http://www.iceradioproducts.com/filtersrf.html#3
| (scroll down a bit to see the model 420)
| If you have a random-wire antenna, the following unit will provide | impedance matching and lightning protection (connect antenna to 450-ohm | terminal):
| Model 182A beverage matching unit

FILTER PLANS

The original credit for the high-pass and low-pass filters goes to Paul Blumstein and John Shalamskas, respectively. Edited versions of their articles are included here:

Date: 09 Jan 91 00:54:08 GMT
From: paulb@harley.TTI.COM (Paul Blumstein)
Subject: BC Band Hi-Pass Filter

The following ascii-schematic diagram is a high pass filter that will filter out Broadcast Band (MW) stations. I found it a great boon to my shortwave listening since local MW stations overload my ATS-803A front end & appear in SW, especially with a long antenna.

If you remember my antenna saga, I went from 50 feet to 150 feet & had overload problems causing me to cut back to 50 feet. (Even at 50 feet, I still have some MW interference). I took the advice of Gary Coffman and looked up filters in the ARRL Handbook. With the filter in place, I intend to try to increase my antenna length again.

Anywho, here is the filter, for interested parties.

--------||---+----||-----+----||-----------
} }
{ {
} }
-------------+-----------+-----------------

The outer capacitors are 1500 pf ceramic disks.
The inner capacitor is 820 pf ceramic disk.
The squiggly things are coils (two total). Each one is 2.7 uh.
(a close value will do).

From: bill@videovax.tv.tek.com (William K. McFadden)
Subject: Re: BC Band Hi-Pass Filter

I built the filter that Paul Blumstein posted recently and measured it on a gain-phase analyzer. Here are its characteristics:

100 kHz -120dB
500 kHz -68dB

1000 kHz -38dB
1600 kHz -15dB
2100 kHz -3dB

The source and load impedances were 50 ohms. Because the filter has five elements, the attenuation is 30dB per octave. The measurements confirmed this.

This filter seems to be a good compromise between interference attenuation and passband response. There is very little attenuation in the 120m band and above. It could use a little more attenuation at the upper end of MW, which could be done with more stages or a higher cutoff frequency. Alternatively, you could build two of these filters and put them in series. (Since two 1500pF capacitors in series are really 750pF, you could eliminate one cap.)

Just for fun, I put 470 ohms in series with the input to see how the filter performed with an antenna mismatch. The response was:

100 kHz -105dB
500 kHz -60dB
1000 kHz -35dB
1600 kHz -15dB
2300 kHz -3dB

These figures are normalized to the passband response of -15dB, which is due to the impedance mismatch between the source and load and would have been there without the filter. Hence, the filter works almost as well in spite of the mismatch, which is good news to those who use long-wire antennas.

Subject: Construction of filters for SW reception

Several people have asked for construction details of the filters I built for my DX-440.

The high-pass filter helped some, but in my location the VHF/UHF broadcasters are also causing problems. So, I dug out the ARRL handbook and chose a 7-element Chebyshev low-pass design that is -3 dB at 35 MHz, -20 dB at 43 MHz, and -50 dB at 64 MHz (all calculated; it works well in practice!)

LOW-PASS FILTER (Rejects FM, TV, etc.)

chassis ground

I had to do a little more improvising at this point. I used .33 uH instead of .36, and .66 uH instead of .42, but it works fine.

The 5-lug terminal strips were perfect for these circuits, since there are 4 lugs plus a grounded lug. All "ground" connections go to the lug that is mounted to the chassis, and the other 4 lugs are used for each of the connections on the signal line. One terminal strip is used per filter. Since both filters were necessary to clean up the hash, I am going to put them both into one box when I get the time.

There is no difference between ends. They are "bilateral" which means you can't possibly hook them up backwards. (In the above schematics, left and right ends are interchangeable.)

COIL WINDING

You can make the coils yourself using this formula:

L = 0.2 * B^2 * N^2 / (3B + 9A + 10C)

L is the inductance, in uH
A is the length of the coil, in inches
B is the mean diameter of the coil, in inches
C is the diameter of the wire, in inches
N is the number of turns

For small wire, you can assume C = 0.

The following is the personal opinion of the author, who reserves the right to republish this piece for profit, which you may read at your own risk, without any legal liabilities to the author or anyone who may publish or share this article (which must include this disclaimer) for which you here by waive the ability to sue for any reason in whole or in part in or outside of a court of law, if you do not agree, the entire article is to be considered a work of fiction, since you apparently want to live in an imaginary world.

Interesting flood of cheap books circulating around, full of socialist garbage being taught in US colleges today? Consumerism? Advertising? Warping the mentality of readers by suggesting that consumerism is advertised driven product buying manipulation processes rather than inventors creating products that people want or need and using successful advertising techniques? And that book was one of the ones that did not appear to be obviously subversive physcho babble?

But of course highly trained government operatives in the FCC will never suggest to their superiors that perhaps the suggestion that the art of "consumerism" is simply a warped idea planted by socialist or communist agents designed to sow the seeds of economic chaos? Or am I talking over the head of Professor Obama right now?

And what about those who rant about "corporatism" by pointing out the few bad apples, and ignoring discussions that could add several chapters to a book discussing the benefits and advantages of successfully run companies? No, those books only focus on such topics as "greed" and then go into rampant, incoherent discussions (its easier to fool skulls of mush) about morality by simply recycling the talking points of controversial, unprovable, and even partial psychoanalytical discussions that attempt to "discover" to the reader "new" ideas when the fact of the matter is a simple failure of a single or group of individuals and the concept of the structure of corporatism itself (and of course no details of alternatives, only negatives?)?

And of course those that demonize corporatism, and cherish media control, also fail to point out the flaws of giving the government control of both structures and the media? How do corporations get sued or stopped from unethical behavior? The media? And what happens when the media ignores government grabs of power?

And at what point are you a tax payer, when you are loosing more than a day every week lost to government taxes, and a slave to the government, is there a magic ratio? Is it two days, is it effectively

3 days? Or is it when your discretionary income evaporates?

If I am working more than over 8 hours a week for the government, I consider myself a slave, and simply ask the government to reduce its spending. There is no reason in this era of modern internet that groups can not raise money to do things on their own and not harrass the dozen or so of Congressional Staff members? 8 hours of a 40 hour week is what percent? I don't mind giving, but let me give, don't take it from me? Do I want to fill out a form everytime I need something? And why are there so many check boxes for "credits" on tax forms?

How about no more death taxes? How about prohibiting retro-active taxes? How about limiting the page length of bills? How about discussing the bills honestly? How about firing communists in the media? How about an end to "pork projects"? How about the media stop asking about the government creating jobs, and interviewing business owners non stop about how they can't create business plans by guessing what is going to happen next?

You see Speaker Pelosi, when you jet around on a Gulf Stream Jet, instead of flying commercial, you are a dream killer. Maybe it was one American's dream next year of buying a couple pairs of nice blue jeans. Maybe it was another American's dream next year to paint their house. But of course when you ride around in limos all the time, and see nothing but $5000 evening wear and Hollywood actors, perhaps you snobs have forgotten what being American is all about? Rush has gotten his wish, the Democrats have failed.

Why not outlaw health insurance, and make it health credit plans, instead? What incentive do you have to stop smoking, etc., unless you are not part of a lottery system and have to pay for it yourself? And why should the medical industry price things that we can afford when they can hide the costs by not requiring patients to be able to afford the treatments over time through credit programs? Does your credit score go up after you pay your health insurance premiums for years? Credit spurs investment in the health industry, government welfare spurs rationing?

Why not outlaw employers from recruitment practices that check the job applicant's credit history? If Sally leaves Joe, and rips him off, and Joe owes me money, I want Joe to get another job after he gets fired because of the drunken chaos he goes through in his personal life tragedy (one example of many)? Wanted: Editors that can read in society?

D = Democrats as in Dream Killers?

(really meant "rather than the concept of of the structure of corporatism itself)

by using the word "and" in that sentence I have confused myself and the audience after re-reading it, since the comparative objects in the sentence have no clarification by the misuse of the word "and" instead of "rather than".

Thinking faster than I can type? Hmmmm, not the first time, won't be the last.

You don't need to actually "learn" CW to monitor it. There are several FREE programs which decode via your computer sound card.

All amateurs are listed in various databases, complete with mailing address. You're way more likely to get a QSL card from a Ham than you are from a commercial station these days, as most broadcasters don't even have an engineering department any more.

The seeds of economic chaos were sowed 25 years ago. The oligarchs put the puppet Reagan in power and proceeded to shift the burden of paying for government from the capital class to the working class. They did this by giving themselves "tax cuts" and raising huge deficits for the remainder of us (and our kids) to pay.

24. Bob Struble Reports "Another Dynamite Year For Digital Radio"

A new publication from iBiquity called "The Struble Report" reports on 2009 radio sales.

Bob Struble from iBiquity reports that 2009 was a "dynamite" year for his "HD" radio. "Twice as many radios were sold this year than last", reports Struble. "What a great year it was for 2009. Building on our success, we will continue the rollout in 2010".

Year-end sales figures show that, after returns, eight radios were sold in 2009 as compared to the four radios sold the previous year. Most industry experts believe that two, possible three people actually listen to digital radio in the U.S. on a regular basis. This trend is expected to continue for the next 10 or so years.

The Struble Report will be published weekly by iBiquity

A superior DX machine shouldn't need to also be a "program listener" receiver. You can get beautiful audio from a 7600G.

I have a copy, my 1st ever copy of WRTH in my hand right now.

I've already put all the web links on Page 670 (some of which fail) into my browser and intend to do more detailed investigation/viewing in this New Year.

From what I had read so far this is a great publication and reference document.

Well done to Nicholas Hardyman and his team.

I have some questions for you, Michael. I have the time to look these things up and what I find leaves me a bit confused. In fact, very confused. Maybe you can shed some light on it.

> Hey Butt Horn...why not STFU for a minute, go buy some booze, and > start planning for the Kombat Kraven Arrest Anniversary Bash to be > held on January 8th or crawl back under your govt cubicle...In case > you neede a little background...

Why are you holding a party for something that obviously never happened? Doesn't saying something publicly leave you open for civil suit for libel? If I can find out who you are, anyone with a little bit of free time can do it too.

There are two major English language newspapers in Thailand; "The Bangkok Post," and the "Nation." Both report a story when ever there is an arrest of a foreigner in Thailand, any foreigner, regardless of nationality. There is a major Thai discussion forum called "ThaiVisa." It also discusses in depth when there is an arrest of a foreigner in Thailand. None of these three have any record of an arrest for Kramer at any time. Ever.

There are absolutely NO reports of ANY arrest in any news media.

Another question for you. Why, with two major newspapers and one very large Thai discussion group that covers all of Thailand is there absolutely NO MENTION OF DEPORTATION? If he was arrested and deported there would have been something said somewhere other than by you. Why is this? I'll repeat this part for you too.
There are absolutely NO reports of ANY deportation of him in any news media.

Except by you. Why is that?

> Kraven sent non stop faxes to Cheesy Bob Johnson at his pickle and > yogurt factory 24/7 (CM, Thailand)...

Another question, Michael. Why have left out the reason for his sending the faxes?
Google records indicate that Robert Johnson was mail-bombing Kramer at the time. Kramer sent the faxes to block Johnson's telephone lines. Apparently with success. Johnson didn't like it and ran to the cops.

>...a cease and dissist order was issued against the Kraven > but the paper onslaught went unabated...finally (according to posts > here and other accounts of the issue at hand)

There are no records indicating that any cease and desist order was issued. It reads that the police called the manager of Kramer's apartment building and asked her to look into the situation. She did and reported what she learned to the Police. At that time, through the hotel manager, he was ASKED to come to the police station to discuss the matter. There was never any arrest before or afterwords.

> we;ve all seen "Klammer" > sitting in the Police HQ in his Indiana Jones garb

Yes, we have. We have also seen the picture of the publisher of Chiang Mai's leading magazine and the owner of Chiang Mai's most famous Middle Eastern restaurant who showed up along with Kramer because THEY WERE ALSO GETTING MAIL-BOMBED by Robert Johnson at the time. In the picture on the Internet you can see each of them with a stack of e-mails they had received from Robert Johnson.

Based on internet reports, the police just laughed Johnson (who arrived quite drunk) out of the station and dismissed the entire matter. Johnson was never even awarded any money for his fax paper. If there had been an arrest, that would have happened, right?

Again the question. Why are you celebrating something that didn't happen?

I have more questions when you're ready.

You would have to say "samplin'" to an old coot trying to catch up on DSP and software define radios.

No eggnog, but I do have a week's supply of synthetic codeine waiting for me in Panorama City.

I learned it wrong when I was a kid. I am totally charmed by its elegant simplicity and may relearn it some day.

In the meantime I make plenty of music with the BPSK31.

I have a Werner (brand name) aluminum walk platform thingy I bought at the Lowe's store a few weeks ago, it is four feet long and has two feet long aluminum legs which can be folded up.I put together two one feet wide wood boards to lay on top of my aluminum platform, a handy dandy work bench.

My sister will be over here in about half an hour to take me to the O'Reilly's store on Ellis Ave so I can buy a carburetor rebuild kit and carburetor cleaner and some new vacuum line hoses.I am going to sit right here on doggy's couch and rebuild that Carter Thermo Quad four barrel carburetor meself.

I have a question for you. Will you be at the Kombat Kramer Bangkok Anniversary Arrest Bash on January 8th? All your 'friends' (including me) will be there, so we hope you can make it. Shall I reserve you and your lovely wife Nobuko a table?

We should send a "Thank You" e-mail to Obiteme...if ObitemeCare gets signed into law there will be virtually no medical reasons for the border to remain open.

And then maybe we can send Shatner back.

The Mobile Black Box V6000 FM Transmitter with the single USB Power & Audio Cable input would look like the best and simplest way to connect to a PC. ~$100
http://www.mobileblackbox.com/content/view/40/75/
* Comes with a 17" Telescoping Antenna

NOTE - If you cannot cover the inside of your Home; the V6000 has the 'optional provision' to attach a 33" External Telescoping Antenna with a Magnetic Base and a 10 Foot Coax Cable to allow you to Receive the FM Signal within every Room of your Home. ~$10

-source- Mobile Black Box, Ontario, California (USA)
IMHO these work much better for PC base FM Transmitter applications then the C.Crane units.

testing 1 2 3 can you hear me now . . . ~ RHF

I wrote to C. Crane regarding their FMT and they advised that I could adjust
it without voiding the warranty if it was absolutely necessary. However after reading the many complaints about it's limited range, I opted for the HLLY Chinese factory version of the Range Star transmitter, sold on EBay badged
the CZH-05B. Before committing to buy, the seller promptly replied to my numerous email questions and upgraded the power supply to a JVC AP-V400U model to minimize any chance of RF interference. Ordered and shipped in the middle

December, it arrived in a well padded box just after the Christmas long weekend.

All I can say is wow! I've got clear clean sound throughout my house and a few blocks down the street to boot! Now the only thing left to buy is a good quality shielded 3.5mm mini stereo jack splitter so I won't have to swap cables between my PC speakers and FM transmitter.

There's a lot of that going around. Word around here is that

*LMMFAO at the Q-guy's butting in on a response directed to Krypto the Klown...

a) we are not "holding" a party...We are celebrating January 8th, 2004
A day that Qraven said "Sure as Hell will live in infamy"...sorta like D-Day or Kwanza...

b) You already know I'm Mike...Hey, we know you are HawaiianEye...or is it Claire Vickers...?...:-)

c) Civil suit...?...I have never said Mr Klammer was arrested for anything...I'm merely stating what others have stated here in the past (check the archives) and they have backed up with what appear to me to be facts...post what you have or know!

d) Obviously there are conflicting reports here...Some say the press covered the story, you say they never did...OK, no sweat, we have a disagreement...

e) Reports by me...?...Sorry I have only been on UseNet for a very short period of time...sorry to say but you have me confused with someone else...but its ok, you appear a bit dazed and confused with your incoherent ramblings...

f) Hmmm, the Police laughed Cheesy Bob out of the Station because he was drunk...?...You were obviously there to witness this event!...How do you know ALL the facts in this case (or charges/accusations/ arguements/fueds/disagreement/whatever it is)....?...In the picture posted here all I see is some dufus (supposedly Mr Klammer but it could be any old sod) in a jungle safari get-up sitting at an interogation table with the local Police...I do not see a huge stack of papers anywhere that you eluded to nor do I see a "Magazine Owner" or "Middle Eastern Restauranteur" sitting in the picture...maybe you can post a few pictures you have to clear up the misunderstandings about this issue...I am not aware of any particulars to this case, only what has been reported on the public newsreaders...Johnson didn't get reimbursed for his fax-bombs...?...He shouldn't have if he was the perpetraitor but the reports are that Mr Klammer was the "fax-bomber"...Obviously someone was fax bombing somebody...who was it?

g) As far as "Celebrating" I personally am not...I was invited to join the discussions as a "Troll Society Member" a few yrs ago when all this sock puppetty came about and after reading all the contrary reports, lies, sock pupetts, and BS that a "certain member" continues to post I jumped on board with my .02c worth to try and find out the facts...

h) Please post any info you have regarding this dispute between Mr Klammer and Mr Cheesy Bob Johnson so that the UseNet users can read for themselves what actually took place in a detailed account of said facts...If I need to "stand corrected" because your facts proove otherwise I will indeed "stand corrected"...

i) It is obvious that you are somewhat close to this situation or could be Mr Klammer himself...I do not know however I really don't care until I read your facts, post what you have or know in a detailed account of what went down in Thailand...Hey, the bottom line is the guy is a Legend on the Usenet anyway so whats the harm in promoting his image (and or his business acumen)...from all the reports we've read about the guy he's "been there, done that" so celebrate his successes/failures on Jan 8th with your favorite post or memory!...:-)

Exactly right Question Guy! The trolls have BEEN asked on numerous occasions to provide some type of evidence of ANY arrest of Stephen Kramer in Thailand and have as yet, failed TO do so!

I have checked the ThaiVisa archives also, and there is nothing at all which suggests Stephen Kramer, or 'Folk Guitar' as he is very well known and respected at TV, has been arrested for any offence at ALL.

So I would suggest this to the trolls, either put up or shut UP!

It is indeed a great problem that you brought to this group a bunch of clowns who add absolutely nothing to the signal but a hell of a lot to the noise. Nothing will bring on-topic discussion on a group to its knees as quickly as the troll infestation you have wrought upon it.

The trio of trolls are the troublemakers but you are too blind, or too stupid, to see that though it is clearly visible to everyone else here.

Of course you have no problem with them since it was YOU who attracted them here therefore YOU are also part of the problem.

Everyone knows you invited them here to help you with YOUR harassment campaign against another poster here on RRS. Of course, that poster has left RRS and the clown trolls have decided to stick around and look for fresh victims.

It appears that your state of Michigan could desperately use some socialism Canadian style. I've not read of any 93 year old Canadians freezing to death in their homes because of greed driven utility companies as happened in your beloved state of Michigan. To read the story of the 93 year old WWII veteran's death see http://www.wnem.com/news/18566890/detail.html

Nor can I imagine the 45% unemployed in Detroit would object to giving socialism a try given the complete destruction of their lives by "capitalism" (a completely bogus term and and conceptual fraud - but I've have neither the time nor inclination to explain it to you lemmings).

Oh and by the way, how many of your social security "disability" checks have you returned? Surely a man of your steller character and iron clad principles could not accept money derived from the socialist program called "social security". Or could you?

Hi again Krypsis,

In my humble opinion the best thing one can DO is just ignore the trolls altogether, as they are more likely TO disappear if posters such as you and I just ignore them - thus starving them of the attention they seem to so desperately crave. Over on the SCT forum board, many of the ol' timers either completely ignore them, or utilize various types of kill files to ensure they see only the posts THEY want to see; therefore giving the 3 or 4 clowns no 'air-time' whatsoever. Thanks to advice from people such as Stephen Kramer, many OF the regular posters on SCT were able to familiarize themselves with the various ways in which they could continue to enjoy their usenet subscriptions without having TO endure the significant amount of utter rubbish spouted by a few ratbags. One of the discussion forums (Vietnam Society and Culture) you belong to IN particular Krypsis is, in my opinion, a shining example of how a discussion board can and should operate, without being hijacked by a few small-minded folk with their OWN ill-intentioned agendas.

Well just my 2 satangs worth.

Kind Regards and have a good evening all,

Isn't that the story of the fellow who was later discovered to have over $100,000 in the bank and was to tight to pay his bill(s) so as to be able to leave the money to a charity after he passed away?

Why yes I could, as I paid for the benefit. And, with every benefit check I receive, ninety six dollars and some change is withheld.

I've had larbgai killfiled and been ignoring him for quite some time now. From all reports, he still posts as much as ever and, no doubt, still says as little as ever. Since the object of largai's lust no longer posts in SCT, I think your point is unproven. Anyway, I think he misses Steve Kramer dreadfully, as do all the trolls!

> such as you and I just ignore them - thus starving them of the

I would like to see dickwads like Gregg providing no backslapping for the trolls and others to not cite troll responses in their replies. That would be a great start to "starving" the trolls. That has been my position in the past and will remain my position.

What "ol' timers"??? I count 3 or 4 that I recognise and one of those only by his writing style since he wisely uses another identity since becoming a troll target in the past. SCT in no way resembles the forum it once was. Between the trolls, the Burmese and the Lao, there's hardly an on-topic Thai related discussion in the place. Certainly there are a few valiantly trying to bring SCT back to what it once was but I wish them luck. They will certainly need it.

Oh, so you can speak, read and write Vietnamese then? That's about the only way you could gain enough experience to describe the activities in "Soc.Culture.Vietnamese" as a shining example of a discussion forum.
You might actually find that some of the younger foreign born Vietnamese using some English words where they don't know, have forgotten, or simply don't care to use the Vietnamese equivalent but it won't be enough for you to get the gist of the discussion. I just looked in on one discussion on computer video resolution. Quite interesting how they swap from English to Vietnamese and back again. Since it's a technical discussion, I'm not surprised at the use of English as there may be no Vietnamese equivalent or it may simply be easier to use the English version.

SCT users "allowed" their forum to be hijacked whilst SCV users do not.
Big difference.

Hi Tammy,

I just wanted to commend you for your recent posting. You sound like a very nice young woman and I think I speak for many of the other subscribers here when I say IT is wonderful to have some female input here on SCT at last.

Would you have any pictures OF yourself you wouldn't mind emailing to my private inbox? It is the usual practice for all new subscribers as a way for members to get to know one another a little better.

Thanks so much and we all look forward TO lots more posts from you!

Kind Regards and speak with you again real soon,

Hi again Krypsis,

No I certainly cannot speak, read or write any Vietnamese and am unfortunately not able to contribute to any discussion taking place in the soc.culture.Vietnamese forum. What I can see, however, is that the Vietnamese discussion is generated by a seemingly large number of authors on what would also seem like a diverse range of topics. This is how the Thai forum once was like back in its glory days, and as you mention, it is doubtful the group can pull itself out if its mire. I spend most of my time on moderated groups such as Thai Visa these days for the sheer sake of being able to be involved in discussion which actually relates to Thailand - unlike that which goes on in SCT nowadays.

Anyway, thanks for your insight and point of view.

Kind Regards,
Brian

She apparently is one of the Pod People. Here is the "approved" list from same web site:

Internet Sites I Recommend

* Fox Nation
* Fox News
* Glenn Beck
* Larry Van Horn's Btown Monitor Post
* Larry Van Horn's Milcom Monitoring Post
* Mark Levin
* Monitoring Times magazine website
* Rush Limbaugh
* Sean Hannity
* The Heritage Foundation

Now I freely admit I listen to Beck and Levin, and watch Fox News a lot (cleavage), but if that's the only "news" somebody is exposed to, that person will be one warped individual.

It is NOT a usual practice for all new subscribers to post a picture of themselves to other subscribers inboxes.
Besides, Tammy is neither female nor an original poster. In fact, "he"

G'Day Bri. :-)

You are wrong about there being nothing on ThaiVisa about the arrest and deportation of Kramer. Have another look in the archives. Try a search on the following: 'arrest of fraudster in Chiang Mai' and 'American arrested for running illegal tour guide business in Chiang Mai' and 'deportation of American conman from Chiang Mai'.

And Kramer's arrest and deportation WAS reported on in both the Thai and English language newspapers as well as on the TV and on the radio. You weren't in the country at that time (you were on an extended bird-watching vacation in Borneo) so obviously you would not have seen or heard the coverage, but I assure you that it was reported on here in Thailand.

Glad to hear that you and your good wife khun Ning are coming to the Kombat Kramer Bangkok Anniversary Arrest Bash this Friday, and look forward to seeing you then.

The last few days have seen a real upsurge in decent band conditions

Yes Jeremy Scahill has done an excellent job exposing the criminal enterprise known as Blackwater (consequently they changed their name to Ze or something in a lame attempt to deflect attention from their corruption).

Amy Goodman at Democracy Now http://www.democracynow.org has Scahill on often discussing the latest findings of his investigation of Blackwater and Eric Prince -the right wing religious psychopath who owns it.

Democracy Now provides investigative journalism the way it should be. You certainly won't find any being done by the corporate owned media of America.

I wouldn't count on front man Obama to prosecute Eric Prince and Blackwater (whom Bush and Chaney had hard-ons for). Which is more proof (as if more is needed) that Obama is nothing more than an errand boy for the elite who truly rule the USA.

No doubt - I am getting great polar-path reception, even multipath from both directions, but those non-polar cross-equatorial photons just aren't cutting the mustard. The indices are nice and low (K + A = zero-ish), but the sunpots aren't up there yet I guess.

No, it was a 93 year old man of diminished capacity desperately trying to fend for himself. Whose frozen body was found next to the utility bill that had the cash payment attached to it. A simple phone call from the greedy utility bureaucRATS could have prevented the atrocity.

Does that surprise you? Anything the trolls post has to be viewed with a great deal of scepticism. They are well known for inventing "stories" and then hammering the various newsgroups with them in the belief that what they invent will miraculously become fact. Sorry to disappoint! Facts can be backed up with verifiable proof unlike the many stories our infamous trolls spout.

Hi Krypsis,

Yes well forewarned is forearmed now I suppose - in my case at least.
I do admit falling for some of the things posted here in the past.
More the fool me unfortunately. It is amazing though the lengths some people do go to in an attempt to cause their interpretation of havoc.
I guess we can BE thankful in this case the havoc is only on a discussion board - although the type of comments regularly passed around by them is nonetheless slanderous and it is a shame the individual being targetted is not able to do more to protect his good character. It has gotten TO a point I believe where a civil lawsuit may be what IS required to bring the nonsense to a halt. I am unsure however if any type of cyber law would permit such an action. Any legal minds out there who would care to comment on this possibility?

Kind Regards,
Brian

 Try the FBI or the Mayor of Tauranga.
Both worked for Steve Kramer.

I'm not going to begrudge a man his pension, a deal's a deal.

Lare, like most radio righties, just hasn't gotten past the emotional way of looking at thins. Therefore he lives on sound-bites and shallow analysis.

Did the collector ever show up? Why aren't there laws that prevent

A pension is deferred compensation, and if it were a pension, I would agree.

Disability insurance is part of the social safety net, especially if someone else paid the premiums. Receiving disability payments while condemning welfare is hypocrisy.

What is "HD Radio"? Are they confusing it for DAB radio? If so I wouldn't confuse DAB with higher quality FM stereo!
FM stereo transmissions sound far better than low bitrate DAB stations.
It sounds interesting if the radio picks up say RADIO1 and then hunts for a local DAB multiplex providing the same station and switches over.
I would keep well away from DAB until the bitrate is higher and stations such as talkSPORT are transmitted in stereo. A lot of music stations are also mono, so how this can be "HD" with a low bitrate is anyones guess.
At the moment there is no such thing as "HD Radio" in the UK, only AM/FM(stereo) and DAB. Anything else and it has been incorrectly sold.
The problem is with the aerial base fitted to the BMW. It has a preamp and bandpass filters for 510-1610KHz, 88-108MHz only. So DAB which fits in around 170-220MHz is filtered out and the signal reduced.
This is why the signal is a fraction of what it should be and why the radio station goes in and out! Nothing to do with the radio, just the incorrect aerial base, preamp and filtering. Easy mistake for BMW to make.
There is currently no such thing as HD Radio in the UK! If you compared FM stereo and a low bitrate mono DAB automated music station with adverts, then people would pick FM stereo every time - for the superior quality, dynamic range and stereo seperation.
DAB is only as good as a strong MW station.

Voters may demand that ethical committees that hold members of Congress accountable to such things as frivolous spending and other legal, but ethically questionable behaviors may find themselves wrapped in ethical disciplinary actions?

Still want to keep holding midnight sessions and back door deals in order to not do the will of the People? And a shift in majority, or the loss of seats by members of the Democrat Congress who sit on those ethical review boards will do what?

I think the seller is lying, unless these two companies have stolen SD

The following is the personal opinion of the author, who reserves the right to republish this piece for profit, which you may read at your own risk, without any legal liabilities to the author or anyone who may publish or share this article (which must include this disclaimer) for which you here by waive the ability to sue for any reason in whole or in part in or outside of a court of law, if you do not agree, the entire article is to be considered a work of fiction, since you apparently want to live in an imaginary world.

When national organizations can raise a billion dollars to elect a Senator to President, just how do you expect Congress to continue in the sincere argument that pork barrel projects are really necessary? One way to cut down on frivolous spending, and frivolous floor time, would be to require that communities submit petitions for "pork barrel" projects that actually prove the community needs and can not finance it themselves?

Sincerely, I have lost the respect of Democrats, who can require that environmental impact statements that span the time of hundred of hours worth of lawyers time and reports, can not seem to get a grip on the financial impact of their own spending habits on the economy?

If you can raise hundreds of millions of dollars in campaign money, why are you holding your hand out and looting the paychecks of Americans who do not want that to happen, but trust these polititicians not to do that? Should we start requiring that anyone who approaches a member of Congress with their hand out, be a certified money raiser? In other words, if we can require electricians to hold licenses, should not those who petition Congress hold a license that proves they know how to raise money by other means?

Supporting documentation? Petitions, fund raising receipts, advertising campaigns (with the same zeal they pursue environmental impact statements?)? Tax payers want fair treatment, we don't union members getting special treatment, we don't want IRS forms that require computer programs to figure out, and we don't want a Congress that makes us feel like we have a three year old again and we have to scour the house looking for potential hazards to put up or throw away?

We want to be tax payers, not slaves? If commerce is international, and you go around bashing America around the world for all its mistakes, what on Earth makes you think you can run a business in an international community without people making fun of you behind your back?

Well, isn't that the logic behind goverment take overs of the banking and car industries?

When half your work week goes towards paying taxes, you are a slave? And just how patriotic do you think rich people get when they have to pay extra taxes, and that money is not spent in the economy on services and products made and supported by those who do not make as much money?

And why is the Executive Branch given the power to create law making agencies? Is that not the job of Congress? Talk about gridlock, how many "executive" branch agencies not only fall under the authority of the President, but are also micro managed by not one, not two, but three or more Congressional Committees?

The facts of the matter are clear, Congress is only so large for a reason, to prohibit the power and spending ability of the government? Should there be one, three, five and ten year goals to strip out spending programs regulatory agencies that we really do not need?

At this stage in the game, the Democrat Party is doing such a poor job that George Bush could run for election and win with enthusiastic support of the American People?

The Democrats actually pay their media spin doctors? Isn't that a violation of FCC regulations somewhere, something about false advertising? If a President makes a campaign promise, and breaks it, then FCC regulations should require fines equal to the amount of advertising spending on those lies? That one sentence in the law would be a revolution in America?

Have a nice day, we love you!

I find all this pretty funny. I just received a card from Steve Kramer - mailed from Thailand. He was never deported and is still working hard. He hasn't written a cookbook - that's the work of Steve Ralph Kramer, of Singapore, who owns a restaurant. And no, I'm not Steve Kramer using a sock puppet - I'm a friend who is an Englishwoman. Quite a house of cards you've built up!

In my opinion I think the seller may be one whose marketing technique could be described as "smoke and mirrors." The tip-off should be the claims about the Tecsun being a so-called "professional" radio. The reviews on this receiver are unremarkable. Interestingly, even going to Tecsun's website (which is a cruddy creation with that "high school computer student"-look for a website) mentions nothing about vector signal synchronous detection. It is also another example of once-great US companies selling their reputations out and kneeling at the alter of "Chinese poor quality." (I believe GE owns Tecsun).

All synchronous detection uses a sampling vector rate so the seller seems to be hyping his product unnecessarily. An analogy would be going to Taco Bell and ordering a "flour tortilla wrapped, savory and spicy burrito" instead of just a "burrito." The zit-faced kid behind the counter would just stare at you.

"Vector signal" is a term more aptly used in specifications used in test equipment and appending it to this Tecsun receiver should probably indicate a level of padding in the seller's description.

Go to Radiointel.com and read the review and you'll probably come away feeling like I did that this receiver is suited nicely to casual listening while at the beach but I wouldn't get too excited about its inflated claims.

HD Radio is the set of digital audio broadcast systems that they stuck us with here in the US. Also know as IBOC (In Band On Channel).
(A seperate but related system for both Medium Wave and (3 meter band) FM).

A couple of things are different from the Eureka[some number] system used in Europe (and I think Canada). The digital signal is in the same band as the analog audio, broadcast as an extra set of sidebands.
It would cause gawdawful inteference in the Medium Wave band at night, if they're still stupid enough to run it. A lot of stations quit, because it was a circular firing squad situation.

And, the way the broadcast industry is structured, each station has its own transmitter, and uses that for competitive advantage. (Which is why DAB with its shared multiplex transmitters wasn't considered.
It put the little guys on an equal footing with the big ones, signalwise).

So in addition to whatever ails DAB, we get even more expensive receivers with unreliable reception and no real improvement in signal quality.
For an industry whose programming is not worth listening to in the first place.

No, I have no idea who Clair Vickers is.

Guess you can thank Gregg (Bushcraft, Benchmade, or otherwise) for bringing the trolls into RRS. He was stirring the trolls up on rec.knives so it was only natural they would follow him, especially as he sought their assistance with the flaming of posters on RRS that he disagreed with!

I notice Gregg is lying low now, the damage having been done! He doesn't even use his aliases (sock puppets)in rec.knives any more.

You can buy a "flat" lead for satellite TV made from very thing coax in a plastic sheath that will protect it. It's 75 ohm, but still good enough.

Another thing you can do is to put a small strip of wood on the bottom or side of the Window and drill holes for the coax in it. You then seal the wood against the window frame with putty, and put weatherstriping on the window side. If it is cold enough, you can just seal the window to the wood.

Before you mount it, make extra holes for more wires and close them up with putty that does not harden.

You may not think you need them now, but you never can be sure until you need to add another antenna, or run counterpoises.

Geoff.

Gregg posted this only in rec.knives so the posters in RRS wouldn't see it, quite deliberately so since he clearly displays his alliance with the trolls. I believe that posters in RRS should know what an ass Gregg (Benchmade, BushcraftGregg, et al) is so I've "knocked off" rec.knives and added rec.radio.shortwave. Apart from being an ass, Gregg is also what is known as a NIMBY (Not In My BackYard). He likes to troll other newsgroups and terrorise other posters but gets rather uncomfortable when his activities come back to haunt him in his favourite haunt, RRS. Gregg would like posters in RRS to think he's a squeaky clean poster but his accolades from the trio of trolls proves otherwise. He plays the "goody twoshoes" in here but wreaks havoc elsewhere under a plethora of aliases. It's ok though as Gregg's not bright enough to alter or disguise his IP address so we always know it's him. That may change as I'm sure the trolls are coaching him in "Trolling 101" as I write this!

There's no doubt about it, the trolls look after their own! I think nurkfred says it all when he considers the trolling "Entertainment Value". That Gregg has allied himself with the trio of trolls can only spell further bad times for posters in soc.culture.thai, rec.knives, alt.cooking-chat and rec.food.cooking and even rec.radio.shortwave. What I cannot understand is why Gregg is now so obsessed with Steve Kramer as he cannot possibly have ever met the man or, for that matter, been harmed by him. Obviously Gregg isn't getting his rocks off on rec.radio.shortwave any more. Radio, it would seem, isn't providing sufficient tittilation for him.

In summary, I'd like to remind Gregg that HE came over into newsgroups which I frequent and started trolling. He mentioned his usual habitue as being rec.radio.shortwave and, in doing so, attracted the attention of the trio of trolls. For all I know, he quite likely invited them in by clandestine email to fight your fights for you. His current email discourse with the trolls suggests that he has had a long standing arrangement with them. That he admires and respects the trolls for their dirty work is also clearly shown in his recent posts.

I'd like to refer him to a website he will find very useful.

http://vboards.stratics.com/showthread.php?t=10788

He'll find some high level concepts and multisyllable words that will rack his brain but I hope he does persist and reads the entire discourse. He might find that, by following the guidelines suggested therein, HIS usenet experience (and certainly OURS) will be suitably enhanced.

What are the facts Gregg? You keep making vague statements and the like but provide very little of substance. The facts, as I see them, are that YOU brought the trio of trolls to rec.radio.shortwave in oder to help YOU with your war against posters (Mike Bryant, et al) that you disagree with. The facts are that YOUR trio of trolls have absolutely no respect for the rights of other posters in this and in other newsgroups. The facts are that YOUR trio of trolls has an obsession with Steve Kramer who no longer posts on Usenet so are looking for fresh hunting grounds provided by you. The facts are that YOUR little plan backfired and now you're being seen as the biggest jerk in rec.radio.shortwave.
Do the facts get any plainer than that Gregg. What's more Gregg, the facts are available to anyone who cares to trawl through the archives to find the crap YOU and YOUR trio of trolls have posted in usenet in recent times.

You had a mancrush on Mike Bryant and now you appear to have one on Steve Kramer. I don't know Mike Bryant nor do I know Steve Kramer. I do know that the trio of trolls obsession with Kramer has utterly destroyed soc.culture.thai. I do not want to see that same scenario occur in rec.radio.shortwave.

Do you seriously not see the hypocrisy in your statements above? You accuse me of bullying you yet all I am doing is pointing out the obvious. You are, for want of a better term, threatening me with "batter and pillage" though, for the life of me, I don't know how you intend to "pillage" me.

I have been posting in rec.radio.shortwave and 18 sundry other radio related newsgroups for quite a number of years. To be sure, I don't use this persona nor am I a prolific poster since my work up until my recent retirement has kept me fully occupied. I intend to initiate a lot more radio related posts in future. Now you may not like this so I'll set you a task. See if you can find my other persona! Now there's a challenge for you and your trolls.

Closing a window on coax is never a good idea. No matter how thin. There are, however, other options.

Cable installers in the city, where most of the units are rentals and transient numbers are high, use a short, flat coax jumper specifically created for this purpose. Connect your round coax to the flat line on the outside, then connect another round piece on the inside. Easy solution. Most of the readily available flat coax jumpers are 75 ohm. The loss will vary with frequency, but in practical terms for what you want to do, you'll likely not notice. Universal also has a 50 ohm flat feedthrough jumper. A better, cheaper solution.

Universal also sells an appliance for this purpose. You set it in the sill, close the window on it, connect your coaxes, and other lines, and rock. Made by MFJ. There are two models. Less than $100 for the more elaborate of the two. You move, you take it with you.

You can also make one. A piece of styrofoam will work. Or any material, for that matter. Lucite, vinyl, even a scrap piece of bakelite, or 1 X 2. Cut it to size, drill your holes, run your feedthrough SO-239, close the window and get after it.

All of these tricks will require special sealing of the coaxial connectors outside the window. CoaxSeal is exceptional for this. And special window sealing efforts will be required to keep the Minnesota winter out of your listening room. It can get brisk in there. But they work, they leave no mark and they're portable.

One of the more elegant solutions, that doesn't require special sealing efforts at the window, is to use the window, itself, as a feedthrough capacitor. Depending on the size of the window (the larger the better), paint both sides of the glass with an aluminum paint. Or even cover each side with aluminum foil, tightly attached, and smoothed. Attach a stub to each side of the glass with a conductive material. The stuff used for repairing automobile rear window defoggers is perfect. You can find it in auto supply stores. And some larger drug or grocery stores in the automotive/tool sections. Once set and dry, cover that junction with epoxy for sealing and strain relief. Then attach the center conductor of your coax to the stub on each side of the glass, and ground each shield. The signal is fed through the glass as the dielectric of a large capacitor. If the glass is large enough, and the application is smooth enough, losses are minimal until you get down into the MW spectrum. When you move, scrape off the paint, or remove the aluminum foil. No one will ever know you were there.

Enjoy.

Wow! Such a cheery outlook!

The receivers are not expensive anymore.

Reception is going to get better with the power increases.

And programming will expand to more varienty with more HD2 & 3 channels.

I thought I'd share this little story written by Gregg with RRS readers.
In his haste to post it, he forgot to include rec.radio.shortwave.
There's no doubt about it, Gregg's got a good imagination. Pity he's so short on clues.

Well Fred, the Mister isn't needed. :-)
One thing I have been doing though is when I see this crossposted over to the Tai/RK's group, I knock those two groups out of my response.

I will never understand, if someone doesn't want to read a thread, why are they not only reading it - - but ALSO responding to it. You don't see Ace/PMaus/BA/JPlimmer responding? They might be reading it for entertainment value but they're not adding on to the thread and then complaining about

You clearly -- and completely -- miss the point.

It's not about reading just this one thread. It IS about, as Krypsis so clearly stated, you bringing these polluting trolls over to RRS from knives, cooking, Thailand, wherever, and having to put up with their continuous sniping and whining posts from these other groups. (Gee, maybe if they would just learn not to cross post).

But then, no one has ever accused you of being the brightest bulb in the box -- or as a more apt analogy should I say, not the sharpest knife in the drawer.

The truth is that you're full of bullshit Gregg, no doubt about that!

If I really seriously wanted to discover the identity of a poster on usenet, I would simply submit a request to my IT boys here providing the subject email/post, including all header information. They would pass it onto the relevant federal department in Canberra who would, in turn, pass it along to the relevant federal department in your country. A log file request would be made to your ISP along with any other relevant information. Your ISP would be told absolutely NO DETAILS but would be obliged by YOUR laws to provide this information to your federal department. This information would be processed and further investigation may ensue. This investigation would not involve any further information relevant to your posting instead being relevant to who and what you are. You may not yet realise just how little privacy you really have in your country and, unfortunately, mine.

Anyway, the information I would receive would be a very complete dossier which brings me to a final point, that it would show you to be an absolute moron. So why on earth would I want to do all this when I already know that you are thicker than two short planks Gregg.

BTW, every ISP is required to keep a complete log file of user activity on every server they possess. They are required to provide this logfile on request to your relevant federal department(s). Same applies in this country and, in fact, most countries in the world these days. If your ISP were to modify the log file in any way, its contents would be compared with the upstream ISP's logfile. Any untoward variation between logfiles is a federal offence. The maintenance of these logfiles, by the way, has been a federal requirement for quite some time now.

Anyone who thinks they are anonymous on the internet these days is kidding themselves. All that matters is "Who wants to know!".

Pal, you need to go back in the archives and see how it all went down.
I am not going to keep repeating the story to everyone just because they are either
#1 - too lazy or #2 - just believing the dickhead Krypsis and all his other buttbuddies and FWIW I don't respond to him because I don't even bother reading his posts anymore because he 'unfortunately' is delusional and a liar and until he apologizes to me with it saying that in the top of the thread - I won't bother reading his diatribes.

Why don't you ask Fred and Larb and company to keep it over in the other groups - seeing how you are being 'bothered' so much - even though you consistently pop into the fray of the same thing you're complaining about? That is almost funny itself and I can promise you <heh> my knives are and will always be, sharper than yours.

YOU need to go back into the archives and, from what I can see, not all that far. Have a look at what YOU and Fred Nurk posted while you had a little too much of the Christmas Spirit in you. Better not to drink while you are telling porkies Gregg.

So, let's precis what has occurred here;

#1 You sent out a SPECIAL INVITE to the trolls as detailed by Fred Nurk.

#2 You invited them to help you out in YOUR harassment of Mike Bryant!

#3 YOU then stated that YOU have NO PROBLEM with Nurk and his troll mates being in rec.radio.shortwave (as if other posters in RRS don't matter!)

Not surprising you don't have a problem with the trolls since you invited them into RRS, probably by covert email. I notice that you are sending yet another email request to Fred Nurk for, I suspect, more assistance.

> to keep repeating the story to everyone just because they are either

Repeating YOUR STORY won't make it true Gregg.

> #1 - too lazy or #2 - just believing the dickhead Krypsis and all his

Oh dear, a clear sign that you have lost your argument, you're resorting to namecalling.

> other buttbuddies and FWIW I don't respond to him because I don't even

I have buddies? Since when have I been associated with any other posters on this newsgroup? I operate independently Gregg, which is more than I can say for you! You need your troll mates to assist in your hrassment of Mike Bryant. That's what you invited them over for! You're a coward, pure and simple!

> bother reading his posts anymore because he 'unfortunately' is > delusional and a liar and until he apologizes to me with it saying

Pray tell where I am "delusional"? I cite a post by nurk where he acknowledges your invite to RRS and that makes me a liar? I think you need a serious reality check Gregg.

> that in the top of the thread - I won't bother reading his diatribes.

Don't expect an apology from me any time soon for what YOU have wrought upon RRS. As you sow, so shall ye reap! Besides, you WILL read everything I post because that's how you trolls operate. You get some sort of sick gratification from responses to your handiwork yet still you try to pretend you are a serious poster in RRS. Well Gregg, no one believes you are serious about radio. You are merely using RRS as a vehicle to get your rocks off trolling.

> Why don't you ask Fred and Larb and company to keep it over in the > other groups - seeing how you are being 'bothered' so much - even

You've let the genie out of the bottle now Gregg. It's unlikely the genie will want to go back since it's having so much fun in RRS.

> though you consistently pop into the fray of the same thing you're

Gregg, IIRC, you used to pop into the fray of every trollfest in rec.knives in support of the trolls.

> complaining about? That is almost funny itself and I can promise you > <heh> my knives are and will always be, sharper than yours.

Your knives may be sharp but your brain certainly isn't! In fact, I think you might have a few kangaroos loose in the top paddock! You bring a group of trolls in to control a person YOU saw as a troll. It's backfired and the group of trolls you invited in are far worse than the original problem.

Reminds me of the Queensland Cane Toads, originally introduced to Australia to control sugar cane beetles. The cane toads have become a major pest in themselves. See the similarity Gregg, they're just like your troll mates.

http://www.environment.gov.au/biodiversity/invasive/publications/cane-toad/index.html

I'll set you a challenge Gregg. get your troll mates to leave RRS. See how good you are. You invited them in, get them to leave. Simple huh? I wish you luck as I see they are spreading their evil ways to other newsgroups such as rec.food.cooking and alt.cooking.chat.

Hello Gregg,

Can you see the turns? If so, can you make a link to a picture and/or figure out how the windings are connected. There are many arrangements, so it is difficult to give you advise without knowing what you have.

When you have access to some measurement equipment, you could measure it. You can use the voltage transformation ratio or use a source with VSWR indicator and adjust the load to lowest reading.

You might search on "balun" with "guanella" this will show many useful links that will help you to do the determination based on visual inspection.

Best regards,

Why should I ask? YOU were the one that brought them over.

Bottom line:

YOU were the one who pissed in the well... and this leads to one of two conclusions.

a)You are too dense to realize what you've done.

b) You do realize what you've done but aren't honest enough to man up and accept responsibility.

Given that Gregg is "Pinging Fred" to check his email, I'd say both options apply.
He's definitely too dense and, after being told what he's done, he's too gutless to accept the responsibility!

One wonders at the content of any email transactions between these two trolls.

Gregg is definitely an asset to rec.radio.shortwave NOT!

Not sure it's the best all round - certainly is on CW, but for AM DXing in MW and HF there are others that are better.

It has a synchronous detector for AM, but you need to spend an extra $250 for a wide roofing filter and a general coverage filter set. I'm just going to use it for low power digital modes. I got the optional 8 pole 400 Hz crystal filer after the first mixer. This means I no longer have to worry about some bung-hole using 100 Watts for psk31 obliterating the rest of the band segment for me. The AGC is after the narrow filter; hence no desense. It also has the stock 2.7 kHz SSB filter.

For MWDX I'd use an FFT SDR. They are very cheap. (BTW, the K3 will interface with some of these and allow you to use PowerSDR with the K3)

As your Troll Mate Bushcraft Greg stated
"Who invited you?"
Don't read the thread, don't poke your nose in the mix
Don't respond to posts you don't like Don't go to the kraven Bash, or will you? :-)

Who is Mark Morgan, KB9RQZ?
Mark C. Morgan of 17366 North River Road, Tapiola, Michigan describes himself as a "kinky bisexual, into bondage, domination, and sado-masochism." As indicated in the CCRAA club newsletter, Morgan was impeached by members of the CCRAA radio club, in the summer of 2008. His impeachment was partly a result of the fact that he falsely accused seven men of child pandering and partly due to the fact that his actions brought disrepute onto the club.

Mark Morgan is under investigation for identity theft related to the unauthorized use of another man's name and email address. Information related to the incident was posted on the website on February 13 at 1:15 AM. Morgan has continuously posted false and defamatory information about various individuals for a number of years.

On February 13, it was also reported that nine (9) accounts used by Morgan to flood multiple newsgroups with annoyance messages had been removed for terms of service (TOS) violations.

Amazingly, after falsely reporting an individual for child sex pandering last year, Mark Morgan has now stolen the email address of the same FCC licensee, and, as of 10 AM eastern time on 2/13/09, Morgan had already posted 308 fraudulent messages. Here is a link to the fraudulent profile created by Mark Morgan, KB9RQZ. The FBI and Law enforcement agencies in Michigan have been notified about this latest act of fraud perpetrated by Mark Morgan.

During the period prior to Morgan being impeached by the CCRAA radio club, the turbulence resulting from Morgan's fraud, malicious acts, and false accusations were acknowledged by club members to have cast a bad light on the organization. According to the club leadership: When Morgan began posting statements about the club on his private blog, leading to the possibility of the club being involved in a nasty civil suit, club members realized their mistake in electing him. After a short tenure as a club officer, Morgan was impeached by a margin of 11:1. Morgan's own vote was the only vote in his favor.

Like his friend Karol Madera, Morgan has a long history of involvement with the police, and the mental health industry. Law enforcement officials in Michigan have stated that Morgan was transported for psychiatric examination in 2004, to a hospital in Marquette, Michigan, under supervision of Sheriff's Deputies.

Morgan calls himself an ally of Karol Madera, VE7KFM.

In collusion with Madera, Morgan made malicious and false reports of child pandering to child protective service agencies, against 7 different men, in 7 different states.

Morgan was banned from qrz.com and hamisland.com for posting defamation about various individuals. Morgan has admitted he uses Google services (blogspot) to manage at least 3 defamatory blogs, using material fabricated by Karol Madera.

Morgan creates multiple identities, enabling him to flood the usenet service with thousands of nonsensical messages, in retaliation against those who have revealed his many lies and fabrications over the past 10 years. At last count, Morgan had posted well over 200,000 meaningless posts, using just a few of these multiple identities. Morgan admits he has rendered the service useless, citing "self defense." The removal of one of the many identities used by KB9RQZ on usenet is a victory in the effort to reduce the incessant flood of posts made by Morgan in an effort to deny others the ability to enjoy the usenet service.

Quotable Quotes ~ by Mark Morgan, KB9RQZ

On reporting 7 men for child sex crimes:

"likewise you can prove I made a charge , you can't prove it was flase and malicious you would have to prove that I did not suspect you, indeed if I am mental ill as you suggest in post 2 then your task becomes even harder, since if I am nuts who knows what I believe"

"if you try and stop me either nothing will happen , or I will never even notice the effort or if you manage to inconvence my exercise of my rights I will look into what price I can extract from you."

"you also provoked mater by insisting your had the right to control who responded to your posts in RRAP"

"I made no flase report to CPS (child protective services) indeed you don't what a fasle report is it seems since I did and do and in fact I am more convinced than ever that you are likely the offer of the note claimignt o be willing to rent me the sexual service of that 9 yo but in any event I started nothing with you YOU started thing remeber you insisted I hated Ham radio because I said its response to Katrina could be imporved"

"when you atack me you invite response the only question is wether you have the gut to allow the reponse"

KB9RQZ, on shooting a teenaged boy (according to Houghton County Sheriff's Department, it never happened)

"at about 6:35 this morning I was awakened not by the expected return of my wife form the renfaire but the sound of motors. the motors belong to an ATV that had managed to get a rope onto my tower (30 foot wooden structure and was puling the tower down. O got sever round with the shotgun did not score a good hit but but the cops found blood on the treea dn the trails lead back to n rover river road after a bit where it stop and free tire marks (looks like one of the pickups that carry atv's around here).

the rope parted and no real damage to the anttenas was done although my masting needs work to make it stable again. have had loads of fun with the cops over the matter. I wonder what poor kid (I could see he was not more than say 16 ish) the nutjobs conned into making the attack and with what lie. sad realy."

February 2009 ~ Yet Another KB9RQZ Identity Banned from Google Groups

Another of the email adresses (kb9rqz@yahoo.com) used by Mark Morgan of Chassell, MI to flood usenet with thousands of nonsensical, useless messages, has been banned by Google groups for numerous violations of Google's terms of use, which include efforts to defame, abuse, harass, stalk, threaten or otherwise violate the legal rights (such as rights of privacy and publicity) of others; posting inappropriate, defamatory, infringing, obscene, or unlawful Content, and; restricting and inhibiting other users from using and enjoying the Service, through repeated flooding, spamming, and changing of thread titles.

The following is a repost about Morgan, made on Daniel Jeswald's blog, attributed to Steven Robeson:

Mark Morgan, KB9RQZ, is a very disturbed, admittedly deviant, and dishonest person who has been harrassing Amateur Radio operators and disrupting radio, and other forums, since at least 1997.

As part of his on-going fusillade, he has, at various times, insisted that he's a "colonel" in the US Army "chemical corps," further insisting that he's been "drafted," and further insisting that he was not allowed to "resign."

Never mind that he was only 8 years old when the draft was stopped in the 70's! He's since recanted the "Colonel" claim, saying he was only a Lieutenant, then claiming he was only a Sergeant at discharge -- under another name that the CIA knows about -- and approved.

Oh, and he was kicked out of the service due to his "nerves" according to Mr. Morgan. However, the HCSD and MSP both have him on record as being transported to Marquette General Hospital in 2004, due to "involuntary commitment for psychiatric evaluation."

Mr. Morgan has perpetuated a smear campaign against other members of various forums, going as far as post-editing comments, forging posts, and even trying to make "complaints" to the Civil Air Patrol Inspector General Corps and the FCC, etc., about perceived slights that have nothing to do with CAP or anything with any bearing on reality.

Recently, Morgan reported 7 different men to Child Protective Services in 7 different states. All this, because he has allied himself with yet another lunatic in Canada, known as Karol Madera, VE7KFM, who is as bad, or worse, than Mark Morgan.

This behavior is nothing more than an attempt by Morgan to "silence" those who would expose his foolishness and who refuse to tolerate his dishonesty in public forums.

Mr. Morgan has admitted to various acts of perversion and deceit, going as far as bragging about his use of lying, and his belief that deceit should be proactively taught to children as part of their upbringing. He describes himself as a kinky, bisexual, rabbi, who is into bondage, domination, and sado-masochism. He's been banned from almost every polite radio forum on the internet, but he still spams usenet groups, nearly every day, with nonsensical messages and libel.

Mr. Morgan has even gone as far as to create multiple screen names with which to spam usenet and other forums, including one screen name that invokes the name of my deceased daughter in order to perpetuate his demented "point of view".

Be aware. Be informed. Mark C. Morgan is NOT a person of reputable character, nor does he have an honest nature. In fact, not only was he transported to Marquette General Hospital for psychiatric evaluation and treatment in 2004, but he has a long history of similar treatment and harassment of others by various devious and underhanded means.

Mark Morgan has been investigated for the abuse of his elderly father, and for making false sos calls, as recently as December, 2008. There have even been rumors that Mark Morgan stole money from his elderly father, in order to move to Michigan, to avoid prosecution there, for crimes that have not been published, yet.

This summer (2008) Mr. Morgan was voted out of the CCRAA amateur radio club by a vote of 11:1. He was ejected from that club and banned from the websites qrz.com and ham island.net. Reports of dishonesty, slander, libel, and theft, follow Mark Morgan around the internet, like the stench from the local dump.

Here is a link to one of the screen names used to flood forums with unwanted posts and garbage of the type I previously mentioned. And here is another from IP addresses at Hughes satellite services, the latest IP addresses being 69.19.14.28 and 69.19.113.131

In summary, beware of Mark C. Morgan of 17366 North River Road, Tapiola, Michigan. Do not hesitate to contact Houghton County Sheriff's Department if he begins stalking you, or your family. Unfortunately, I have first hand experience with his stalking and harassment.

Mark Christopher Morgan can be reached for comment at kb9rqz@hughes.net or by phone at 906-523-4520 or via his postal address at Mark C. Morgan 17366 North River Road, Tapiola, Michigan

Ah, I see what you're saying. I'm almost embarrased to say this because I think it is a balun. This is what it looks like http://www.lowbander.com/sloper.html

I remember him telling me that one of the sides was "hot"....which back then I didn't know what he meant....lol...but I do now, I just don't know how to find out which side is hot.<sigh>

OK. I follow you but I don't.:-) You're talking to the challenged when it comes to this.
I have one of those 'Digital Measuring Instruments' made by Escort. If you could maybe either tell me exactly what side to touch or however you do it....I'd really appreciate it.

I thought you would be able to tell me by me saying that he gave it to me in "hopes that I would be TX off it"....apparently you can do that with both the 4:1 and the 9:1??? I could have sworn thinking he said it was a 4:1

OK. Good deal. I never heard of the word "guanella" before - - but I'll check it out and I'll check to see if you responded back and try to figure it out. I don't plan on TX off it, but I'd sure like to use it for some type of antenna like that link I provided for you.

Thanks a bunch for your help, it's appreciated. :-)

Hello Gregg,

When the previous owner says "it has a hot side" it is very likely not a balun, but an (auto) transformer for an off-center fed antenna (like FD4) or for providing easier match in combination with an antenna tuner. Many people call such a transformer a balun, but it isn’t in most cases.

You can figure out some things yourself. Connect the coaxial side to the external antenna input (for portable SW receivers, mostly via a 3.5mm audio plug). Tune to a known relatively strong station that you can weakly hear when not touching the transformer. Touch one of the secondary terminals. The terminal that gives the strongest reception (signal strength) when touched is the hot side of an autotransformer type of unit.

When there is no electrical connection between the coaxial side and terminals, it is not an autotransformer. Then you need to connect one of the terminals to a ground structure (or just for testing, to the braid of the coaxial cable that runs to your receiver).

When there is virtually no difference in signal strength between terminals, and there is electrical connection between coaxial side and terminals, It is a balun, but probably without common mode suppression.

When it is for reception on HF only, the difference between 1:4 or 1:9 is not that much (probably negligible). To fully know the device without measuring instruments, try to dismantle it and provide us with the winding details and/or picture.

Regarding the link you provided, it is probably written by a good salesman.

EXACTLY. He can babble all he wants and he keeps proving EXACTLY that I am correct in what I am stating. He knows why he is REALLY here and all the double talk and all the shucking and jiving he is 'attempting' to do doesn't change the facts. I have to say, between him and his mancrush - they are fascinating at first to read - but once you draw a bead on both of them they are extremely boring to keep following. It's the same old 'attempted' tactics of persuation via writing by saying the name of his mark over four/five times in one freeking post...lol...that's the oldest trick in the book to 'try an' gain the confidence of either the reader and or listener. He is a used car salesman and not a good one at that, not if I had him figured out from go get. <shaking my head>

And here is the funny part that he can't/won't escape, as long as he posts in here (RRS) - and is just posting crap - the DTS will be here to batter and pillage his sick and twisted lame attempts at being the usenet bully. He stops his game in here and the DTS won't post in here unless it is in response to either the radio hobby or if I ping them. Now I am not saying they won't read this group, they are no doubt vigilant when it comes to fighting and picking out the bullshit. But mark it down....lol...the 'real' bully/troublemakers have been - and will be proven again and again that their act doesn't work on people that aren't skeered of their usenet bully tactics.

Gotta go grab a cup of hot coffee. <yum> :-)

Ha in reference to the link that "was written by a good salesman." Yeah that is Mike, FWIW it wasn't from him that I obtained whatever the heck it is that I got. But it does look 'exactly' like that piece and a couple others on his same page. I pasted your response and I'll do what you said later today or tomorrow with the exception of opening it up, it looks and feels that it's all one piece, I know it could be opened - but if I can't figure it out by what you said - short of opening it - then I'll just leave it alone.

But if I'm just using it just for another receiving antenna of some sorts - - in the long run does it really matter if it's a balun or a transformer? I promise that will be my last question on this. :-) Thanks again.

Hello Gregg,

When you have an outdoor piece of wire and a ground rod (or use a fence as ground), you have an unbalanced antenna.

Just connect the center conductor of the coaxial cable to the antenna wire and the braid to your ground provision. Do not put long wire between the braid and your ground provision.

At low frequency, the length of the wire antenna can be very short with respect to wavelength, hence showing a high impedance. Adding a 1:4 or 1:9 transformer will result in more signal to your receiver. Note that more signal is not equal to better reception. When the noise from the antenne without transformer exceeds the receivers's noise, adding the transformer (to get mor signal) doesn't increase S/N ratio.

When you have a symmetrical antenna (for example dipole of 10m (2*5m), best is to use a real balun. It may reduce interference from domestic equipment that couples to the coaxial cable part that runs close to equipment in your house. also here a 1:4 or 1:9 balun will extract more signal from the antenna (at low HF).

When you need further information, don't hesitate to post again.

Best regards,

Wim

OK

I'm already enjoying it, and it hasn't arrived yet. It's just the 10 Watt version with one option (400 Hz 8 pole filter). The nice thing about it is that you can add a lot of features, but for what I spent you can still get the best analog RF performance of any receiver, regardless of price.

I'm going to have an entry level Ten-Tec 516 for sale shortly.

Hello,

Where does everyone get their supplies?

I need a cheap but strong magnetic trunk/roof mount mobile base with a 259 on the coax and a 239 SO on the mount. I don't see a lot of them out there and they seem pricey for what they are. It's been many years since I last messed around so I likely don't know where to look (and don't want to wait for a late March hamfest).

It wouldn't matter on one item, but I am going to be doing a number of things in the future so this would be a good time to take a site out for a test drive, so to speak. Better to try someone out for price vs. quality vs. service/dependability now than on the bigger-bucks items.

Thanks for any suggestions

Universal Radio is good.

Grove, is another.

Parts Express, Digi-key, Mouser and AES.

Allied Electronics.

Newark.

If you can't find what you're looking for with these, you're likely to find that you're not going to find it.

251. How you can save fuel and the environment

Driving and Car Maintenance: Transportation accounts for 66% of U.S. oil use -mainly in the form of gasoline. Luckily, there are plenty of ways to improve gas mileage.

Driving Tips:- Idling gets you 0 miles per gallon. The best way to warm up a vehicle is to drive it. No more than 30 seconds of idling on winter days is needed. Anything more simply wastes fuel and increases emissions.- Aggressive driving (speeding, rapid acceleration, and hard braking) wastes gas. It can lower your highway gas mileage 33% and city mileage 5%. Drive at lowest and constant rpms; 2000 rpm are enough; you can save up to 30%. Even a Porsche can be driven at the 4th gear at 20 mph and at the 6th gear at 50 mph with 2.5 times less fuel consumption.- Avoid high speeds. Driving 75 mph, rather than 65 mph, could cut your fuel economy by 15%.- When you use overdrive gearing, your cars engine speed goes down. This saves gas and reduces wear.- Use air conditioning only when necessary.- Clear out your car; extra weight decreases gas mileage. Each 60 pounds increases fuel consumption by 10%. - Reduce drag by placing items inside the car or trunk rather than on roof racks. A roof rack or carrier provides additional cargo space and may allow you to buy a smaller car. However, a loaded roof rack can decrease your fuel economy by 5%.- Check into carpooling and public transit to cut mileage and car maintenance costs.

Car Maintenance Tips:- Use the grade of motor oil recommended by your cars manufacturer. Using a different motor oil can lower your gasoline mileage by 1% to 2%.- Keep tires properly inflated and aligned to improve your gasoline mileage by around 3.3%.- Get regular engine tune-ups and car maintenance checks to avoid fuel economy problems due to worn spark plugs, dragging brakes, low transmission fluid, or transmission problems.- Replace clogged air filters to improve gas mileage by as much as 10% and protect your engine.- Combine errands into one trip. Several short trips, each one taken from a cold start, can use twice as much fuel as one trip covering the same distance when the engine is warm. Do not forget that in the first mile your car uses 8 times more fuel, in the second mile 4 times and only after the fourth mile it becomes normal.Long-Term Savings Tip- Consider buying a highly fuel-efficient vehicle. A fuelefficient vehicle, a hybrid vehicle, or an alternative fuel vehicle could save you a lot at the gas pump and help the environment.See the Fuel Economy Guide (www.fueleconomy.gov) for more on buying a new fuel-efficient car or truck.

Amateur Electronic Supply (AES) has a good selection.

Here's a section of their online catalog:

It's $45 though. Not sure if that's out of your desired price range.

Are you ready for some football? Kidding around in the locker room, insults before games, screaming at people before the game, and removing CF attitudes during half time? We are going to make this the best talk radio year ever, and believe me, we can do it.

Whining about critiques about "things that are not important"? Oh, that's right, I remember how talk radio pulled through last November, too many people ignored them? Go ahead, call me a punk, I've got endless ammunition. My keyboard never runs out of bullets?

I'm gonna lift up Rush Limbaugh, Sean Hannity, Glenn Beck, Pat Grey, Herman Cain, Joe Paggs, Michael Savage, Bill Orielly, Mark Levin, and many more voices as high as I can. The Democrats are telling their people that they will win next election based on their point spread during the last election? That people don't pay attention to what they do, as long as they have money in their pockets? Ha!

I'm gonna try to convert not just Barack Obama from his brain washing, but that Elvis fellow in North Korea? I'm gonna give a shout out to Britain and France and cheer on the liberation of those citizens too? I want to see my grand kids and Russian grand kids exchanging gifts and solving problems? I want to see the enemies of mankind removed from existence? I want to see the kids in Iran play rock and roll?

I want everyone incredibly rich with not just peace, but happiness? Rush Limbaugh could have been President? And our Secretary of the Treasury let out a smirk when asked to resign by a member of the Senate?

Arrogance, or reasonable doubt?

It's time to play the game.....hhhhhhuuuuhhhhhhhhhhhh!

What are YOU gonna do when Rush Limbaugh, and his pythons of truth have you in a choke hold with your botox and eyeballs popping out, and all his little conservo-maniacs, go running WILD ON YOU?

Can you smell el el el el el el el el el el el el what the GRANDUS AMUNDUS, the EL Gravito Propellus, Maximus Excellus, is cooking?

(simulated eyebrow rise, and the whitest teeth in the universe smiling at you!)

Last night, I moved my old junk box toggle switch (On/Off switch) on the back of my G.E.Superadio to the top of the radio.The original push button on top of that radio crapped out a few years after I bought that radio at a Service Merchandise store back in the 1970s or 1980s, whenever it was.

While I was doing that, one of the speaker wires broke off on the speaker, so I soldered the wire back on to the speaker.

Yeah, I've read up on all the computer control receivers. At first I didn't like the concept at all, IMO kind of like fishing with live bait. Of course you're going to catch fish with live bait because that's what they eat, I like the idea of bringing a rubber worm to life or bringing a top water lure to life. But both catch the fish, that is kind of my analogy of the two.

I want to get back to copying the weather faxes, I think that's a kick for some reason - - and then go on from there. I need to dedicate one of my hard drives just for radidio.:-)

Toggle switches IMO are where it's at - - those and different type of LEDS. I love the look of my two add on toggles on the front of the DX394 and of course my Hammarlunds have plenty of them.

We have a great radio/HAM etc. store in Hamilton called R&L Electronics. You would be like a kid in the candy store at this place.
The first time I heard about that place I made the long drive there and wasn't dissapointed. The store literally sits and is part of the corner of a road - pretty odd.

I pulled into there and saw this setup of different arrays of antennas outside and about crapped my britches...lol. I walked in that front door for the first time and took a few steps into the store and just stopped in my tracks with a huge smile on my face and one of the HAMS behind the huge counter looked at me and said "your first time here?"
I said "yep" - - and proceeded to spend a tad over fours in there. IMO
- that would have to be the perfect job....it wouldn't even feel like work.:-)

A Democrat proudly bragged that he will campaign based on high school drop out rates? Uh, you have to get rid of your looting agenda first, why graduate high school when you can get a bunch of government hand outs half the year, and work under the table the other half of the year? Who needs an education to do that? And that leads to what, voting your own "color"? Is our tax system based on color, or participation? Participate by voting, or learning?

So yes, I challenge all the constituents of Shiela Jackson Lee, look around your neighborhood, and tell me what depending on government hands outs has done for you? Living under snob edge a micated Democrats who depend on you voting your color -- thinking that you can't figure out that social dependence creates poverty? That fair taxes and limited government growth and spending encourages people to do things for themselves, and see the results for themselves?

How about the city of Chicago? Do you love the pretty sea of concrete walls of I-95, while your wood rots on your houses because of high property tax rates? Is that a valid question?

Can residents of America see what "Drill Baby Drill does for them"?

The Democrats actually pay these media consultants? Man, are they getting ripped off or what?

I know, lets build a bunch of new housing developments, require the easy credit applicants to bundle their property tax payments with the mortgage, and let Democrats raise the property rates so fast they make you homeless by jacking up your mortgage payments over night?

Democrats just love when you vote your color, don't they? Isn't social justice a grand scam?

Do Republicans do that?

Hey, lets give a shout out to the Democrat Party Suicide Center, suite Palin War Room, 1600 Pennyslvania Ave, Washington, DC!

Just passing this on. from alt.war.Vietnam,

Ed Freeman, Metal of Honor Recipient.

Drifter...

You're a 19 year old kid.

You're critically wounded and dying in the jungle in the Ia Drang Valley.

November 11, 1965.

LZ X-ray , Vietnam .

Your infantry unit is outnumbered 8-1 and the enemy fire is so intense, from 100 or 200 yards away, that your own Infantry Commander has ordered the MediVac helicopters to stop coming in.

You're lying there, listening to the enemy machine guns and you know you're not getting out.

Your family is 1/2 way around the world, 12,000 miles away, and you'll never see them again.

As the world starts to fade in and out, you know this is the day.

Then - over the machine gun noise - you faintly hear that sound of a helicopter.

You look up to see an unarmed Huey. But ... it doesn't seem real because no Medi-Vac markings are on it.

Ed Freeman is coming for you.

He's not Medi-Vac so it's not his job, but he's flying his Huey down into the machine gun fire anyway.

Even after the Medi-Vacs were ordered not to come.

He's coming anyway.

And he drops it in and sits there in the machine gun fire, as they load 2 or 3 of you on board.

Then he flies you up and out through the gunfire to the doctors and nurses.

And, he kept coming back!! 13 more times!!

He took about 30 of you and your buddies out who would never have gotten out.

Medal of Honor Recipient, Ed Freeman, died last Wednesday at the age of 80, in Boise , Idaho .

May God Rest His Soul.

I bet you didn't hear about this hero's passing, but we've sure seen a whole bunch, about Tiger Woods. . .

Medal of Honor Winner

Ed Freeman

Shame on the American media !!!

There was a place in Palatine called Ham Heaven, as part of a big electronics store. Receivers old and new, parts, books, tubes...racks upon racks of tubes...and of course a couple of tri-banders on masts out in the yard, and an A-D DX Ultra back there, as well. Every conceivable electronic device from early carbon gridleak resistors for A-K TRF's, to current LSIC. And everything in between.

I brought a lunch my second time in there.

They were moved out by the city some years ago, and sold the inventory to O'Hare Electronics. Must of which was discarded, or sold off to collectors. The staff at O'Hare didn't care much for vintage parts buyers and made it more difficult than it needed to be to find something.

Shame, too. I would have set up a direct deposit account.

LOL - indeed Peter I know what you mean, it sounds like the same place as R&L. I pray they never go out of business because not only do they carry everything imaginable but EVERY person in that store is so nice....just seems people at work nowadays just aren't like that.

They'll help you with anything or any question and do it with a smile.
Gotta ask, did you really bring your lunch the second time you went there? That's hilarious and only would a radio nut do something like that.

The following is the personal opinion of the author, who reserves the right to republish this piece for profit, which you may read at your own risk, without any legal liabilities to the author or anyone who may publish or share this article (which must include this disclaimer) for which you here by waive the ability to sue for any reason in whole or in part in or outside of a court of law, if you do not agree, the entire article is to be considered a work of fiction, since you apparently want to live in an imaginary world.

Snake oil, a mysterious substance (a placebo) that demonstrates the power of the mind to alter the physical appearance of the universe? Or that of God?

Isn't that what an intellectual would say? A farmer says, dang college rug rat at it again, says 26 words to describe "faith"?

Let me guess, another dang college fruit cake is going to suggest we should start to organize our ideas based on the patterns of spaghetti? Duhhhh, I would remember more things if my mind organized things to look like the inside of television set, all those wires, tubes and heavy metal lead plates would help me understand things better?

I wonder who relies a little too heavily on that method?

Hmmmmm, can't think of any one...I mean, can you imagine, the audacity of hope when one some fellow invented the paragraph inside the written language of a book. But of course that is how you can distinguish between the King James Bible, The Book of Mormon, and The Koran?

One of those three books does what more than the others?

Monkey see, monkey do, huh? Or is one of them a magnet that can occupy and teach at the same time?

Evolution -- avoiding the mental pictures of others?

LOL.

Speaking of spaghetti, why pass 2,000 page acts of legislation if you don't plan on loosing and making it harder for your successor to function? Is that strategy, or just an another example of why the public should not trust your ability to govern by leaving ticking time bombs that other political parties will have to spend time diffusing?

Dang college rug rat, speaking in three dimensions, what's wrong with dat boy?

(and if you ain't got no answer, ain't nothing wrong?)

Good day!

Oh sure, history if chock full of intellectuals who lost their fortunes spending other people's money, huh?

Like they don't see this coming?

Freedom isn't free, and it can't be bought.

Your post is a bunch of media physcho babble with no grounds in reality, addresses no concerns of the opposition, and is designed to censor the viewpoint of the opposition by the marginalizing the legitimate concerns of the people by reflecting the position that leaders in the Democrat party are choosing to stick their heads in the sand (or are told to by others).

You should drink some more coffee in the Palin War Room, the caffeine jitters will help keep you warm during that Global Al Gore Hoax thingy.

Good Day!

We LOVE YOU!

OMG. What a meal you are making of this simple problem!

If all you want to do is to bring a wire through an opening window, simply use insulated wire of a diameter thin enough for the window to be closed on it without causing serious damage to the wire or the window.
The same goes for a ground wire.

Could the posters in rec.radio.shortwave have a serious word with young Gregg about his trolling in other newsgroups. We don't like the trolls any more than you do. I notice Gregg has signed a pact with our trolls so they don't infest rec.radio.shortwave. Maybe you could give him a hint about extending the pact to the rest of usenet, for HIS benefit as well as ours.

I know he's only a young impressionable fellow playing with the radio his Mommy bought him for Christmas but still, he needs to learn of his "responsibilities" when playing in an adult area. I suspect that like so many of today's youth, Gregg is being taught his rights but, sadly, they are omitting to mention his "OBLIGATIONS"!! How odd that he cannot see that, whilst exercising his supposed RIGHT, he is infringing upon the RIGHTS of others with his incessant trolling. It's a two way street! I trust this "insight" will happen as he matures and graduates to long pants.

Ah, the youth of today!

Boundless enthusiasm but absolutely no brains!

OK, for once I agree with you, freedom isn't free.

But you ultra-right wingers never thought you should pay a dime. You took tax cut after tax cut as your right. And as the debt increased every years you cheered. So if freedom isn't free, why aren't you

I've used this technique, myself. The reason I didn't mention it, is that it defeats the noise shielding benefit of the coax at precisely the point where noise becomes a problem: inside the building.

Computers, routers, printers in the room with the radio will leak noise into the radio's input at the breach of shield. Retaining shield integrity becomes a practical consideration.

The flat coaxial jumper is much simpler, and does what you recommend without breaking the shield, and while retaing characteristic impedance of the line. The connector still needs to be sealed with something like CoaxSeal for weatherproofing.

The other options, were just those. Options. For the purpose of demonstration that there is more than one way to fuck a water buffalo.

True, but it's a rented trailer house in Minnesota. How many QRM-producing devices will it contain? And the intention was to put up a crude long wire.

> The flat coaxial jumper is much simpler

Not simpler. However, as you say, it would help with keeping out QRM coming from within the trailer home. However, to really minimise interference, it might be best to use the 'remote feed' technique, with a 9:1 transformer (much discussed in this NG).

Unless the coax is a match for the impedance of the antenna (which it almost certainly is not), the discontinuity caused by a nip won't matter at all (provided you don't actually short the coax). Even if it is a match, it will still be unlikely to be noticed until you get to VHF.

Yes, you certainly don't want water in your coax. A generous application of ordinary contact adhesive (allowed to dry) followed by wrapping with self-amalgamating tape works well.

Society in every state is a blessing, but government, even in its best stage, is but a necessary evil; in its worst state an intolerable one.
--Thomas Paine

That government is best which governs least.
--Thomas Paine

To say that any people are not fit for freedom, is to make poverty their choice, and to say they had rather be loaded with taxes than not. Every time you cut programs, you take away a person who has a vested interest in high taxes and you put him on the tax rolls and make him a taxpayer. A farmer on subsidies is part welfare bum, whereas a free-market farmer is a small businessman with a gun.
--Grover Norquist

I am favor of cutting taxes under any circumstances and for any excuse, for any reason, whenever it's possible.
--Milton Friedman

I am opposed to any individual taxes until we eliminate all of the unconstitutional agencies, and I suspect we wouldn't need a tax after that.
--Michael Badnarik

It was the king's army, the king's people, the king's taxes; and he who questioned the propriety of the royal prerogative of taking from his people without return or accounting, was reckoned, and felt himself to be, a criminal, guilty of the highest crime of disloyalty.
--John Buchanan Robinson

Rulers do not reduce taxes to be kind. Expediency and greed create high taxation, and normally it takes an impending catastrophe to bring it down.
--Charles Adams

The legal right of a taxpayer to decrease the amount of what otherwise would be his taxes, or altogether avoid them, by means which the law permits, cannot be doubted.
--George Sutherland

The only difference between death and taxes is that death doesn't get worse every time Congress meets.
--Will Rogers

Unquestionably, there is progress. The average American now pays out twice as much in taxes as he formerly got in wages.
--H. L. Mencken

We have a system that increasingly taxes work and subsidizes nonwork.
--Milton Friedman

We're going to look awfully stupid if we give income tax relief to people who do not pay income taxes.
--Joe Scarborough

What I want to do is create more taxpayers, not more taxes.
--Geoff Davis

What the Democrats don't seem to understand is that higher taxes mean fewer American jobs and less American production.
--Lynn Westmoreland

You don't pay taxes - they take taxes.
--Chris Rock

You know, the Democrats want to balance the budget by raising spending and raising taxes. The Soviet Union had a balanced budget.

I have a couple of old CB antennas with the SO239 connectors if you want them you can have them for shipping costs, but they are not magnetic , they clip in the rain gutters.

Thanks to all for the input. I generally feel that eBay is no longer the less expensive way to go, as a rule. It does appear, however, that this time is the exception. I'll look again in a day or three and see if I missed anything but it appears that the best deal is a Buy-It-Now.

Wow... people are so gullible...

Freeman died in 2008 yet every time an African American is in the news this sham story somehow circulates with a different ending to suit the day's . Freeman received the Medal of Honor in 2001.

IMO... the real disrespect of the man is in the twisting of his story to attack a race and to advance a political agenda.

He was a brave man... the people who lie about him to serve their own purposes are cowards.

Hey guys-
Complete & total SW rookie here. Today I was given a rarely-used GE shortwave radio model 7-2990A today from a neighbor who was cleaning out his mother-in-law's house to sell. It's in perfect shape and I'm excited to have it.

I know nothing about this radio, or how to operate it, or SW at all. I'm all over the www reading about SW in general, but I would love to get a copy (or a PDF?) of the original manual so I can figure out the knobs, etc. Would also love to know more about this radio's shortfalls, things to improve, etc.

I'm in SoCal. You can reach me directly (probably the best way) at:
forsaleinfl at aol dot com

Thanks for any info/tips/advice!

Apparently from what I have read, http://www.eham.net/reviews/detail/6751

You have yourself a fine reciever. From what this link says - that radio is basically a Panasonic - a sibling of.
That's cool that it has a blue LCD - I have a radio that is somewhat similar in looks to yours that my Mom gave to me which was my first multi-band radio.

From that link it appears there is only one drawback to the receiver but it says that it doesn't affect the radios performance.
Good job and have fun with your radio.

I see Peter hasn't responded yet but you can google that term. I forget off hand but I remember seeing the difference on Diners-Drive Inns- and Dives (one of my favorite shows.) I know this much, without ever having the treat of eating one -- that they are killer - there's no way that they can be bad IMO.

There are some great food vendors in the Downtown area of Cincinnati that sell nothing but dogs, one of them had a sign that had "Chicago Dogs" - and hotdogs from other areas.

The difference between some schedules and mine:

while some "hourly" list will say

The K7RA Solar Update

Recent sunspot activity is increasing, and the numbers bear this out. The average daily sunspot number for 2009 was 5 and the average for 2008 was 4.7. There's not much difference in those numbers, but those are for calendar years; the trend toward the end of 2009 was increasing sunspot activity. The average daily sunspot numbers for 1999-2009 were 136.3, 173, 170.3, 176.6, 109.2, 68.6, 48.9, 26.1, 12.8, 4.7 and 5. On Wednesday of this week, the sunspot number was 0, but it rose to 15 on Thursday with the appearance of new sunspot group 1040. Coming this weekend, sunspot groups 1036 and 1038 are due to return, although we don't know yet if they are still powerful enough to be classed as sunspots. Sunspot numbers for December 31-January 6 were 16, 16, 22, 20, 15, 13 and 0, with a mean of 14.6. The 10.7 cm flux was 79.9, 75.2, 78, 76.4, 73, 76.8 and 77.3, with a mean of 76.7. The estimated planetary A indices were 1, 1, 0, 3, 2, 1 and 1, with a mean of 1.3. The estimated mid-latitude A indices were 0, 2, 1, 3, 1, 1 and 0, with a mean of 1.1.

A few years ago, we began recording a moving average of daily sunspot numbers based on three calendar months in order to help us spot a sunspot cycle bottom, thinking that this would perhaps give us a more immediate indication than smoothed sunspot numbers, which use a whole year of data. Because we now have all of the sunspot numbers for December, we can calculate the three month average centered on November 2009 -- 10.16 -- which is the highest it has been since August 2007 when it was 10.17. We will know the average centered on December at the end of January.

Over the past couple of years, it looked like the moving average bottomed out several times. In late 2007, it appeared we hit bottom when the three-month average centered on October dropped to 3. Then the average rose and was in the range of 8.23 to 8.89, centered on December 2007-April 2008. The average then declined again, hitting 1.1 in August 2008. In September-November, it moved to 2.5, 4.52 and 4.39, then declined to a new minimum of 1.5 in March, 2009. From there it rose, stalled and rose dramatically when from April through November 2009 it was 2.01, 4.23, 5.2, 4, 4, 4.64, 7.1 and 10.163. The average daily sunspot number for just the month of December was 15.7, which is a good trend -- 5.54 points higher than the 3-month average.

The latest prediction is for geomagnetic conditions to remain quiet, with the anticipated planetary A index at 5. But looking at recent predictions from USAF/NOAA, that value is probably a maximum, since they have predicted that value almost every day for months, and actual numbers were better (lower). Check the table and note that the planetary

A index hasn't gone as high as 5; as of Friday morning, the last time it rose to 4 was December 14. The same prediction shows solar flux at 79 for today (January 8), 80 on January 9-10, 82 on January 11, 84 on January 12 and 86 for January 13-15.

Regarding recent conditions, last week, Jeff Hartley, N8II, of Shepherdstown, West Virginia, said in a New Year's Eve e-mail that conditions seemed poorer on the higher bands (17 meters and up) than the solar activity would suggest. But then Jeff saw better conditions on lower frequencies: "Last night, the 30th was exceptional on 30, 80 and 160. Several loud longpath JAs were worked on 30 meters; I tried 20 meters longpath to no avail around 2320UTC. Then signals from northern EU and other EU were booming in on 160 from 0020-0130 UTC and I caught TF3SG on SSB. All of the EUs heard on 80 at the same time were loud, and 4S7NE was about S6-7 on 80 CW around 0120 UTC near his sunrise, attracting a crowd."

Last week, we had an interesting email exchange with Jerry Spring, VE6CNU, of Calgary, Alberta. Carl Luetzelschwab, K9LA, commented on them when I passed Jerry's e-mail on to him. Jerry thinks that HF conditions are poorer than expected, given the solar activity. He feels that conditions have not improved, and wonders if there needs to be a certain threshold of activity, enough to "kick-start" the F layers of the ionosphere.

Carl's comment was that we really haven't seen much sunspot activity, enough to raise the MUF (Maximum Usable Frequency). Carl analyzed ionosonde data from Wallops Island in Virginia from last August and attached a graph representing the rise and fall of MUF from day to day. He wrote, "It shows the day-to-day variation of the F2 region MUF over the Wallops Island ionosonde, assuming it's the midpoint of a 3000 km hop. Note that the MUF varies from a low of 11.6 MHz to a high of 21.5 MHz -- and to reiterate, this is with zero sunspots and no change in solar flux. Thus, there are other factors that ultimately determine the ionization -- and these are geomagnetic field activity and events in the lower atmosphere coupling up to the ionosphere. Surprisingly, the day-to-day variation of the F2 region is more due to these two factors than a small change in sunspots or solar flux. In fact, these two factors generally mask any small increase in sunspots and solar flux." Carl emphasized that only when the sunspot activity rises significantly will we see any long term improvements. When we notice an improvement in propagation, it may be due to other factors, including seasonal changes.

Don't miss Carl's personal Web site, a great resource devoted to propagation. He writes the excellent monthly propagation column for WorldRadio Online, with a new issue on the 20th of each month. Note on that page that there is a link on the left to back issues, beginning with February 2009.

Tom Russell, N4KG, of Harvest, Alabama, lives for 160 and 80 meters. He has an impressive array of antenna arrays at his place in the woods west of Huntsville, including large ground plane antennas for 80 and 160, an inverted-L for 160 and dipoles on 80. In fact, I was just admiring his antennas, not from his photos, but publicly available aerial images. I went to a search engine and clicked on "Maps," then entered his address and ZIP code from his license record. He is actually west of the location that you land on, at the end of a road. Click on "Aerial," then "Bird's Eye" -- note you can click on vantage points from four directions and can also zoom in. Look for multiple telltale Yagis in the woods. Tom tells us that November and December had some fantastic 160 and 80 meter conditions and he sent a long log listing of contacts in Russia and Northern Europe from December 11-13, most from December 12 and most on 160 meters. He notes more shortpath UA9s in two months than in 30 years operating in Northern Alabama. He says that "these Russian openings are not daily events by any means, but there have been (and continue to be) several very good nights (and mornings). My friend N4NO -- he holds a PhD in electromagnetic field theory and communications and is a very active DXer -- suggested that these openings are the result of historically low geomagnetic activity, a 'seminal event.'"

Among his contacts over those days on 160 (mostly CW) were 4O3A, EI2CN, ES2DJ, LA5HE, LY2J, LZ1ANA (S9++), RA0ALM (Zone 18, just north of JT), RA1AOB, RA3DOX, RA4LW, RU3DX, RU4SU, RX4HZ, RX9FM (Zone 17), SM6CPY, TF3SG, TF4M, UA3BS, UA3TCJ, UA4CC, UA4HBW, UA9MA, UR0MC, UW7CN, UX1UA, UY0ZG, YL2SM and ZC4VJ. On 80 meters he worked RA4CC, RK3ER, SM4OTI (S9+), TF3SG (S9 SSB), UA3TCJ, UA4HBW, UA4LY, UA9FMZ, UA9YAB, UU9DX and UX4UU. At the end of it all, his amplifier died on December 13 and then he worked RA0ALM, RA1AOB and UA3TCJ barefoot.

Tom reported that on January 2 "RZ0AF has been camping out on 160 and 80 meters (3521), morning and night, around 1200 to 1300 UTC and Friday evening from 2300-0400 UTC, well past his sunrise which is around 0200 UTC. He is located in Krasnoyarsk, about 300 miles north of the northwest border with Mongolia, in Zone 18. Is there a Big 160 meter station in UA0Y (Zone 23 -- my last needed Zone on 160 meters)? UA9MA has also been active on 160 and 80 meters from Omsk in the southeastern corner of Zone 17, peaking 569 on 3524 at 0342 UTC last night (January 2 in GMT). UA9KAA was running NA on 1823 (up 1) from 0500-0600 UTC, peaking 569 at times. He is in Northern Siberia in Zone 17. RX4HZ was 599+ on 40 meters with a little help from his 4L Quad at 30 meters high at 0600 UTC."

The STEREO Mission has been a tremendous asset. This year, it is expected to move into a position that allows us to see magnetic activity on the whole Sun. This weekend, on January 9 at 0836 UTC, the two satellites will be in position to see 87 percent of the Sun, with the invisible spot on the far side exactly 13 percent. It will achieve 88 percent coverage (with 12 percent invisible) at 0611 UTC on February 25, 2010.

Amateur solar observer Tad Cook, K7RA, of Seattle, Washington, provides this weekly report on solar conditions and propagation. This report also is available via W1AW every Friday, and an abbreviated version appears each Thursday in The ARRL Letter. Check here for a detailed explanation of the numbers used in this bulletin. An archive of past propagation bulletins can be found here. You can find monthly propagation charts between four USA regions and 12 overseas locations here. Readers may contact the author via e-mail.

Utility grade wimmins and dudes workin at the NAPA auto parts store on Gibralta Drive here in Jackson,Mississippi too.
For example,,, Last Wednesday I was in that F...ed up NAPA store on Gibralta Drive looking for a rebuild kit for my Carter Thermo Quad carburetor.(my 1983 Dodge van) Those MOFOs wouldn't let me use their restroom.I drink a LOT of coffee and in cold weather, that coffee runs right through me! It was sort of an ''emergency'' to say the least! I left the store, I went to a nearby Kentucky Fried Chicken place (Thank You, Kentucky) so I could relieve meself.
Take my Advice,,,, Stay away from any and all NAPA auto parts stores!!!
F..K NAPA!!!!!!!!!

I told those NAPA A..holes I will Tell the World about NAPA!!!!!!!

The following is the personal opinion of the author, who reserves the right to republish this piece for profit, which you may read at your own risk, without any legal liabilities to the author or anyone who may publish or share this article (which must include this disclaimer) for which you here by waive the ability to sue for any reason in whole or in part in or outside of a court of law, if you do not agree, the entire article is to be considered a work of fiction, since you apparently want to live in an imaginary world.

After considering the probable outcome of Democrat current spending patterns and policies, I've come to this conclusion about their "big tent"? After all, poverty is the only sign that they have achieved their goal of milking the last dime from politics? So what is their big tent for?

To put all the homeless people in after Barney Franks and Fat Cat Democrats make cozy deals with bankers to make sure that America fails? They also intend to make it a "sustainable" big tent, with no air conditioning, and no heating? In fact, Sen Reid has his meetings in private so he can make plantation jokes about how Negroes will be treated by Indian Tribe Shaman after the insurance companies go belly up, and we can give "Indians the wealth" (According to Van Jones?)?

In fact, ABC News tonight was giving a tour of what children will be living like in the United States in the year 2013 if you keep believing the Democrats?

I know what your thinking, did he fire only one message today, or several, but being that this the most powerful keyboard in the world, and will send liberals running around in circles screaming and attempting to claw their eye balls out, and force jittery interns in the Palin War Room to consume gallons of coffee so they have an excuse why they pee their pants when they hear the voice of Rush Limbaugh, you've got to ask yourself a question.....

Do you feel lucky?

Reads like a load of bull to me. Unless you received a list of supposed transgressions and the manner in which each was in violation of said charter, I wouldn't take it too seriously.

There are a lot of posters one cannot trust on usenet. Recent trolling activities on RRS are indicative of this.

It's just trolls acting like.. well... trolls.

A groups charter is not a binding document. Even if it were, the ability to enforce at ISP level or above is sadly lacking.

FREEMAN, ED W.

By direction of the President, under the Joint Resolution of Congress approved 12 July 1862 (amended by act of 3 March 1863, act of 9 July 1918, and act of 25 July 1963), the Medal of Honor for conspicuous gallantry and intrepidity at the risk of life above and beyond the call of duty, is awarded by the Department of the Army in the name of Congress to:

CAPTAIN ED W. FREEMAN
UNITED STATES ARMY

Captain Ed W. Freeman, United States Army, of Boise, Idaho, who distinguished himself by numerous acts of conspicuous gallantry and extraordinary intrepidity on 14 November 1965 while serving with Company A, 229th Assault Helicopter Battalion, 1st Cavalry Division (Airmobile). As a flight leader and second in command of a 16-helicopter lift unit, he supported a heavily engaged American infantry battalion at Landing Zone X-Ray in the Ia Drang Valley, Republic of Vietnam. The unit was almost out of ammunition after taking some of the heaviest casualties of the war, fighting off a relentless attack from a highly motivated, heavily armed enemy force. When the infantry commander closed the helicopter landing zone because of intense direct enemy fire, Captain Freeman risked his life by flying his unarmed helicopter through a gauntlet of enemy fire time after time, delivering critically needed ammunition, water, and medical supplies to the besieged battalion. His flights, by providing the engaged units with supplies of ammunition critical to their survival, directly affected the battle's outcome. Without them the units would almost surely have gone down, with much greater loss of life. After medical evacuation helicopters refused to fly into the area because of intense enemy fire, Captain Freeman flew 14 separate rescue missions, providing lifesaving evacuation of an estimated 30 seriously wounded soldiers-some of whom would not have survived had he not acted. All flights were made into a small emergency landing zone within 100 to 200 meters of the defensive perimeter, where heavily committed units were perilously holding off the attacking elements. Captain Freeman's selfless acts of great valor and extraordinary perseverance were far above and beyond the call of duty or mission and set a superb example of leadership and courage for all of his peers. Captain Freeman's extraordinary heroism and devotion to duty are in keeping with the highest traditions of military service and reflect great credit upon himself, his unit, and the United States Army.

Hi, WGregT - Strongly recommend this website:

http://www.eibi.de.vu/

It has frequenty updated extensive lists by time and frequency of shortwave stations that can be heard, ranging from tint flea-powered stations in third world nations to powerhouses that blaze away in the US, China, Europe and elsewhere. Note that most stations are on frequencies that fall into distinct MHz "bands" -

3.6-4,
4.7-5.1,
5.8-6.2,
7.1 - 7.5,
9.3-10,
11.5 - 12.1, 13.5- 13.9
15-15.5, and 17.6-17.9 MHz. A few other bands too, typically hard to hear.

Usually the lower freqs are better at night, and then the higher freqs become more prominent during the day. The 7, 9, 11 and 15 MHz bands are generally excellent at sunrise and sunset too, and lingering good results can be had after those times, especially on 11 and 15 MHz.

Have fun!

College journalists should call and write Glenn Beck to ask the following questions?

Why watch hip twenty somethings who have different guests with pretty faces and long legs on the Red Eye show for Fox News when we can watch Glenn make jokes about a member of the Palin family suffering another round of spontaneous urges to have sex with total strangers (his voice is hoarse from smoking crack?).

You asked her permission to tell that joke, after all, conservatives are having such a great year, we can afford to alienate women who think such jokes are out of line? OK, you talk about the FED having the best year ever?

OMG! You must have the inside access thing with the White House going on where you scare the crap out of everybody so they buy gold? Let me ask you something Glenn, why did you leave out the percentage of increase in profits? Did they go from 30 billion to 52.2 billion in one year? What was the percentage gain?

And, don't you find it interesting Glenn, that your buddies in New York City, seemed to accomplish this during a time when Americans have never seen such low interest rates? Oh, you mean the profits were all TARP money? How do you make such record profits when the interest rates are so low?

Gee Glenn, can you see the smirk on my face while I just made a bad "joke"? Just what side are you really on Glenn?

Buy Gold Now, we'll confiscate it later?

Your wife is not taking golfing lessons is she, Glenn? She only wants to know how to only use the driver, and not the putter or the irons?

OMG, everyone will be hanging on the edge of their chairs, waiting for Glenn's response, he will of course ignore it, and give us more bad news the scare or manipulate your expectations, since you can't think by yourself? You see our physcho babble is more effective when your skull is full of mush?

When they say talk radio, they mean Rush Limbaugh, don't they?

One day Glenn Beck will learn that women is not his best subject? Bragging about going to Rome? LOL.

We should get this on tape, your assistants pulling your feet out of your mouth, or did David Letterman take over the Glenn Beck show?

Unbelievable, expensive dress suits make you look even worse with those kind of performances?

e) Any humor if used, is not intended to offend people, and may be designed to apply the principals of peer pressure through reverse examination to accomplish the communication of principals or ideas that consist of traditional or proposed social values that are proven to advance the common good, and are not meant to discredit, disparage or demean any person or entities in any professional or personal manner, by attempting to share through the eyes or opinion of the author, for which it is expected that you read at your own risk, with no liability held to the author or any third parties who may store, transfer, or forward this message to others, in the traditions of free speech, fair use, and to play a positive role in a society that believes that graphically depicting male homosexuals having sex, and other unusual sex acts is considered free speech or that the use of abortion to limit Negros, Latinos, and other races from "spreading the wealth around" as a "matter of privacy" (which the author does not condone).

f) The use of humor is a known ingredient in providing teachable moments, and to validate and even demonstrate artistic expressions that are not shared by others, as demonstrated by many valuable scientific observations that were scoffed at in the past, yet proven to be quite valid decades later, upon which the humor used in all electronic communications by the author are based, in the principals and traditions of free speech and pursuit of happiness, and may not be a representation of others, including God.

g) It is the opinion of the author that you respect people when you consider their views, by reflecting their thoughts or actions against your own, which may include use of language that conveys an emotional depth that is to be imagined, but not enacted through use of language that accurately, or inaccurately describes the situation, circumstance, or idea, which does not imply that any action occur other than the consideration of the thought, for which beyond the author has no control, or liability for the action of the reader as presented in all terms of this diclaimer, and may simply be the venting of emotions with the intent of no consequence by the author to an audience the author assumes will understand the message and intent, and wishes to hear those views.

h) Since all intellectual property, discussions and other communications this disclaimer applies to, either in written, or electronic form, subscribe to the terms described in paragraph (e) and (g) of this disclaimer, under no circumstances are any communications meant to violate the terms of any electronic harassment laws which include the word “harm”, for which the author understands to be limited to the definition of physical harm (not self inflicted mental harm) that requires immediate medical attention based solely or in part by the communications of the author, regardless of whether the author chooses to remain anonymous or not.

i) It is the intention and opinion of the author that History is full of individuals that are not harmed by criticism, and in fact such criticism can motivate and inspire them to prove their critics wrong. Based on this historical evidence, any alleged mental harm amounts to self inflicted injury not treatable by either medical or other professionals (despite the fact that many people live from the profits of lies through gradual illusion, without judicial interference), for which the author has no control over the mental development of any potential reader prior to the discovery or reading of the material for which this disclaimer applies, as evident by the necessity that speech is to be protected by law as determined by the founders of the United States of America, who, in the opinion of the author, wrote the legal framework, which was created by God, not slaves.

j) Additional use of automated anonymous page use tracking computer scripts (web page programs) or advertisements may be licensed by www.google.com, for bandwidth verification, or determination of potential advertisement opportunities subject to all other terms described in this disclaimer.

k) Advertisements that may appear are not necessarily endorsed by the author, either by admission, or by silence, nor are any electronic links that may transport the reader to other web pages, sites, or computers, and such links that may be provided for all or any of the following known or unknown purposes, but not limited to, informational, educational, and for the purpose of giving copy right credit referral information under the terms outlined in the conditions applied to the term "fair use" regarding conversations and print under US Copy Right Law, and for which the author assumes no liability for any particular use, fitness, or legality there of, any link, current, past, or future, which the reader should use at their sole risk, with no liability to the author, or any other party that may store, transmit, or otherwise facilitate use of the material for which this disclaimer applies.

l) It is the opinion of the author that effective 1 December, 2009, the proposed regulations from the FTC violate the first and fifth amendments of the United States Constitution, by infringing through economic affliction the burden without compensation all financial details concerning the communications of both free enterprise and opinion, and other civil rights such as "punishment must be fair" and not at the "discretion" of public officials, or that advertisers are assumed to be guilty of deception when United States law provides that you are innocent before being proven guilty, and are in fact demonstrations that there are current members of Congress that neither understand the spirit of the law our founding fathers made for the United States of America, or understand how they work in the opinion of the author, as of October 10th, 2009, especially in light of anticipated, and hopefully defeated, legislative taxes relating to energy use and the burden of publishers and advertisers to comply with the law and manage the environment, and in light that there are various consumer protection agencies, including the Better Business Bureau, which has free consumer information which preclude the use and need for excessive government regulation that burdens business with obstacles it may sense that it can not overcome without inflicting harm on the business plan or survival ability of the business to provide advertised, goods and or services.

m) Although the content provided meets or exceeds those new requirements to the knowledge of the author, and modifications to version 1.3 or 1.4 of this disclaimer is a result of the opinion of the author that “blogging” is another definition for a potentially infinite number or forms of electronic communication, as such the author will retroactively apply this version, 1.5 to all forms of previous communications, when and wherever possible, as time allows, in order to properly convey the intention of the author and to demonstrate an enthusiasm to comply with the law.

n) Use of this disclaimer for either personal or professional use is permitted with no restrictions. These restrictions or disclaimers do not prohibit the author from pursuing or communicating in a truthful manner, or guarantee that the audience will understand all things as intended.

o) This disclaimer is meant to establish the intent of the author who may participate in message forums, or create other written or electronic forms of communication to comply with current law, and may be revoked without prior notice, due to circumstances beyond the author's control, changes in the law, or for any of the purposes, terms, or conditions that may be in effect or described by this disclaimer, or to changes in this disclaimer that the author may clarify in a revised version of this disclaimer.

p) This disclaimer is attached to this message, and retroactively applies to all previous forms of communication by the author, and is done so because there is no recognized central suppository of a public disclaimer recognized by the Government of the United States to the author, and as such, the legal imperative of the author is to apply this disclaimer to all manner of correspondence as the author seems fit or prudent, so that no misunderstandings occur, or to comply with past, current or future revisions of the law, due to any of, but not limited to, any or all of the terms, partial terms, or combination of

terms, of this disclaimer, which is derived from the freedom of speech, for it appears to the author that the zeal of lawmakers to take away free speech outweigh the providence of attaching this disclaimer to all correspondence for which this applies, and any inconvenience for which this presents, is the result of simply complying with the law, and not to inconvenience the reader.

And has it happened yet? Is it anywhere near happening? It's been about a year and a half already since that was said and, as such, it's kind of like been a dead issue for quite a while now. But only a Krypsis, you are mistaking the internet for something it is not.

There may have been responsibility at one time, but that has deteriorated to near zero in 2010. The most genteel of subjects now gets plastered with the verbal detritus of thousands of repressed two-year-olds who suddenly feel that they've been given a second chance to act out their infantile fantasies.

Gregg has done virtually nothing that millions of others, all old enough to know better, have done already. I'd say ignore him if he bothers you.

It has not been that way since early 1994, when the famous "armenian genocide" SPAM, followed by the green card SPAM, ruined the internet.

http://www.fact-index.com/s/se/serdar_argic.html

Of course it really started when an Israeli posted his notes from a sealed room during the first gulf war. (It eventually became a book by that title). He posted it to what he thought was a usenet group populated by friends, imagine his shock when it appeared on the front page of the Wall Street Journal.

Usenet had become front page news.

There are many stations working in AM in the band 3000-3210 Khz. The carriers are not too stable. On some frequencies there are several stations with simultaneous trafic, so I presume they are far from each other.
Language seems russian, not sure, and trafic is professionnal, rather strange for AM transmissions.
Does someone knows what service it is?

One other possibility is if you are certain it's Russian, could be a

If you don't understand humor when you see it, then you will need professional mental help if you think you can read the news group dedicated to a broadcaster who uses comedy for education? You might want to hop on a flight to Afghanistan, sounds like you would fit in real well there?

I see you misquoting the bible on this forum, and I am not going to stop you either, and I don't go to sleep worrying about ghosts ripping my eyeballs out of my sockets, or worms crawling into my ear drums to eat holes in my brain after I go to sleep at night, that would be kind of creepy, huh? Morphine May Help Traumatic Stress

By BENEDICT CAREY
Doctors have long hoped to discover a “morning-after pill” to blunt the often disabling emotional fallout from traumatic experiences. Now it appears that they have had one on hand all along: morphine.

In a large study of combat casualties in Iraq, Navy researchers reported Wednesday that prompt treatment with morphine cut in half the chances that troops would develop symptoms of post-traumatic stress later on. Other opiates are likely to have similar effects, experts said.

In previous work, researchers had found that larger doses of morphine given to children with severe burns also reduced post-traumatic symptoms, like flashbacks, depression and jumpiness. These symptoms have become lasting in about one in eight service members returning from Iraq.

The new study, appearing in The New England Journal of Medicine, supports the standard practice in settings like the battlefield and emergency rooms, where morphine is often used readily. But experts say it may have implications for the timing of treatment and for a wider variety of traumas, like those resulting from rape or muggings.

“This idea that medicine can be used in the wake of a trauma to diminish the risk of developing a significant psychiatric disorder is incredibly important,” said an expert who was not connected with the study, Dr. Glenn Saxe, a psychiatrist at Harvard Medical School and director of the Center for Refugee Trauma and Resilience at Children’s Hospital Boston who conducted the studies on burn patients. “If the findings hold up,” he said, “the implications are huge and go well beyond the military” — for example, to civilian hospitals, where victims of rape and other terrifying ordeals may benefit.

Dr. Saxe and other experts cautioned that any benefit must be stacked up against the drugs’ risks: they are habit-forming with repeated use, and can blur memories of events that can be life-changing.

From a long term observation and analysis point of view, it might seem that the days of constructing and selling traditional radio reception machinery for the purpose of pure pleasure are almost disappearing ... How sad! The last and few diehards,e.g. Eton did not bring any more S-AM into the market lately (which is still very much alive,despite all odds!) beside older models E1XM and G3. The once very famous and innovative (not anymore) Sony has , for some reason the tenacity to continue selling it's one and only current SW portable- 7600GR (great little sidekick); it still includes the sync detector,amazingly enough. The number 7600 must have some mysterious significance -it appears to bring good luck in Japan (at least for Sony).They have been using that model line for the last 27 years!!! Drake is not interested in HF at this time,after suddenly dropping the very decent 8-line. Both JRC and Icom have only astronomically-priced receivers for the super rich buyers,like ...emirs , kings and oligarhs. Our good old Harris RF is still here and has exceptional products (rf505,rf550 which I use occasionally) ,but the current models are either unaffordable or not available to the general public. Ten-Tec has very good RX-XXX products, somewhat more modestly priced than the three big aforementioned firms. What is Watkins - Johnson called today? DRS,I believe .They got sold several times lately. That's about it, folks.

Definitely Russian transmissions. Not regular broadcasters, though!
Does not sound like two amateurs either, it is not SSB.Strange frequencies as well. Russian pirates,since it is out of band. Bandwith is around 4KHz,can't be more-it sounds very distorted and difficult to

No, He didn't.

"Cast not you pearls before swine, lest the swine trample them underfoot" does not refer to jewels or gold, or money - but to the Gospel, itself.

Christ is referred to as 'the pearl of greatest price' - the greatest, most wonderful, and most lasting treasure than any man can ever possess, because to find that 'pearl' is to find everlasting life in heaven.

Those who have found peace with God through the Lord Jesus are instructed to tell others, in order that they might have the opportunity of escaping damnation too.

However, if those to whom they tell the gospel reject it, sneer at it, blaspheme and curse it - then Christians are instructed to go on their way and leave them alone - lest, by continually preaching at them, they end up metaphorically casting that precious pearl, Jesus, into a pig-sty to be trodden into the filth.

JRC are true radios. But, they no longer glow in the dark. NRD-5XX line was never designed to be a high end audio piece of equipment, it was just a cheaper version for the of their main products for the less mortal ... Like SW listeners and hams. Audio stages were deliberately made to have a fast roll-off above 8 KHz or so. IF filers are quite good, front end = very good. 545 is probably one of the prettiest and conveniently laid out rigs that hail from the Far East. The letter D stands for Dominator ! I respect JRC for what they are- no gimmicks.

The K3 has synchronous AM, effortlessly realized in DSP. You need a base receiver for $1,600, a wide filter for $100 and the General Coverage filter set. Run you abt $2k.

Is it, by chance, sideband selectable? Or would it be necessary to use a passband to (more or less) achieve one side or the other?

Just took a look-see. Mighty nice, would not need the transceiver section, but still...

Still did not see how the S-AM is implemented, if at all, since it seems to not be mentioned on the page. I understand that the 6 kHz AM filter is required for AM use, and hopefully that general coverage package would include a 4 kHz. It comes with a 2.7 kHz narrow, which is about as tight as I'd care to go on AM. I also did not see a passband control on the rig, so not sure how that function would work.

The reviews it gets on E-Ham are obviously glowing, so there must be something to it.

Thanks!

Bruce

It's a world class receiver. Nothing else comes close for the money.
There are crystal filters and DSP filters. All the detection and demodulating is done with DSP.

Well put....this is referring to the Gospels...not material possessions. To all who think poorly of the monetary contributions of the Catholic Church...you should really do your research. The Catholic Church (not the Pope, because it's not HIS money), gives so much money everyday to needy people that it's hard to document.

God Bless!

http://3950.net/2010/01/liberty-net-for-week-of-january-2-8/

THE FIRST SESSION of the weekly current events discussion Liberty Net on 75 meters was a big success and more thought-provoking than ever.

It looks like Net Control Station (NCS) W1WCR and company may well have the biggest year in the three-decade-plus history of the Net.

Here is a small sampling from the topics covered in this week's discussions, along with the time when they took place (from the beginning of the recording in hours and minutes):

ï¿½ There is no significant difference between Democrats and Republicans and the sooner Americans realize this the better. (33 minutes)

ï¿½ Are you looking for a new political party? Perhaps White Americans should consider the Black Panther Party -- substituting "White" for "Black" in their historic platform produces a most appealing document, proving that the desire for freedom and self-determination is universal. (39 minutes)

ï¿½ The economic crash and "bailout" is really the looting of America: It wasn't loans to low-income folks that crashed the economy. (45 minutes)

ï¿½ What we really have is finance capitalism for most of us and socialism for the super-rich. America can rightfully be called the "billionaire bailout society." (53 minutes)

ï¿½ As Somalians invade New England, Somalians in Denmark were involved in a terror attack on a Danish cartoonist who merely depicted Mohammad in one of his works. (57 minutes)

ï¿½ The suicide of France and Germany -- Muslim birthrates versus our birthrates. (1 hour 11 minutes)

ï¿½ Not wanting a US-style economic collapse, China has outlawed financial "derivatives." (1 hour 22 minutes)

ï¿½ The health care debate is rigged: the only choices we're offered are a criminal insurance cartel vs. the same criminal cartel with an equally-criminal Congress cut in on the action. (1 hour 35 minutes)

ï¿½ The greatest danger to our liberty is maintaining our current wars of aggression in the Middle East. (1 hour 54 minutes)

ï¿½ The "Underwear Bomber" is being used as a scare tactic -- blown way out of proportion -- to institute full body scans at airports. FOX News is using beautiful young women to promote the idea that we should prefer safety over privacy. After all, if a pretty young woman doesn't object to a full body scan, why should you? (2 hours 3 minutes)

ï¿½ Could full body scans -- which don't much enhance safety -- really be a way to prevent people from taking their personal assets out of the country, as America goes down to economic disaster? (2 hours 6 minutes)

ï¿½ Isn't it interesting that the Patriot Act and all of the bad legislation since 9/11/2001 have been focused on destroying our privacy --particularly our financial privacy -- and destroying the 4th Amendment? (2 hours 9 minutes)

ï¿½ Racial profiling at airports is an obvious way to stop Arab/Muslim terrorists while preserving maximum freedom and convenience for American travellers. (2 hours 11 minutes)

ï¿½ Does the elite eventually plan to restrict air and private automobile travel to the rich only, in the name of "Gaia"? (2 hours 15 minutes)

ï¿½ A Black rapist and killer in Shelby, NC was finally caught years after apparently raping and killing three elderly White women. This brings up the subject of the huge number of violent Black-on-White crimes: Ninety per cent. of interracial violent crime is Black-on-White, and there are over 2,500 such attacks every day -- including 100 rapes. (2 hours 39 minutes)

ï¿½ Is there a media effort to promote interracial sex and marriage? If so, the effort was dealt a blow by Tiger Woods' ghettoish behavior. (2 hours 52 minutes)

ï¿½ Are more toxic substances being added to cigarettes to make them "self-extinguishing"? (3 hours 12 minutes)

ï¿½ The capitalist/socialist conflict is as scripted and phony as are professional wrestling bouts. In reality, both sides are in collusion. (3 hours 22 minutes)

ï¿½ The most important right is the right to be left alone. (3 hours 52 minutes)

ï¿½ Will airline passengers soon be required to wear taser bracelets? Would you allow your wife or daughter to wear one? (4 hours 1 minute)

ï¿½ Countries (like the United States) with laws against killing or torturing their own dissidents are contracting out the work -- or "trading" it -- with the "intelligence" agencies of other countries. The U.S. is taking part, which could be the beginning of a shadow world police state. (4 hours 5 minutes)

ï¿½ The non-Whites in the United States overwhelmingly support the anti-freedom "change" agenda of Obama and, even if all immigration stopped tomorrow, their higher birthrates guarantee that European-Americans will never be able to use the ballot box to re-establish their traditional freedoms. (4 hours 29 minutes)

ï¿½ The Canadian who dared to walk across downtown Detroit at night -- and lived to tell about it. (4 hours 54 minutes)

ï¿½ Consider the idea of the "re-wilding" of Middle America -- the purposeful deindustrialization and emptying of non-elite-occupied areas of our country and returning them to prairie or forest. Is re-wilding a prelude to occupation by the probable new mortgage holders of that land, the Chinese? (5 hours 10 minutes)

And those aren't the only subjects -- there's much more worth listening to, and thinking about, every week on the Liberty Net.

Thanks to N2IRJ and his low-noise receiving and recording setup, those of us who can't listen on Saturday nights at 10PM Eastern can listen anytime -- or even download the file for listening on your personal mp3 player. Just click on the arrow to activate the streaming player, and then click anywhere on the progress bar to jump to any part of the recording. You can also right-click on the "download" link (which appears when you start the player) to save to your hard drive.

The recording is 5 hours 39 minutes long and about 116 MB in size. As usual, the recording starts a few minutes before the Net proper begins, showing that Net participants obtained the frequency legally. Check-ins begin at about the 13 minute mark, with discussions starting at around 33 minutes.

I'm not a program listener anyway, so as long as the SSB and RTTY modes are good, I'm all set. Probably the best sounding solid state receiver I had was the Kenwood R5000 I got from a friend who was getting out of the hobby and going into RC stuff. It was one of the EEB ones and had some other mods that some other place did. It sounded great, but I had lots of other radios and when I needed some cash, it was the one that went.

The best sounding one I have right now is an insanely modded Hammarlund HQ-100 that I got on Ebay for $58. It's got 2 extra tubes in it, a product detector and a crystal filter. If it was just a little more stable, it would be great for digital modes. SSB is tolerable, but it has to be touched up occasionally.

| Definitely Russian transmissions. Not regular broadcasters, though!

Harmonics or intermodulations are unlikely because of the long distance (if they are in Russia) and probably I would have received them on their regular frequencies.
They are operating every day for 5 days (I had never noticed them before but possibly they were there) and are received here evening and night. I feel it is not traffic such CB or amateur, but professional.

Thanks for the informations, and to Patrick too.

Are they definitely double sideband AM and not SSB with a carrier?

You are receiving this email as we have received complaints from the internet community that your computer has been involved in disruption incidents on USENET (Newsgroups) that is in violation of that group's charter.
Apparently there is one backstabber in this group that none of you here should trust! I post a humorous site intended to break up the monotony of the usual dribble not in any way related to the shortwave topic and this little puke, whoever it is, has the gall to complain to a service provider.
Many topics are discussed in this group, some way out of line. This will come back on you whoever you are.
Now, where exactly do I find the groups "charter"? 'Should be interesting to find just how many here follow those guidelines to a "T".

By Ralph Brandi, ralph@mtunp.att.com

Welcome to the rec.radio.shortwave newsgroup. This group was created late in 1989 after a suggestion by Richard Shapiro, in order for those of us who are interested in the hobby of monitoring radio communications to have a friendly place to exchange messages, tips, and opinions. If you are interested in this sort of hobby, then we think that you will be at home here.

This is a set of monthly postings put together to answer some of the more commonly asked basic questions about the hobby. There is a posting explaining some of the basics of shortwave (HF) radio, and one covering medium wave (also known as AM) and FM DXing. There is also one covering scanning the higher frequencies (VHF and up) that appears in the newsgroup rec.radio.scanner. If you find that you have other questions, either following up items mentioned here, or other questions, please post. There are a number of people here with varying degrees of expertise and experience who are more than willing to help.

We hope we've anticipated many of the questions the beginner will have. And so, without further ado....

o What is rec.radio.shortwave for?

As stated above this group was created for USENETers to have a place to discuss the radio monitoring hobby. This group is not moderated, however 'serious' arguments and any kind of flame wars are strongly discouraged. That is not to say that genuine disagreement and discussion of differing opinions is not welcome. We only ask that you keep the tone friendly, and in the spirit of international cooperation upon which the hobby is founded.

This group is intended to be a place where ANY radio monitoring topic can and should be discussed. We are happy to hear from posters who listen to any part of the radio or microwave spectrum, from DC to daylight. We discuss topics of almost any kind, ranging from (but not limited to) shortwave broadcasting, DXing small or distant shortwave stations, utility and teletype monitoring, military eavesdropping, station schedules, QSLing sw broadcasters, spectrum usage, equipment design and modifications, antennas, receiver reviews and recommendations, and many more.

Despite what the newsgroup name might imply, we definitely DO NOT limit discussions to shortwave only. Any radio-related topics are welcome.
People interested in scanning VHF frequencies may find that the rec.radio.scanner newsgroup more accurately reflects their interests, and people interested in pirate radio may want to check the alt.radio.pirate newsgroup, although this group seems to be more interested in building small FM transmitters than in hearing distant shortwave pirates.

For more in-depth answers to questions you may have, we direct your attention to the postings entitled "Welcome to rec.radio.shortwave (Shortwave)", and "Welcome to rec.radio.shortwave (AM/FM DXing)", depending on where your interests lie. Scanner enthusiasts are also encouraged to read Bob Parnass' excellent monthly FAQ postings on rec.radio.scanner.

FAQ, of course, stands for Frequently Asked Questions. It is considered good form to read the FAQ(s) for a newsgroup before posting to ensure that ones posting is appropriate. You can find FAQs for most newsgroups at ftp://rtfm.mit.edu/pub/ by anonymous ftp, or on WWW at http://www.cis.ohio-state.edu/hypertext/faq/usenet/FAQ-List.html . Look under the following URL for a list of all radio-related FAQs.

http://www.cis.ohio-state.edu/hypertext/faq/usenet/radio/top.html

P.S. For those of you without the patience to look in the appropriate place, the BBC World Service can be reached by e-mail at worldservice.letters@bbc.co.uk. This has become probably the single most frequently requested piece of information on rec.radio.shortwave.

The problem with rec.radio.shortwave is 95 percent of the postings here have nothing to do with shortwave radio in any manner. It's been a flaming and politics group for the past few years.

Maybe so, but after all the worthless off-topic shit that gets plastered all over this newsgroup, it's pretty petty and pathetic to pick on someone for posting some completely harmless humor. It isn't being responsibile - it's being persecutionist.

Probably the two most important reasons are

1) There are usually no "legitimate" stations, such as broadcast, military, ham, government, utility, etc., in the vicinity. Although there haven't been any HF pirate busts in recent memory, having a complaint about your station filed with the FCC by a legitimate station has always been the quickest way to get caught.

2) Pirate radio DXers camp out on those frequencies, so it's pretty likely that a pirate will be heard if he broadcasts there. This eliminates the need to make any sort of announcement about time and frequency when a pirate wants to go on the air. If the broadcast is on an obscure frequency, there is a good chance that no one will hear it, or, at least no one who is likely to post a log and ask for a QSL.

Well, this not pure traditional AM. And as far as I can discern it is not regular SSB either ! Is this DSB-AM with reduced or suppressed carrierier , or is this SSB plus+ a reduced carrier?
Signal is not very stable, modulation seems to jump up and down constantly. Need to switch to another agc setting,if possible. This last recording is much better than the first and second. May be, if I hear a longer transmission they will accidentally give away who the hell they are. Judging from one party being much, much louder the other fellow may be situated very far away. This is not your standard literary language,either. Lots of uncensored expressions. Frequencies are really baffling me. Still think it is an intermodulation product.
What receiver is being used?

Why the HQ-100 is not stable? Couldn't better oscillators be

I suppose it could be, but I don't know how to really do it. I can fix it, and have a couple times, but making changes to it is something I would need someone else to at least design. I could install anything ok though. There's no real point in doing it, as I have the 515, 525, a Kenwood TS-850, an allied SX-190, a totally dead Icom R71A that hopefully will come to life without too much struggle, and so the Hammarlund has two real uses, AM BC listening, and as a space heater, this room is cold this time of year.

I don't know if the K3 uses phasing selectable-sideband synchronous detection, or if it requires passband tuning to get a similar effect.

But one should greatly prefer the phasing method, since on AM or DSB signals it gives a 6 dB advantage over using IF filters, because using the phasing method with a sync detector cancels the _interference_ in the opposite sideband, but it does _not_ cancel the opposite sideband energy of the desired signal.

The reason is that the Q detector contains essentially no audio from the desired signal (the detector's locally generated carrier is locked at 90 degrees difference from the real or imputed transmitted carrier, putting the desired audio into a deep null), and therefore no cancellation of any part of the desired signal takes place.

It's too bad the Eton and Sony sync detectors don't provide the option of listening only to the Q channel output. That would provide the ability to literally listen to what was underneath any DSB/AM signal. Some amateur experimenters have done this with homebrew gear, allowing operation in the close vicinity of 500-kW broadcast invaders of the 40 meter band.

See the article "SSB Q-Channel Communications" for more details:

Two 32-bit digital signal processors provide true software-defined features, along with expansion memory to handle future signal processing tasks and operating modes. The operator will have full control over any operating situation, with 8-band receive and transmit EQ, stereo speaker/soundcard outputs, binaural effects, and advanced noise reduction. Also included is built-in PSK31, CW, and TTY decode/encode, so the operator can enjoy the excitement of data communications with or without a computer. The rigï¿½s rich I/O complement includes an isolated sound card interface, front/rear mic/phone jacks, dedicated serial I/O, and band data. An optional module provides transverter in/out and RX antenna in/out jacks. The latter allow the use of RX-only, in-line filters for extreme operating environments.

The receiver is an old transceiver Icom IC751.
I have added an interface that converts IF signal at 455 Khz down to 12 Khz then the 12 Khz signal is connected to my PC sound card (band pass is around 15-20 Khz).
I use Dream software for demodulating the signal. Dream was firstly intended to decode DRM but its last version can also handle AM, SSB, CW and FM.
In Dream one can adjust a filter to match the received signal. I choose the band pass for the best subjective audio. Dream records the demodulated

It is not DSB AM or SSB+carrier. It is real AM with the two side bands. Some stations have not a frequency shifted by the modulation. It looks like old TX with VFO pilot (not synthetized). QSB is probably the cause of carrier fading and modulation distorsion.

Some other samples but not good, the band is very noisy, transmissions are not very long (1mn max), with long pauses so it is difficult to monitor them:

| Well, this not pure traditional AM. And as far as I can discern
| it is not regular SSB either ! Is this DSB-AM with reduced or
| suppressed carrierier , or is this SSB plus+ a reduced carrier?
| Signal is not very stable, modulation seems to jump up and down

| hear a longer transmission they will accidentally give away who the
| hell they are. Judging from one party being much, much louder the
| other fellow may be situated very far away. This is not your standard
| literary language,either. Lots of uncensored expressions. Frequencies
| are really baffling me. Still think it is an intermodulation product.

The receiver is an old transceiver Icom IC751.
I have added an interface that converts IF signal at 455 Khz down to 12 Khz then the 12 Khz signal is connected to my PC sound card (band pass is around 15-20 Khz).
I use Dream software for demodulating the signal. Dream was firstly intended to decode DRM but its last version can also handle AM, SSB, CW and FM.
In Dream one can adjust a filter to match the received signal. I choose the band pass for the best subjective audio. Dream records the demodulated signal in .wav files.

After recording the russian stations, I used Adobe Audition for processing operations of noise reduction, clics removing and MP3 conversion.

By the way, if Congress was doing their job, we wouldn't need unions would we? I pay union dues -- I pay the salary of Congress. They want to set the boundaries for business, then either do it right, or get the hades of peanut butter out of the way, and don't make me get my white mop out either? I don't want to hear all this talking from people making all the problems, supporting SEIU and unions, and making this mess, I'm trying to clean it up with my mop using clean the clean water of common sense, conservatism, and the truth?

Mr. Clinton is still waiting for his coffee, what is taking so long? You know why we thought about suggesting Cuba and Venezula for Haiti refugees? Well, do you really want to import voodo economics? Shouldn't people that love dictators, go live with them? Or should we prevent failure world wide and in the United States?

Many, many years ago, here in Mississippi, there was a flat bed truck.On the bed of that truck was an Electric Chair, I kid you not!

They used to drive that old truck around to whichever cities and towns in Mississippi where they were going to Fry whichever murderer or murderers and they used to hook the wires up to one of those electric power poles and the Executioner guy would throw that switch,,,, ZAPPPP!!!

You can find a photo picture of that old Electric Chair Truck on the web.

The K3 AFX (audio effects) creates the illusion of added space, similar to stereo, and has user adjustable settings. The binaural mode is similar to binaural I-Q (please see March 99 QST)."

You're an idiot. (And I just knew you'd bite on that line.)

People are wrongly convicted in every nation, and some of them invariably die in prison.

No matter how they died, a dead body is just as dead; and they care not whether they were officially executed or just died in prison of some other cause.

If this was back 20+ years ago, I would say it could be some sort of high seas radiotelephone transmissions. Only one side of the conversation is heard in general. But, majority of them, (practically all) were in USB as a rule. The other party has almost always used another frequency. None of the offical radiotelephone transmissions were so brief. None of the official operators spoke with such a hurry. The s/n ratio is very poor. Power levels seem to be very low and transmitters don't sound stable enough for reliable communication . If it is not maritime traffic, it may be something different. Bootleggers, pirates, or traffickers of some sort probably. May be we can use D/F them,or establish some pattern .What time of day or night do they pop- up?

Will need lots of space heaters this year! They are called tube radios. Since you mentioned the SX-190, does your unit have any extra crystals for the SW bands coverage? Got two of them over the years and found the level of construction to be very decent. Not very typical of early japanese gadjets-many of them weren't built this well... Need more crystals,though.

I tried to get one back when the SX-190's were new, and always wanted one. They had a mint one at a local hamfest, it looked like it had just come out of the box, but the old guy wanted a totally insane price for it, so I started looking on Ebay and got mine for $65, plus shipping.

No extra crystals, and it's really pretty deaf on a couple bands, but is really hot on 9MHZ, to the point it overloads pretty badly. One of these days I will get into it again, and figure it out. Shouldn't be too hard, since 9MHZ works fine, so that limits the problem areas.

All it did was buzz when I got it, and barely pick up a BC station a couple miles from here. The big filter cap had leaked and eaten up the PC board under it, but it was still an easy fix, and I got 9MHZ working as soon as I replaced a couple of other caps that didn't look quite right, and I touched up a couple of bad looking solder joints, I'm not sure which fixed it. It's in very good shape cosmetically for an almost 40 year old radio. The bulbs were good in it too. The faceplate just needed a good wipe off with a damp rag, and I put the case into my dishwasher and it came out looking really good, just a few scratches on top. No rust at all, except a tiny bit on the bottom. The speaker is another thing, the cone is rotted out, and the case is badly rusted, it was in a plastic bag in the box and "sweated". I don't use it anyway, but I might look for another speaker one of these days.

Yes it sounds like transmissions in the 60's. Nevertheless I don't think they come from break in space-time :-) My location is possibly at 4000-8000 kms from these stations. This explains the weak signals.
Signals from russian ham stations are not much stronger here on 80 mtrs (but SBB modulation is much better and also 3.6 Mhz is less noisy).

I receive them weekdays and weekend every evening from around 17h-18h to 23h UTC (not tried later, time to sleep). It is probably not their full period

You can always use a device that will stop you blowing things up!
A simple diode. Connect it inline with the positive wire going to your plug, in series with the wire so that the stripe is nearest the plug. That will mean it will ONLY work if the device centre pin is positive. You can also use a bridge rectifier to auto-select the correct polarity. The should be built in to devices for a few pence but manufacturers want to sell spares.

I tried to get one back when the SX-190's were new, and always wanted one. They had a mint one at a local hamfest, it looked like it had just come out of the box, but the old guy wanted a totally insane price for it, so I started looking on Ebay and got mine for $65, plus shipping.

No extra crystals, and it's really pretty deaf on a couple bands, but is really hot on 9MHZ, to the point it overloads pretty badly. One of these days I will get into it again, and figure it out. Shouldn't be too hard, since 9MHZ works fine, so that limits the problem areas.

All it did was buzz when I got it, and barely pick up a BC station a couple miles from here. The big filter cap had leaked and eaten up the PC board under it, but it was still an easy fix, and I got 9MHZ working as soon as I replaced a couple of other caps that didn't look quite right, and I touched up a couple of bad looking solder joints, I'm not sure which fixed it. It's in very good shape cosmetically for an almost 40 year old radio. The bulbs were good in it too. The faceplate just needed a good wipe off with a damp rag, and I put the case into my dishwasher and it came out looking really good, just a few scratches on top. No rust at all, except a tiny bit on the bottom. The speaker is another thing, the cone is rotted out, and the case is badly rusted, it was in a plastic bag in the box and "sweated". I don't use it anyway, but I might look for another speaker one of these days.

Common misconception. Freedom actually is free. However, corporate welfare, unlimited government, no bid contracts, unnecessary bullshit wars, Exxon Mobil subsidies, forced healthcare payments, Elint Satellites and global snooping capabilities for multiple government agencies are hugely expensive. They're charging you through the nose for the cost of your own enslavement, constantly demanding more and acting magnanimous about it all every step of the way.

"The idea of government is to break your legs, give you a pair of crutches, parade you in front of a camera and proudly announce that "This man couldn't walk without us."

I've updated my hourly schedules....

The difference between some schedules and mine:

while some "hourly" list will say

11-15 9770khz tx in english

And will not repeat it in the hours following 1100UTC,

I will repeat this at every hour between 1100 and 1400, which makes every entry from 00 to 23 complete ...

11-15 9770khz tx in english

Gee, I'm glad you pointed that out to us. I wish I could help others out more, but since Congress has no clue what they are doing, and worries more about sending telescopes into outer space instead of solving the math of good economics, we have them promoting unions, when if they were doing their jobs, we would not need unions? If we had health credit plans, we would not need insurance plans, and we would increase the speed at which medical break throughs are made?

You see, my hero Andy Stern (?), my mentor, when Andy Stern goes after the Global Economy, You go after Andy Stern with a universal economy? See, that's choice and competition Andy, your failed New York City media empire run by Vallerie, and our budding conservative empire that will create a global world of prosperity through decentralized responsibility, reformation of communist governments, the elimination of any need for unions, through peace, and the education that combats dumb thinking?

Don't worry Andy, some voodo doctor in Haiti just wrote you a prescription to smoke some good stuff out of Obama's stash?

c) The views expressed by the author or website may or may not contain factual information, due to the use of sarcasm or parody. The views may or may not be complete, either by design, to pre-empt being called a liar even if telling the truth, or by error due to typographical, grammer, or other technical communication problems not realized or imagined, or the possibility of views based on false or missing information, or with the intention of being used for entertainment purposes only, and not as a definitive judgment on the actions, character, or reputation of an organization, individual, or groups of individuals, with the intent of communicating with a limited group of people, and not the general public, however no distribution restrictions apply for fair use purposes described by the US Copyright Office, if no other restrictions are present or communicated, with all commercial proceeds associated with the distribution of the content to remain the sole possession of the original author.

d) Any reference to copyrighted material is done in the spirit of fair use, to illustrate the context of a discussion regarding public events for reference purposes that adds to the conversation, for which that discussion constitutes a new and separate piece of intellectual property, for which the referenced copyrighted material can not convey by itself, and that the author reserves the right to retain any profits from the newly created intellectual property. This term also serves to promote the referenced copyrighted material, without necessarily endorsing the material for any particular fitness, use, or purpose, for which the purpose of fair use referral law was created for, through inclusion of a partial, but not whole, body of works that the copyright fair use reference applies, for which the intent of all terms of this disclaimer apply to that reference of a copyrighted work.

e) Any humor if used, is not intended to offend people, and may be designed to apply the principals of peer pressure through reverse examination to accomplish the communication of principals or ideas that consist of traditional or proposed social values that are proven to advance the common good, and are not meant to discredit, disparage or demean any person or entities in any professional or personal manner, by attempting to share through the eyes or opinion of the author, for which it is expected that you read at your own risk, with no liability held to the author or any third parties who may store, transfer, or forward this message to others, in the traditions of free speech, fair use, and to play a positive role in a society that believes that graphically depicting male homosexuals having sex, and other unusual sex acts is considered free speech or that the use of abortion to limit Negros, Latinos, and other races from "spreading the wealth around" as a "matter of privacy" (which the author does not condone).

f) The use of humor is a known ingredient in providing teachable moments, and to validate and even demonstrate artistic expressions that are not shared by others, as demonstrated by many valuable scientific observations that were scoffed at in the past, yet proven to be quite valid decades later, upon which the humor used in all electronic communications by the author are based, in the principals and traditions of free speech and pursuit of happiness, and may not be a representation of others, including God.

g) It is the opinion of the author that you respect people when you consider their views, by reflecting their thoughts or actions against your own, which may include use of language that conveys an emotional depth that is to be imagined, but not enacted through use of language that accurately, or inaccurately describes the situation, circumstance, or idea, which does not imply that any action occur other than the consideration of the thought, for which beyond the author has no control, or liability for the action of the reader as presented in all terms of this diclaimer, and may simply be the venting of emotions with the intent of no consequence by the author to an audience the author assumes will understand the message and intent, and wishes to hear those views.

h) Since all intellectual property, discussions and other communications this disclaimer applies to, either in written, or electronic form, subscribe to the terms described in paragraph (e) and (g) of this disclaimer, under no circumstances are any communications meant to violate the terms of any electronic harassment laws which include the word “harm”, for which the author understands to be limited to the definition of physical harm (not self inflicted mental harm) that requires immediate medical attention based solely or in part by the communications of the author, regardless of whether the author chooses to remain anonymous or not.

i) It is the intention and opinion of the author that History is full of individuals that are not harmed by criticism, and in fact such criticism can motivate and inspire them to prove their critics wrong. Based on this historical evidence, any alleged mental harm amounts to self inflicted injury not treatable by either medical or other professionals (despite the fact that many people live from the profits of lies through gradual illusion, without judicial interference), for which the author has no control over the mental development of any potential reader prior to the discovery or reading of the material for which this disclaimer applies, as evident by the necessity that speech is to be protected by law as determined by the founders of the United States of America, who, in the opinion of the author, wrote the legal framework, which was created by God, not slaves.

j) Additional use of automated anonymous page use tracking computer scripts (web page programs) or advertisements may be licensed by www.google.com, for bandwidth verification, or determination of potential advertisement opportunities subject to all other terms described in this disclaimer.

k) Advertisements that may appear are not necessarily endorsed by the author, either by admission, or by silence, nor are any electronic links that may transport the reader to other web pages, sites, or computers, and such links that may be provided for all or any of the following known or unknown purposes, but not limited to, informational, educational, and for the purpose of giving copy right credit referral information under the terms outlined in the conditions applied to the term "fair use" regarding conversations and print under US Copy Right Law, and for which the author assumes no liability for any particular use, fitness, or legality there of, any link, current, past, or future, which the reader should use at their sole risk, with no liability to the author, or any other party that may store, transmit, or otherwise facilitate use of the material for which this disclaimer applies.

l) It is the opinion of the author that effective 1 December, 2009, the proposed regulations from the FTC violate the first and fifth amendments of the United States Constitution, by infringing through economic affliction the burden without compensation all financial details concerning the communications of both free enterprise and opinion, and other civil rights such as "punishment must be fair" and not at the "discretion" of public officials, or that advertisers are assumed to be guilty of deception when United States law provides that you are innocent before being proven guilty, and are in fact demonstrations that there are current members of Congress that neither understand the spirit of the law our founding fathers made for the United States of America, or understand how they work in the opinion of the author, as of October 10th, 2009, especially in light of anticipated, and hopefully defeated, legislative taxes relating to energy use and the burden of publishers and advertisers to comply with the law and manage the environment, and in light that there are various consumer protection agencies, including the Better Business Bureau, which has free consumer information which preclude the use and need for excessive government regulation that burdens business with obstacles it may sense that it can not overcome without inflicting harm on the business plan or survival ability of the business to provide advertised, goods and or services.

m) Although the content provided meets or exceeds those new requirements to the knowledge of the author, and modifications to version 1.3 or 1.4 of this disclaimer is a result of the opinion of the author that “blogging” is another definition for a potentially infinite number or forms of electronic communication, as such the author will retroactively apply this version, 1.5 to all forms of previous communications, when and wherever possible, as time allows, in order to properly convey the intention of the author and to demonstrate an enthusiasm to comply with the law.

n) Use of this disclaimer for either personal or professional use is permitted with no restrictions. These restrictions or disclaimers do not prohibit the author from pursuing or communicating in a truthful manner, or guarantee that the audience will understand all things as intended.

o) This disclaimer is meant to establish the intent of the author who may participate in message forums, or create other written or electronic forms of communication to comply with current law, and may be revoked without prior notice, due to circumstances beyond the author's control, changes in the law, or for any of the purposes, terms, or conditions that may be in effect or described by this disclaimer, or to changes in this disclaimer that the author may clarify in a revised version of this disclaimer.

p) This disclaimer is attached to this message, and retroactively applies to all previous forms of communication by the author, and is done so because there is no recognized central suppository of a public disclaimer recognized by the Government of the United States to the author, and as such, the legal imperative of the author is to apply this disclaimer to all manner of correspondence as the author seems fit or prudent, so that no misunderstandings occur, or to comply with past, current or future revisions of the law, due to any of, but not limited to, any or all of the terms, partial terms, or combination of terms, of this disclaimer, which is derived from the freedom of speech, for it appears to the author that the zeal of lawmakers to take away free speech outweigh the providence of attaching this disclaimer to all correspondence for which this applies, and any inconvenience for which this presents, is the result of simply complying with the law, and not to inconvenience the reader.

American Aid workers, or American Armed Forces Network Radio?

Don't thank Rush Limbaugh, after all, he just hates all the contant praise, he can't get anything done if he had to stop and take credit for everything?

Apparently it is sideband selectable. They say they have lots of room for DSP instructions in the radio. You can request features for future firmware upgrades. It's a cool company.

Yes,the 9MHz band seems to be peaked at the factory- both of mine behave almost exactly the same. Tried substituting random frequency crystals, but to get exactly into the proper bands it was made for is nearly impossible. Some of old CB crystals fit in perfectly into the spare slots,but don't produce the right frequencies.Those peaking caps are very touchy. Very fine radio, I think it has been special built for Allied/RS by either AOR or GRE. Iron rice boxes!

For some reason I still have doubts of using of 3MHz band as a reliable long distance 2-way choice . Ex navy /merchant marine personnel turned into pirates/smugglers, perhaps. Low budget = poor radio equipment. Lots of fowl language. Cannot be official business, as far as I am concerned. Their transmissions a way too short. 3 MHz band has not been used by anyone in years (on a regular basis). It was never stable even at night,and especially now, with such minimal sunspot number. The operating frequencies seem to be floating, this is not typical of any regular business I can think of. And they ALL transmit only in AM? Big mystery.

It's GRE that made it. I made the mistake of playing with the trimmers on the 11MHZ band and I had a hell of a time getting it back to where it was, and that was weaker than my other receivers with the 20DB attenuators on. I put a 3 db attenuator I had laying around in the coax line and 9MHZ was really good. I think this is a cap issue or maybe just a bad solder joint. At this age, that wouldn't shock me at all. In general though, almost all the joints looked very good, much better than my old Icom 735's soldering did, there were easily a hundred bad, or bad looking joints in it.

Ru$h limpballs... is the reason any american should consider suicide.

Embarrassment to humanity!

Can't believe this is the person who leads the republican't party. No wonder our nation is in trouble! Drug addled drop-outs like this are given large amounts of money and a voice on public airwaves. Too bad the rest of the world has to suffer from america's poor choice of leaders. About the only thing worst would be the female equivalent.

OMG! Not Fail-in Pailin?!

You mean the republican't pharmaceutical companies?
I think their goal is to make the rest of the free thinking american's as drug-addled and perverted as your GOP leader.

You must notice that republican'ts don't mind living in trailers or under bridges once they have their beer, beacon and drugs. Too bad they are allowed to vote.

Some ideas: isolated communities in small siberian towns, having only radio to communicate?
trappers in the north, isolated in their shack?
Even though some official services in Russia get poor funds from government,
I can't believe they would be endowed today with AM TRX. It is an old technology still in use only for broadcasting. It is unlikely that AM TRX have been bought after the fall of USSR. And during USSR, it was not possible to buy TRX so I presume that the today AM TRX have been provided in the past by the soviet government and are still in use today, and that theirs users would have not much money to replace them.

Really?

Then you'll have to explain why Steele has groveled to Limbaugh when the two have disagreed, rather than it being the other way around.
(And don't waste your time with the "propogandist puke" bullshit either, punk: I'm a life-long (and currently utterly disgusted) conservative.)

If the Republican Party hopes to regain at least an equal footing in American government, it's going to have to publically turn it's back on the far-right nutjob extremists and start leading by example.

Have you even been to Mexico before? I have, I visited Mexico for five days in June of 1992 when I was on vacation.I visited Matamoros, Reynosa, Rio Bravo, Gral Bravo, Monterey, Saltillo, (there is a Saltillo, Mississippi too) and some other towns.

Immediately!,,, as soon as you cross the Border from America into Mexico, you see how very much a third World Country Mexico is! Immediately!

I must Say, however, I like Gral Bravo,Mexico.

Depending on which old Rand McNally Road Atlas you look at, Gral Bravo is sometimes called/named, China, sometimes, Dr.Bravo.

Visit! http://www.VisitMississippi.org

524. President Obama smirks while delivering his "sitting on the sidelines" remark?

Sitting on the sidelines? Really? I could have sworn we've been jumping up and down, trying to grab his attention? Who do you think the protectors of the banks and insurance companies are, space aliens? They are the People of the United States of America Mr. Obama, and if you think you can declare class warfare on the citizens of this country, I would keep in mind, that the People of the United States of America have never lost a war?

Pretending to be against the people who "protect" the banks, while ignoring the chaos that Congress has caused by even creating a climate that allows people to even consider becoming members of a union? Community re-investment acts that give mortgages to people that should be in economy travel trailers , like they did after WWII? They did teach you some history in college I assume?

Millions of people have been marching on Washington all year long, and he wants to pretend we were sitting on the sidelines? You are smarter than that Mr. Obama, you are not a fool, and we are not protecting the banks, we are not protecting the insurance companies, we are protecting our civil rights, which happens to include being able to do more than go to the bathroom of our choosing? Civil rights happens to include the ability for rich people to not live in fear of their own government.

We are not protectors of the banks, or the insurance companies, we are protectors of something you sworn to defend. We are not going to sit on our hands in church any more while the Democrats try to re-invent something (the laws) already developed for our success over 200 years ago? We are going to sing praises of victory!

We feel the pain in Britain and France, and we pray for the liberation of those citizens, from the oppression of a media that is sometimes angry, and sometimes misguided? We pray for the liberation of minds across the world, to do good, and to receive the goodness and wealth that surrounds us.....

Amen.

Universal Legal Disclaimer for the Public Domain, Version 1.5, dated Nov 7th, 2009 (which supersedes all previous versions, to which this new version applies)

The writings, views, expressions expressed by this author to include all written and electronic forms of communication are subject to the following disclaimer and conditions:

a) The views expressed by this website and the author to include all electronic forms of communication are not representative of advertisers, or other third parties that may store and or transmit the messages from this private computer, which you may observe at your own risk, with no liability to the authors, or any party related to transmitting, storing, or any other aspect of the material involved, including email correspondence, which is not necessary to the function of the website, and may or may not be archived due to other limitations incorporated into the licensed email software in use at the time such as automated spam or virus filters. No personal information exchanged will be shared without your consent, or provided to third parties with out the express permission of the parties and, or, individuals concerned.

b) The author(s) of this content and those who may interact with it in various known or unknown electronic methods do not give permission to any third parties to share or provide private personal information who may operate as part of any type of electronic or written communications system, including all parties, who may technically intercept communications due to the nature of network conditions beyond both the author's legal and physical control, unless those communications represent violations of the law, upon which the author, and or web site will cooperate to pursue any legal remedies.

c) The views expressed by the author or website may or may not contain factual information, due to the use of sarcasm or parody. The views may or may not be complete, either by design, to pre-empt being called a liar even if telling the truth, or by error due to typographical, grammer, or other technical communication problems not realized or imagined, or the possibility of views based on false or missing information, or with the intention of being used for entertainment purposes only, and not as a definitive judgment on the actions, character, or reputation of an organization, individual, or groups of individuals, with the intent of communicating with a limited group of people, and not the general public, however no distribution restrictions apply for fair use purposes described by the US Copyright Office, if no other restrictions are present or communicated, with all commercial proceeds associated with the distribution of the content to remain the sole possession of the original author.

d) Any reference to copyrighted material is done in the spirit of fair use, to illustrate the context of a discussion regarding public events for reference purposes that adds to the conversation, for which that discussion constitutes a new and separate piece of intellectual property, for which the referenced copyrighted material can not convey by itself, and that the author reserves the right to retain any profits from the newly created intellectual property. This term also serves to promote the referenced copyrighted material, without necessarily endorsing the material for any particular fitness, use, or purpose, for which the purpose of fair use referral law was created for, through inclusion of a partial, but not whole, body of works that the copyright fair use reference applies, for which the intent of all terms of this disclaimer apply to that reference of a copyrighted work.

e) Any humor if used, is not intended to offend people, and may be designed to apply the principals of peer pressure through reverse examination to accomplish the communication of principals or ideas that consist of traditional or proposed social values that are proven to advance the common good, and are not meant to discredit, disparage or demean any person or entities in any professional or personal manner, by attempting to share through the eyes or opinion of the author, for which it is expected that you read at your own risk, with no liability held to the author or any third parties who may store, transfer, or forward this message to others, in the traditions of free speech, fair use, and to play a positive role in a society that believes that graphically depicting male homosexuals having sex, and other unusual sex acts is considered free speech or that the use of abortion to limit Negros, Latinos, and other races from "spreading the wealth around" as a "matter of privacy" (which the author does not condone).

f) The use of humor is a known ingredient in providing teachable moments, and to validate and even demonstrate artistic expressions that are not shared by others, as demonstrated by many valuable scientific observations that were scoffed at in the past, yet proven to be quite valid decades later, upon which the humor used in all electronic communications by the author are based, in the principals and traditions of free speech and pursuit of happiness, and may not be a representation of others, including God.

g) It is the opinion of the author that you respect people when you consider their views, by reflecting their thoughts or actions against your own, which may include use of language that conveys an emotional depth that is to be imagined, but not enacted through use of language that accurately, or inaccurately describes the situation, circumstance, or idea, which does not imply that any action occur other than the consideration of the thought, for which beyond the author has no control, or liability for the action of the reader as presented in all terms of this diclaimer, and may simply be the venting of emotions with the intent of no consequence by the author to an audience the author assumes will understand the message and intent, and wishes to hear those views.

h) Since all intellectual property, discussions and other communications this disclaimer applies to, either in written, or electronic form, subscribe to the terms described in paragraph (e) and (g) of this disclaimer, under no circumstances are any communications meant to violate the terms of any electronic harassment laws which include the word “harm”, for which the author understands to be limited to the definition of physical harm (not self inflicted mental harm) that requires immediate medical attention based solely or in part by the communications of the author, regardless of whether the author chooses to remain anonymous or not.

i) It is the intention and opinion of the author that History is full of individuals that are not harmed by criticism, and in fact such criticism can motivate and inspire them to prove their critics wrong. Based on this historical evidence, any alleged mental harm amounts to self inflicted injury not treatable by either medical or other professionals (despite the fact that many people live from the profits of lies through gradual illusion, without judicial interference), for which the author has no control over the mental development of any potential reader prior to the discovery or reading of the material for which this disclaimer applies, as evident by the necessity that speech is to be protected by law as determined by the founders of the United States of America, who, in the opinion of the author, wrote the legal framework, which was created by God, not slaves.

j) Additional use of automated anonymous page use tracking computer scripts (web page programs) or advertisements may be licensed by www.google.com, for bandwidth verification, or determination of potential advertisement opportunities subject to all other terms described in this disclaimer.

k) Advertisements that may appear are not necessarily endorsed by the author, either by admission, or by silence, nor are any electronic links that may transport the reader to other web pages, sites, or computers, and such links that may be provided for all or any of the following known or unknown purposes, but not limited to, informational, educational, and for the purpose of giving copy right credit referral information under the terms outlined in the conditions applied to the term "fair use" regarding conversations and print under US Copy Right Law, and for which the author assumes no liability for any particular use, fitness, or legality there of, any link, current, past, or future, which the reader should use at their sole risk, with no liability to the author, or any other party that may store, transmit, or otherwise facilitate use of the material for which this disclaimer applies.

l) It is the opinion of the author that effective 1 December, 2009, the proposed regulations from the FTC violate the first and fifth amendments of the United States Constitution, by infringing through economic affliction the burden without compensation all financial details concerning the communications of both free enterprise and opinion, and other civil rights such as "punishment must be fair" and not at the "discretion" of public officials, or that advertisers are assumed to be guilty of deception when United States law provides that you are innocent before being proven guilty, and are in fact demonstrations that there are current members of Congress that neither understand the spirit of the law our founding fathers made for the United States of America, or understand how they work in the opinion of the author, as of October 10th, 2009, especially in light of anticipated, and hopefully defeated, legislative taxes relating to energy use and the burden of publishers and advertisers to comply with the law and manage the environment, and in light that there are various consumer protection agencies, including the Better Business Bureau, which has free consumer information which preclude the use and need for excessive government regulation that burdens business with obstacles it may sense that it can not overcome without inflicting harm on the business plan or survival ability of the business to provide advertised, goods and or services.

m) Although the content provided meets or exceeds those new requirements to the knowledge of the author, and modifications to version 1.3 or 1.4 of this disclaimer is a result of the opinion of the author that “blogging” is another definition for a potentially infinite number or forms of electronic communication, as such the author will retroactively apply this version, 1.5 to all forms of previous communications, when and wherever possible, as time allows, in order to properly convey the intention of the author and to demonstrate an enthusiasm to comply with the law.

n) Use of this disclaimer for either personal or professional use is permitted with no restrictions. These restrictions or disclaimers do not prohibit the author from pursuing or communicating in a truthful manner, or guarantee that the audience will understand all things as intended.

o) This disclaimer is meant to establish the intent of the author who may participate in message forums, or create other written or electronic forms of communication to comply with current law, and may be revoked without prior notice, due to circumstances beyond the author's control, changes in the law, or for any of the purposes, terms, or conditions that may be in effect or described by this disclaimer, or to changes in this disclaimer that the author may clarify in a revised version of this disclaimer.

p) This disclaimer is attached to this message, and retroactively applies to all previous forms of communication by the author, and is done so because there is no recognized central suppository of a public disclaimer recognized by the Government of the United States to the author, and as such, the legal imperative of the author is to apply this disclaimer to all manner of correspondence as the author seems fit or prudent, so that no misunderstandings occur, or to comply with past, current or future revisions of the law, due to any of, but not limited to, any or all of the terms, partial terms, or combination of terms, of this disclaimer, which is derived from the freedom of speech, for it appears to the author that the zeal of lawmakers to take away free speech outweigh the providence of attaching this disclaimer to all correspondence for which this applies, and any inconvenience for which this presents, is the result of simply complying with the law, and not to inconvenience the reader.

Quoting President Obama "You know what, we can take advantage of this crisis"....

"Because its going to be so bad, even though.....We helped initiate these policies....

there's gonna be a slight of hand here....because uhh, Democrats take responsibility?

So why was he smirking when he talked about the "protectors of the banks and insurance companies" (those that stand up for their civil rights) , just 15 seconds or so before then?

Slight of hand, or unbelievable these people applaud this stuff? Is he talking too fast, should we slow him down, or is he so comfortable talking his baseball politics, that he forgot who put him in the White House, the People of the United States? Since when did the phrase "swear to defend the Constitution of the United States include a phrase that requires a slight of hand that Congress should create chaos and policies that create crisis?

g) It is the opinion of the author that you respect people when you consider their views, by reflecting their thoughts or actions against your own, which may include use of language that conveys an emotional depth that is to be imagined, but not enacted through use of language that accurately, or inaccurately describes the situation, circumstance, or idea, which does not imply that any action occur other than the consideration of the thought, for which beyond the author has no control, or liability for the action of the reader as presented in all terms of this diclaimer, and may simply be the venting of emotions with the intent of no consequence by the author to an audience the author assumes will understand the message and intent, and wishes to hear those views.

h) Since all intellectual property, discussions and other communications this disclaimer applies to, either in written, or electronic form, subscribe to the terms described in paragraph (e) and (g) of this disclaimer, under no circumstances are any communications meant to violate the terms of any electronic harassment laws which include the word “harm”, for which the author understands to be limited to the definition of physical harm (not self inflicted mental harm) that requires immediate medical attention based solely or in part by the communications of the author, regardless of whether the author chooses to remain anonymous or not.

i) It is the intention and opinion of the author that History is full of individuals that are not harmed by criticism, and in fact such criticism can motivate and inspire them to prove their critics wrong. Based on this historical evidence, any alleged mental harm amounts to self inflicted injury not treatable by either medical or other professionals (despite the fact that many people live from the profits of lies through gradual illusion, without judicial interference), for which the author has no control over the mental development of any potential reader prior to the discovery or reading of the material for which this disclaimer applies, as evident by the necessity that speech is to be protected by law as determined by the founders of the United States of America, who, in the opinion of the author, wrote the legal framework, which was created by God, not slaves.

k) Advertisements that may appear are not necessarily endorsed by the author, either by admission, or by silence, nor are any electronic links that may transport the reader to other web pages, sites, or computers, and such links that may be provided for all or any of the following known or unknown purposes, but not limited to, informational, educational, and for the purpose of giving copy right credit referral information under the terms outlined in the conditions applied to the term "fair use" regarding conversations and print under US Copy Right Law, and for which the author assumes no liability for any particular use, fitness, or legality there of, any link, current, past, or future, which the reader should use at their sole risk, with no liability to the author, or any other party that may store, transmit, or otherwise facilitate use of the material for which this disclaimer applies.

l) It is the opinion of the author that effective 1 December, 2009, the proposed regulations from the FTC violate the first and fifth amendments of the United States Constitution, by infringing through economic affliction the burden without compensation all financial details concerning the communications of both free enterprise and opinion, and other civil rights such as "punishment must be fair" and not at the "discretion" of public officials, or that advertisers are assumed to be guilty of deception when United States law provides that you are innocent before being proven guilty, and are in fact demonstrations that there are current members of Congress that neither understand the spirit of the law our founding fathers made for the United States of America, or understand how they work in the opinion of the author, as of October 10th, 2009, especially in light of anticipated, and hopefully defeated, legislative taxes relating to energy use and the burden of publishers and advertisers to comply with the law and manage the environment, and in light that there are various consumer protection agencies, including the Better Business Bureau, which has free consumer information which preclude the use and need for excessive government regulation that burdens business with obstacles it may sense that it can not overcome without inflicting harm on the business plan or survival ability of the business to provide advertised, goods and or services.

m) Although the content provided meets or exceeds those new requirements to the knowledge of the author, and modifications to version 1.3 or 1.4 of this disclaimer is a result of the opinion of the author that “blogging” is another definition for a potentially infinite number or forms of electronic communication, as such the author will retroactively apply this version, 1.5 to all forms of previous communications, when and wherever possible, as time allows, in order to properly convey the intention of the author and to demonstrate an enthusiasm to comply with the law.

n) Use of this disclaimer for either personal or professional use is permitted with no restrictions. These restrictions or disclaimers do not prohibit the author from pursuing or communicating in a truthful manner, or guarantee that the audience will understand all things as intended.

o) This disclaimer is meant to establish the intent of the author who may participate in message forums, or create other written or electronic forms of communication to comply with current law, and may be revoked without prior notice, due to circumstances beyond the author's control, changes in the law, or for any of the purposes, terms, or conditions that may be in effect or described by this disclaimer, or to changes in this disclaimer that the author may clarify in a revised version of this disclaimer.

p) This disclaimer is attached to this message, and retroactively applies to all previous forms of communication by the author, and is done so because there is no recognized central suppository of a public disclaimer recognized by the Government of the United States to the author, and as such, the legal imperative of the author is to apply this disclaimer to all manner of correspondence as the author seems fit or prudent, so that no misunderstandings occur, or to comply with past, current or future revisions of the law, due to any of, but not limited to, any or all of the terms, partial terms, or combination of terms, of this disclaimer, which is derived from the freedom of speech, for it appears to the author that the zeal of lawmakers to take away free speech outweigh the providence of attaching this disclaimer to all correspondence for which this applies, and any inconvenience for which this presents, is the result of simply complying with the law, and not to inconvenience the reader.

526. President Obama gave testimony for his own impeachment tonight?

President Obama said in his speech 01/17/2010 that Democrats are going to make the "hard choices"?

That makes me think, you Republicans, hey, never mind going to the back of the bus, you get off the bus and start walking? Yes, those decisions are just so "hard" to make, because they paint Democrats as having lost their marbles? But we know better, they are not fools, they are doing this on purpose? We can't trust Americans with these decisions, only Democrats can make them?

Ooooooo, it gets better, Mr. Axlerod and Vallerie! Not only did he rub the noses of the American People into the manure of historical failure by ignoring our cultural heritage and laws based on principals, our author of the audacity of hope then said the Democrats (less than a few dozen people) are going to make the "hard decisions" first on the economy, then "we" can tap into that frustration and anger? Its the oldest play in the book?

He looked like Richard Pryor telling a joke, and the two supporters behind him were collapsing to the ground in laughter, their brains imploding (I assume) from the revelations of their fearless leader? President Barack (should I call him Hasan?) Obama wants to tap into the anger of the American People by causing crisis, chaos, and failure? What more do you want main stream media, we've got it on tape? He ought to be impeached, based on his own speeches?

Any newspaper, magazine or television station that does not demand for his immediate impeachment, and the resignation of the members of Congress that created these preventable hardships just so they can "play the oldest play in the book" should really think about how worse things are going to get if they are being this open, this honest, this fearless, this in YOUR FACE?

Universal Legal Disclaimer for the Public Domain, Version 1.5, dated Nov 7th, 2009 (which supersedes all previous versions, to which this new version applies)

The writings, views, expressions expressed by this author to include all written and electronic forms of communication are subject to the following disclaimer and conditions:

a) The views expressed by this website and the author to include all electronic forms of communication are not representative of advertisers, or other third parties that may store and or transmit the messages from this private computer, which you may observe at your own risk, with no liability to the authors, or any party related to transmitting, storing, or any other aspect of the material involved, including email correspondence, which is not necessary to the function of the website, and may or may not be archived due to other limitations incorporated into the licensed email software in use at the time such as automated spam or virus filters. No personal information exchanged will be shared without your consent, or provided to third parties with out the express permission of the parties and, or, individuals concerned.

b) The author(s) of this content and those who may interact with it in various known or unknown electronic methods do not give permission to any third parties to share or provide private personal information who may operate as part of any type of electronic or written communications system, including all parties, who may technically intercept communications due to the nature of network conditions beyond both the author's legal and physical control, unless those communications represent violations of the law, upon which the author, and or web site will cooperate to pursue any legal remedies.

c) The views expressed by the author or website may or may not contain factual information, due to the use of sarcasm or parody. The views may or may not be complete, either by design, to pre-empt being called a liar even if telling the truth, or by error due to typographical, grammer, or other technical communication problems not realized or imagined, or the possibility of views based on false or missing information, or with the intention of being used for entertainment purposes only, and not as a definitive judgment on the actions, character, or reputation of an organization, individual, or groups of individuals, with the intent of communicating with a limited group of people, and not the general public, however no distribution restrictions apply for fair use purposes described by the US Copyright Office, if no other restrictions are present or communicated, with all commercial proceeds associated with the distribution of the content to remain the sole possession of the original author.

d) Any reference to copyrighted material is done in the spirit of fair use, to illustrate the context of a discussion regarding public events for reference purposes that adds to the conversation, for which that discussion constitutes a new and separate piece of intellectual property, for which the referenced copyrighted material can not convey by itself, and that the author reserves the right to retain any profits from the newly created intellectual property. This term also serves to promote the referenced copyrighted material, without necessarily endorsing the material for any particular fitness, use, or purpose, for which the purpose of fair use referral law was created for, through inclusion of a partial, but not whole, body of works that the copyright fair use reference applies, for which the intent of all terms of this disclaimer apply to that reference of a copyrighted work.

e) Any humor if used, is not intended to offend people, and may be designed to apply the principals of peer pressure through reverse examination to accomplish the communication of principals or ideas that consist of traditional or proposed social values that are proven to advance the common good, and are not meant to discredit, disparage or demean any person or entities in any professional or personal manner, by attempting to share through the eyes or opinion of the author, for which it is expected that you read at your own risk, with no liability held to the author or any third parties who may store, transfer, or forward this message to others, in the traditions of free speech, fair use, and to play a positive role in a society that believes that graphically depicting male homosexuals having sex, and other unusual sex acts is considered free speech or that the use of abortion to limit Negros, Latinos, and other races from "spreading the wealth around" as a "matter of privacy" (which the author does not condone).

f) The use of humor is a known ingredient in providing teachable moments, and to validate and even demonstrate artistic expressions that are not shared by others, as demonstrated by many valuable scientific observations that were scoffed at in the past, yet proven to be quite valid decades later, upon which the humor used in all electronic communications by the author are based, in the principals and traditions of free speech and pursuit of happiness, and may not be a representation of others, including God.

g) It is the opinion of the author that you respect people when you consider their views, by reflecting their thoughts or actions against your own, which may include use of language that conveys an emotional depth that is to be imagined, but not enacted through use of language that accurately, or inaccurately describes the situation, circumstance, or idea, which does not imply that any action occur other than the consideration of the thought, for which beyond the author has no control, or liability for the action of the reader as presented in all terms of this diclaimer, and may simply be the venting of emotions with the intent of no consequence by the author to an audience the author assumes will understand the message and intent, and wishes to hear those views.

With a prohibition on domestic drilling, how do explain the ability of college and technical school graduates to practice their crafts? How do you explain the ability to produce chemicals and plastics when you have Democrats using their powers with old plays in the books creating economic chaos, slight of hands, tapping into the frustrations and anger of Americans?

What good is your college education when the Democrats are up there in Washington, TRYING TO SCREW UP THE ECONOMY to make you MAD? Do you call that slight of hand? Oldest play in the book? Richard Pryor looked so good on tv, huh?

Having filled up on Hussein Cool-Aid, the simple-minded left wingnuts believe anything that comes out of his lying mouth.

Liberal slogan: "Cool-Aid Cool-Aid, tastes great, Cool-Aid Cool-Aid, can't wait".

Barack Hussein Obama...mmm mmm mmm
Send HIM to Pakistan to fight Osama...mmm mmm mmm

Simple-minded lying dummycrats (the party that birthed the KKK) and liberals...morons electing morons.

All of this is quite possible. But, why they do not have 'handles' (using the old CB lingo) or some sort of noms de guerre?
Fisherman ALWAYS identified themselves in the past,usually clearly stating the name of the vessel. Isolated communities- may be, considering such wildly fluctuating signals. Especially if propagation is via the the polar region,perhaps. And once again, official radio transmissions normally do not contain such dirty language ,other than military(was quite common in the past). And those won't be in AM and unencrypted .I just wonder if these brief trx's are audible by anyone else,outside France?

If you get stopped for a violation, answer to the violation first.
The cop is not going to look at your radio and ask you if it is a GMRS, FRS, or a friggin' CB.

OTOH, if your radio is receiving police frequencies, you WILL be asked about that.

Since GMRS, FRS and CB radios do not receive Public Safety frequencies, you are good to go.

In Indiana, the posession of a radio that receives police frequencies is a misdemeanor. An officer can confiscate the scanner and arrest you via citation OR can take you into custody. For most first offenses the officer will cite and release and your scanner will be returned to you after your Court Hearing.
Indiana police officers do not make arrests for those who wander around in public while using FRS or GMRS radios.
Radioguy is lying. He is a troll.

Not exactly.

"IC 35-44-3-12
Unlawful use of a police radio; exemptions; "police radio" defined
Sec. 12. (a) A person who knowingly or intentionally:
(1) possesses a police radio;
(2) transmits over a frequency assigned for police emergency purposes; or
(3) possesses or uses a police radio:
(A) while committing a crime;
(B) to further the commission of a crime; or
(C) to avoid detection by a law enforcement agency; commits unlawful use of a police radio, a Class B misdemeanor.
(b) Subsection (a)(1) and (a)(2) do not apply to:
(1) a governmental entity;
(2) a regularly employed law enforcement officer;
(3) a common carrier of persons for hire whose vehicles are used in emergency service;
(4) a public service or utility company whose vehicles are used in emergency service;
(5) a person who has written permission from the chief executive officer of a law enforcement agency to possess a police radio;
(6) a person who holds an amateur radio license issued by the Federal Communications Commission if the person is not transmitting over a frequency assigned for police emergency purposes;
(7) a person who uses a police radio only in the person's dwelling or place of business;
(8) a person:
(A) who is regularly engaged in newsgathering activities;
(B) who is employed by a newspaper qualified to receive legal advertisements under IC 5-3-1, a wire service, or a licensed commercial or public radio or television station; and
(C) whose name is furnished by his employer to the chief executive officer of a law enforcement agency in the county in which the employer's principal office is located;

(9) a person engaged in the business of manufacturing or selling police radios; or (10) a person who possesses or uses a police radio during the normal course of the person's lawful business.

(c) As used in this section, "police radio" means a radio that is capable of sending or receiving signals transmitted on frequencies assigned by the Federal Communications Commission for police emergency purposes and that:
(1) can be installed, maintained, or operated in a vehicle; or
(2) can be operated while it is being carried by an individual.
The term does not include a radio designed for use only in a dwelling.

The law is preposterous and illegal, of course -- there is no Constitutional justification for making mere possession of anything a crime (just because a criminal might use a cast iron skillet to bash you on the head and take your money doesn't mean legislators have any right to criminalize skillet possession), and if someone causes radio waves to pass through your property or body, you certainly have the common law right to demodulate (or do anything whatever to) those waves.

But, if charged, one has to be realistic and realize that the mental abilities of many judges and jurors are too low to understand the above -- especially since they've been propagandized almost from birth with the false idea that legislators can make any laws they choose.

But one could still be free from the scanner prohibition, as long as you operate a news blog, since the section of the pretended law I quote above exempts anyone who is "regularly engaged in newsgathering activities."

With all good wishes,

Kevin, WB4AIO.

Voodo Speech-o-nomics? So you agree with this junk Michael Savage? Surprise, surprise, never let a crisis go to waste? Donald Duck could run against President Obama in his next election and win? So what's the purpose with all this media junk about getting "Quailed"? Kind of spooky, huh Michael? Yeah, we get the spook factor, and things are not going to change over night, but they can change for the better?

What's changed Michael? The collapsing New York media empire? Hey, there is no guarantee she will even run for office again, but I don't think that John McCain picked a woman, he picked a "spark"? That fire has been lit, and Sarah Palin is the only one who can put it out?

Rep. Bachman would also make an excellent first woman President, if the competition gets that far, or Sarah drops out? Americans are not going to give anything, and I believe the time where we focus on individuals is long over? From now on, people will be voting teams into office, not individuals?

I also like Mr. Romney, but will he be too polite? We he be another John McCain, telling supporters what to say or how to express themselves? Will Mr. Romney say that Mr. Obama is a wonderful person, and an honorable man, or will a pit bull with lipstick run this guy up a tree (figuratively)?

Go ahead, make my day, fire up the banana peels, when the smoke clears, you will have to look yourself in the mirror?

Universal Legal Disclaimer for the Public Domain, Version 1.5, dated Nov 7th, 2009 (which supersedes all previous versions, to which this new version applies)

The writings, views, expressions expressed by this author to include all written and electronic forms of communication are subject to the following disclaimer and conditions:

a) The views expressed by this website and the author to include all electronic forms of communication are not representative of advertisers, or other third parties that may store and or transmit the messages from this private computer, which you may observe at your own risk, with no liability to the authors, or any party related to transmitting, storing, or any other aspect of the material involved, including email correspondence, which is not necessary to the function of the website, and may or may not be archived due to other limitations incorporated into the licensed email software in use at the time such as automated spam or virus filters. No personal information exchanged will be shared without your consent, or provided to third parties with out the express permission of the parties and, or, individuals concerned.

b) The author(s) of this content and those who may interact with it in various known or unknown electronic methods do not give permission to any third parties to share or provide private personal information who may operate as part of any type of electronic or written communications system, including all parties, who may technically intercept communications due to the nature of network conditions beyond both the author's legal and physical control, unless those communications represent violations of the law, upon which the author, and or web site will cooperate to pursue any legal remedies.

c) The views expressed by the author or website may or may not contain factual information, due to the use of sarcasm or parody. The views may or may not be complete, either by design, to pre-empt being called a liar even if telling the truth, or by error due to typographical, grammer, or other technical communication problems not realized or imagined, or the possibility of views based on false or missing information, or with the intention of being used for entertainment purposes only, and not as a definitive judgment on the actions, character, or reputation of an organization, individual, or groups of individuals, with the intent of communicating with a limited group of people, and not the general public, however no distribution restrictions apply for fair use purposes described by the US Copyright Office, if no other restrictions are present or communicated, with all commercial proceeds associated with the distribution of the content to remain the sole possession of the original author.

d) Any reference to copyrighted material is done in the spirit of fair use, to illustrate the context of a discussion regarding public events for reference purposes that adds to the conversation, for which that discussion constitutes a new and separate piece of intellectual property, for which the referenced copyrighted material can not convey by itself, and that the author reserves the right to retain any profits from the newly created intellectual property. This term also serves to promote the referenced copyrighted material, without necessarily endorsing the material for any particular fitness, use, or purpose, for which the purpose of fair use referral law was created for, through inclusion of a partial, but not whole, body of works that the copyright fair use reference applies, for which the intent of all terms of this disclaimer apply to that reference of a copyrighted work.

e) Any humor if used, is not intended to offend people, and may be designed to apply the principals of peer pressure through reverse examination to accomplish the communication of principals or ideas that consist of traditional or proposed social values that are proven to advance the common good, and are not meant to discredit, disparage or demean any person or entities in any professional or personal manner, by attempting to share through the eyes or opinion of the author, for which it is expected that you read at your own risk, with no liability held to the author or any third parties who may store, transfer, or forward this message to others, in the traditions of free speech, fair use, and to play a positive role in a society that believes that graphically depicting male homosexuals having sex, and other unusual sex acts is considered free speech or that the use of abortion to limit Negros, Latinos, and other races from "spreading the wealth around" as a "matter of privacy" (which the author does not condone).

f) The use of humor is a known ingredient in providing teachable moments, and to validate and even demonstrate artistic expressions that are not shared by others, as demonstrated by many valuable scientific observations that were scoffed at in the past, yet proven to be quite valid decades later, upon which the humor used in all electronic communications by the author are based, in the principals and traditions of free speech and pursuit of happiness, and may not be a representation of others, including God.

g) It is the opinion of the author that you respect people when you consider their views, by reflecting their thoughts or actions against your own, which may include use of language that conveys an emotional depth that is to be imagined, but not enacted through use of language that accurately, or inaccurately describes the situation, circumstance, or idea, which does not imply that any action occur other than the consideration of the thought, for which beyond the author has no control, or liability for the action of the reader as presented in all terms of this diclaimer, and may simply be the venting of emotions with the intent of no consequence by the author to an audience the author assumes will understand the message and intent, and wishes to hear those views.

h) Since all intellectual property, discussions and other communications this disclaimer applies to, either in written, or electronic form, subscribe to the terms described in paragraph (e) and (g) of this disclaimer, under no circumstances are any communications meant to violate the terms of any electronic harassment laws which include the word “harm”, for which the author understands to be limited to the definition of physical harm (not self inflicted mental harm) that requires immediate medical attention based solely or in part by the communications of the author, regardless of whether the author chooses to remain anonymous or not.

i) It is the intention and opinion of the author that History is full of individuals that are not harmed by criticism, and in fact such criticism can motivate and inspire them to prove their critics wrong. Based on this historical evidence, any alleged mental harm amounts to self inflicted injury not treatable by either medical or other professionals (despite the fact that many people live from the profits of lies through gradual illusion, without judicial interference), for which the author has no control over the mental development of any potential reader prior to the discovery or reading of the material for which this disclaimer applies, as evident by the necessity that speech is to be protected by law as determined by the founders of the United States of America, who, in the opinion of the author, wrote the legal framework, which was created by God, not slaves.

j) Additional use of automated anonymous page use tracking computer scripts (web page programs) or advertisements may be licensed by www.google.com, for bandwidth verification, or determination of potential advertisement opportunities subject to all other terms described in this disclaimer.

k) Advertisements that may appear are not necessarily endorsed by the author, either by admission, or by silence, nor are any electronic links that may transport the reader to other web pages, sites, or computers, and such links that may be provided for all or any of the following known or unknown purposes, but not limited to, informational, educational, and for the purpose of giving copy right credit referral information under the terms outlined in the conditions applied to the term "fair use" regarding conversations and print under US Copy Right Law, and for which the author assumes no liability for any particular use, fitness, or legality there of, any link, current, past, or future, which the reader should use at their sole risk, with no liability to the author, or any other party that may store, transmit, or otherwise facilitate use of the material for which this disclaimer applies.

l) It is the opinion of the author that effective 1 December, 2009, the proposed regulations from the FTC violate the first and fifth amendments of the United States Constitution, by infringing through economic affliction the burden without compensation all financial details concerning the communications of both free enterprise and opinion, and other civil rights such as "punishment must be fair" and not at the "discretion" of public officials, or that advertisers are assumed to be guilty of deception when United States law provides that you are innocent before being proven guilty, and are in fact demonstrations that there are current members of Congress that neither understand the spirit of the law our founding fathers made for the United States of America, or understand how they work in the opinion of the author, as of October 10th, 2009, especially in light of anticipated, and hopefully defeated, legislative taxes relating to energy use and the burden of publishers and advertisers to comply with the law and manage the environment, and in light that there are various consumer protection agencies, including the Better Business Bureau, which has free consumer information which preclude the use and need for excessive government regulation that burdens business with obstacles it may sense that it can not overcome without inflicting harm on the business plan or survival ability of the business to provide advertised, goods and or services.

m) Although the content provided meets or exceeds those new requirements to the knowledge of the author, and modifications to version 1.3 or 1.4 of this disclaimer is a result of the opinion of the author that “blogging” is another definition for a potentially infinite number or forms of electronic communication, as such the author will retroactively apply this version, 1.5 to all forms of previous communications, when and wherever possible, as time allows, in order to properly convey the intention of the author and to demonstrate an enthusiasm to comply with the law.

n) Use of this disclaimer for either personal or professional use is permitted with no restrictions. These restrictions or disclaimers do not prohibit the author from pursuing or communicating in a truthful manner, or guarantee that the audience will understand all things as intended.

o) This disclaimer is meant to establish the intent of the author who may participate in message forums, or create other written or electronic forms of communication to comply with current law, and may be revoked without prior notice, due to circumstances beyond the author's control, changes in the law, or for any of the purposes, terms, or conditions that may be in effect or described by this disclaimer, or to changes in this disclaimer that the author may clarify in a revised version of this disclaimer.

p) This disclaimer is attached to this message, and retroactively applies to all previous forms of communication by the author, and is done so because there is no recognized central suppository of a public disclaimer recognized by the Government of the United States to the author, and as such, the legal imperative of the author is to apply this disclaimer to all manner of correspondence as the author seems fit or prudent, so that no misunderstandings occur, or to comply with past, current or future revisions of the law, due to any of, but not limited to, any or all of the terms, partial terms, or combination of terms, of this disclaimer, which is derived from the freedom of speech, for it appears to the author that the zeal of lawmakers to take away free speech outweigh the providence of attaching this disclaimer to all correspondence for which this applies, and any inconvenience for which this presents, is the result of simply complying with the law, and not to inconvenience the reader.

Don't worry Lisa, President Obama plans to eliminate all manufacturing in the United States by forcing energy costs to sky rocket, and of course the first thing he did was stop drilling in America after he took office? You see, that's the slight of hand technique, designed to tap into your anger and frustration, and of course, make you want to go begging the Democrats to fix the problem they created, its the oldest play in the book?

Hey, lets give a shout out to Chief Oui Weed and Axle-Nod? How's that stash holding up? We got a pit bull with lipstick on the hunt, and I think when she finds what she's looking for, you'll be saying "DRILL BABY DRILL"!??

Gee, sure would be a shame if all that glass at the docks was found to be radioactive, or full of toxic chemicals, like lead, PCB, or God FORBID, Carbon? Well, according to the EPA Carbon is a toxin to man, and of course how do the Chinese certify that their glass is carbon free?

Gee, guess you'll have to ship all your glass jobs to Russia, they have cheap natural gas, just like the stuff located all over the United States? Uh, huh, and just who is going to have a job in New York?

Do the Democrats actually do what they say, or do they just practice not just voodo economics, but voodo speech-o-nomics? uhhhhh, we need to have energy independence, after I jack up your costs, and your taxes, and your health care, and your taxes again, which increases your mortgage rate, which causes you to work longer, so you can make more money, so you can pay more taxes, which makes you work longer, because you have to pay your electric bill, ...?

Universal Legal Disclaimer for the Public Domain, Version 1.5, dated Nov 7th, 2009 (which supersedes all previous versions, to which this new version applies)

The writings, views, expressions expressed by this author to include all written and electronic forms of communication are subject to the following disclaimer and conditions:

a) The views expressed by this website and the author to include all electronic forms of communication are not representative of advertisers, or other third parties that may store and or transmit the messages from this private computer, which you may observe at your own risk, with no liability to the authors, or any party related to transmitting, storing, or any other aspect of the material involved, including email correspondence, which is not necessary to the function of the website, and may or may not be archived due to other limitations incorporated into the licensed email software in use at the time such as automated spam or virus filters. No personal information exchanged will be shared without your consent, or provided to third parties with out the express permission of the parties and, or, individuals concerned.

b) The author(s) of this content and those who may interact with it in various known or unknown electronic methods do not give permission to any third parties to share or provide private personal information who may operate as part of any type of electronic or written communications system, including all parties, who may technically intercept communications due to the nature of network conditions beyond both the author's legal and physical control, unless those communications represent violations of the law, upon which the author, and or web site will cooperate to pursue any legal remedies.

c) The views expressed by the author or website may or may not contain factual information, due to the use of sarcasm or parody. The views may or may not be complete, either by design, to pre-empt being called a liar even if telling the truth, or by error due to typographical, grammer, or other technical communication problems not realized or imagined, or the possibility of views based on false or missing information, or with the intention of being used for entertainment purposes only, and not as a definitive judgment on the actions, character, or reputation of an organization, individual, or groups of individuals, with the intent of communicating with a limited group of people, and not the general public, however no distribution restrictions apply for fair use purposes described by the US Copyright Office, if no other restrictions are present or communicated, with all commercial proceeds associated with the distribution of the content to remain the sole possession of the original author.

d) Any reference to copyrighted material is done in the spirit of fair use, to illustrate the context of a discussion regarding public events for reference purposes that adds to the conversation, for which that discussion constitutes a new and separate piece of intellectual property, for which the referenced copyrighted material can not convey by itself, and that the author reserves the right to retain any profits from the newly created intellectual property. This term also serves to promote the referenced copyrighted material, without necessarily endorsing the material for any particular fitness, use, or purpose, for which the purpose of fair use referral law was created for, through inclusion of a partial, but not whole, body of works that the copyright fair use reference applies, for which the intent of all terms of this disclaimer apply to that reference of a copyrighted work.

e) Any humor if used, is not intended to offend people, and may be designed to apply the principals of peer pressure through reverse examination to accomplish the communication of principals or ideas that consist of traditional or proposed social values that are proven to advance the common good, and are not meant to discredit, disparage or demean any person or entities in any professional or personal manner, by attempting to share through the eyes or opinion of the author, for which it is expected that you read at your own risk, with no liability held to the author or any third parties who may store, transfer, or forward this message to others, in the traditions of free speech, fair use, and to play a positive role in a society that believes that graphically depicting male homosexuals having sex, and other unusual sex acts is considered free speech or that the use of abortion to limit Negros, Latinos, and other races from "spreading the wealth around" as a "matter of privacy" (which the author does not condone).

f) The use of humor is a known ingredient in providing teachable moments, and to validate and even demonstrate artistic expressions that are not shared by others, as demonstrated by many valuable scientific observations that were scoffed at in the past, yet proven to be quite valid decades later, upon which the humor used in all electronic communications by the author are based, in the principals and traditions of free speech and pursuit of happiness, and may not be a representation of others, including God.

g) It is the opinion of the author that you respect people when you consider their views, by reflecting their thoughts or actions against your own, which may include use of language that conveys an emotional depth that is to be imagined, but not enacted through use of language that accurately, or inaccurately describes the situation, circumstance, or idea, which does not imply that any action occur other than the consideration of the thought, for which beyond the author has no control, or liability for the action of the reader as presented in all terms of this diclaimer, and may simply be the venting of emotions with the intent of no consequence by the author to an audience the author assumes will understand the message and intent, and wishes to hear those views.

h) Since all intellectual property, discussions and other communications this disclaimer applies to, either in written, or electronic form, subscribe to the terms described in paragraph (e) and (g) of this disclaimer, under no circumstances are any communications meant to violate the terms of any electronic harassment laws which include the word “harm”, for which the author understands to be limited to the definition of physical harm (not self inflicted mental harm) that requires immediate medical attention based solely or in part by the communications of the author, regardless of whether the author chooses to remain anonymous or not.

i) It is the intention and opinion of the author that History is full of individuals that are not harmed by criticism, and in fact such criticism can motivate and inspire them to prove their critics wrong. Based on this historical evidence, any alleged mental harm amounts to self inflicted injury not treatable by either medical or other professionals (despite the fact that many people live from the profits of lies through gradual illusion, without judicial interference), for which the author has no control over the mental development of any potential reader prior to the discovery or reading of the material for which this disclaimer applies, as evident by the necessity that speech is to be protected by law as determined by the founders of the United States of America, who, in the opinion of the author, wrote the legal framework, which was created by God, not slaves.

j) Additional use of automated anonymous page use tracking computer scripts (web page programs) or advertisements may be licensed by www.google.com, for bandwidth verification, or determination of potential advertisement opportunities subject to all other terms described in this disclaimer.

k) Advertisements that may appear are not necessarily endorsed by the author, either by admission, or by silence, nor are any electronic links that may transport the reader to other web pages, sites, or computers, and such links that may be provided for all or any of the following known or unknown purposes, but not limited to, informational, educational, and for the purpose of giving copy right credit referral information under the terms outlined in the conditions applied to the term "fair use" regarding conversations and print under US Copy Right Law, and for which the author assumes no liability for any particular use, fitness, or legality there of, any link, current, past, or future, which the reader should use at their sole risk, with no liability to the author, or any other party that may store, transmit, or otherwise facilitate use of the material for which this disclaimer applies.

l) It is the opinion of the author that effective 1 December, 2009, the proposed regulations from the FTC violate the first and fifth amendments of the United States Constitution, by infringing through economic affliction the burden without compensation all financial details concerning the communications of both free enterprise and opinion, and other civil rights such as "punishment must be fair" and not at the "discretion" of public officials, or that advertisers are assumed to be guilty of deception when United States law provides that you are innocent before being proven guilty, and are in fact demonstrations that there are current members of Congress that neither understand the spirit of the law our founding fathers made for the United States of America, or understand how they work in the opinion of the author, as of October 10th, 2009, especially in light of anticipated, and hopefully defeated, legislative taxes relating to energy use and the burden of publishers and advertisers to comply with the law and manage the environment, and in light that there are various consumer protection agencies, including the Better Business Bureau, which has free consumer information which preclude the use and need for excessive government regulation that burdens business with obstacles it may sense that it can not overcome without inflicting harm on the business plan or survival ability of the business to provide advertised, goods and or services.

m) Although the content provided meets or exceeds those new requirements to the knowledge of the author, and modifications to version 1.3 or 1.4 of this disclaimer is a result of the opinion of the author that “blogging” is another definition for a potentially infinite number or forms of electronic communication, as such the author will retroactively apply this version, 1.5 to all forms of previous communications, when and wherever possible, as time allows, in order to properly convey the intention of the author and to demonstrate an enthusiasm to comply with the law.

n) Use of this disclaimer for either personal or professional use is permitted with no restrictions. These restrictions or disclaimers do not prohibit the author from pursuing or communicating in a truthful manner, or guarantee that the audience will understand all things as intended.

o) This disclaimer is meant to establish the intent of the author who may participate in message forums, or create other written or electronic forms of communication to comply with current law, and may be revoked without prior notice, due to circumstances beyond the author's control, changes in the law, or for any of the purposes, terms, or conditions that may be in effect or described by this disclaimer, or to changes in this disclaimer that the author may clarify in a revised version of this disclaimer.

p) This disclaimer is attached to this message, and retroactively applies to all previous forms of communication by the author, and is done so because there is no recognized central suppository of a public disclaimer recognized by the Government of the United States to the author, and as such, the legal imperative of the author is to apply this disclaimer to all manner of correspondence as the author seems fit or prudent, so that no misunderstandings occur, or to comply with past, current or future revisions of the law, due to any of, but not limited to, any or all of the terms, partial terms, or combination of terms, of this disclaimer, which is derived from the freedom of speech, for it appears to the author that the zeal of lawmakers to take away free speech outweigh the providence of attaching this disclaimer to all correspondence for which this applies, and any inconvenience for which this presents, is the result of simply complying with the law, and not to inconvenience the reader.

RHC and CRI are starting to take over every available frequency, along with the religious broadcasters. It is starting to get pretty old.

Sometimes it seems like a time warp with these stale and standard broadcasters. RHC =coming to you from the land that time forgot. CRI is much more modern,to a degree, kind of ... more contemporary . Once upon a time Radio Peking was actually jammed by the soviets during the Cultural revolution. Miss the good old Gene Scott broadcasts . Are his recordings still on the air?
I think they flickered very faintly (due to very poor propagation) on some out of band frequency lately.

It does seem that majority of r.r.s. participants has mostly N.Americans with a small segment of English speaking enthusiasts from everywhere else. Is French language still used in Nice,Cote d'Azour ?
From what we hear it has been invaded by the russians in the last several years . If more and slightly longer recordings are made, eventually those mysterious "fishermen" will mention something to disclose their location or purpose.

For old times sake?

Because it's there?

I buy newspapers, I watch television, I get online and I also listen to shortwave. The good thing about radio is that it can just "happen" in the background while you are doing something else. Newspapers, TV, and to some extent, the internet, are less amenable to that.

Radio has a certain charm about it that the internet does not. Maybe it is simply the fact that the internet makes it all too easy.

Anyway, one really big plus is that the radio doesn't chew up my internet bandwidth!

What is with these naysayers on a shortwave newsgroup who are anti-shortwave?
I'm scratching my head to try to figure out why guys that are so AGAINST something bother with lurking around in the shadows of a newsgroup devoted to a specific topic.

Every time one of these doomsday posts appears the creeps crawl out of the woodwork and bad rap shortwave radio which, incidentally, is healthy and thriving. If you look at the article source it came from "CZ" land...so maybe in "CZ" things have changed with domestic shortwave but during the last year there has been countless new outlets and and expanded shortwave coverage appear throughout the globe.

Pay no attention to such nonsense. Regardless of what the overzealous techno-cheerleaders would like us all to believe, the world is not only comprised of industrialized nations full of brainwashed people who've let themselves become hypnotized by the Internet.
The frail and choking Internet is rife with mushrooming problems and the portability and ready-access to shortwave will continue to thrive. Many countries in even the last year have realized this and have increased their shortwave facilities and schedules.

I am going to use some Seafoam to clean out the EGR (Exhaust Gas Recirculation) valve, my 1983 full size Dodge van.
Yesterday, I read on the web that Seafoam stuff will fog up the whole neighborhood.

I Likes that!

Drill and tap (thread) a small hole in your vehicles exhaust manifold.Rig a little tank with a valve you can controll from inside of your vehicle.Put some of your old motor oil in the tank.When people are following too close behind you, work that valve on and off!

Here on West Coast North America, Our 49 m band is always chock full!
Of RHC and CRI and domestic religious broadcasters! Yecchh!

Once in awhile we still get lucky and a European (Romania) or an interesting African outlet will break through - but sheesh - do they need to monopolize the bands so much?

Even the tropical bands are getting filled up with these guys.

IMHO the article is a very nice explanation why they are reducing their shortwave broadcasts. It's spun (spinned?) that they are doing it because everyone else is doing it, which is not really true.

Many places are doing it because there are a lot better and cheaper ways of reaching their audience. At one time radio was the new, better and cheaper (for the producer) way. Now there are lots of others.

BUT it does not mean that everyone, or even most producers are doing it.

Sorry guys, while you were using the internet to pirate music and video, the rest of the world was taking over the air waves. The world really is not all the US and the EU.

If you think so, go to Radio China's English web site and look at their coverage and schedule, there's more there than the BBC has had in a very long time.

Following is the latest London Press Release through PRNewswire, which also contains a link for the video announcement on YouTube:

MAITREYA STEPS FORWARD

LONDON, January 19 /PRNewswire/ -- Share International Foundation announces that Maitreya, the World Teacher, has given His first interview on American television. Millions have heard Him speak both on TV and the internet. His open mission has begun...

http://www.prnewswire.com/news-releases/maitreya-steps-forward-820492...

YouTube Video
http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=JHqncRa4fcA

==========

He will not be called Maitreya. He will not be introduced as the Christ or World Teacher, but simply as a man among men, one of extraordinary potency, wisdom, obvious love and concern for the people of the world – not just one group but all people wherever they are, whoever they are, at whatever level. They will listen to Him. His voice will be heard. He will reflect the need of the majority of the human race for justice and freedom, for the right to live decent lives which most of us in the West take for granted, knowing where their next meal is coming from, with work and the joy of bringing up their children without seeing them dying in front of their eyes.
When enough people are thus responding to His message, they will demand that the networks of the world allow Him to speak and develop His ideas more fully to the vast majority. Then the television networks will be linked together by satellite. This will be the most extraordinary event of all our lives, the most extraordinary event in history, like none other before it in its scope.
The Day of Declaration will be announced by the media. (Benjamin Creme, The Great Approach)

This link contains excerpts from an article titled ‘Maitreya's first interview, a compilation’ published in the March 2009 issue of Share International magazine:

http://www.share-international.org/magazine/old_issues/2009/2009-03.h...

There is a detailed answer to the question: "When Maitreya comes on major television, why will He not use His own name?" , which also explains why we can't point out Maitreya's interview. People have to look for it. There will be more interviews in the very near future.

See what RELIGION does to peoples' minds?

Adults no longer believe in the Tooth Fairy - but they still torture and kill each other over ancient myths and superstitions.

"We all remember how many religious wars were fought for a religion of love and gentleness; how many bodies were burned alive with the genuinely kind intention of saving souls from the eternal fire of hell." --- Karl Popper

"When one person suffers from a delusion, it is called insanity. When many people suffer from a delusion, it is called Religion."
--- Robert M. Pirsig

"With or without religion, you would have good people doing good things and evil people doing evil things. But for good people to do evil things, that takes religion."
--- Steven Weinberg, quoted in The New York Times, April 20, 1999

"Religion is regarded by the common people as true, by the wise as false, and by rulers as useful."
--- Seneca the Younger (4? BC - 65 AD)

"Religion once ruled the world. It was called the Dark Ages." --- Ruth Green.

"Science flies you to the moon. Religion flies you into buildings." --- Victor Stenger.

"I don't believe in God because I don't believe in Mother Goose." --- Clarence Darrow

"As my ancestors are free from slavery, I am free from the slavery of religion." --- Butterfly McQueen

"Faith is believing what you know ain't so." --- Mark Twain

Sure we did.

The middle-eastern Muslim nation's relative poverty, their burgeoning overpopulation, their sky-high unemployment rates, their lack of educational opportunities, and their adherence to a reactionary 14th century religion that teaches hatred and keeps the female half of their populations barefoot, ignorant, and pregnant has absolutely nothing to do with why they hate western cultures. (Boggle)

I just love a man who has simple answers (I.E. "We created the Taliban and Al Qaeda") for complex and difficult questions. They're invariably the wrong answers, of course, but by George they are simple!

I use Puppy Linux whenever possible.

I like the BBC a lot. When I lived in Texas and they were slamming 250
KW at the Americas from Ascension back in the '80s, I could easily hear the air handlers in Bush House on my 2010. That was fantastic audio.

Now I listen to the World Service on satellite or the web, and I find other amazing things to listen to on the radio (like really weak stations 9,000 miles away).

Yup, even on the East Coast, the Europeans have totally given up on 49 meters after 10pm local (EST) in English. I wouldn't call RHC or CRI a monopoly because it isn't like anyone wants to be there anymore on shortwave.

Radio Romania was booming here at 630utc on 7370khz tonight when I caught them talking about Romanian tennis players in the Australian open.

Last year, they were coming on every night from 0200 to 0500 UTC on 7505khz. Mostly music and maybe a preacher or two.

I've just noticed, they are a no show now about 90 percent of the time on shortwave. I wonder if they have just all but given up?????

But have no fear, there are one or two new American religious broadcasters on the way now... Oh goodie (roll eyes)

You keep tapping into that anger, that frustration, that slight of hand, because, even though we initiated a lot of these policies, we are going to take responsbility, we are not going to blame George Bush, we are not going to blame the Republicans, because that's slight of hand, why, its the oldest play in the book?

HA HA HA HA HA HA HA HA HA HA HA HA HA HA HA!

mmmm mmmmmm mmmmm Rush Hudson Limbaugh mmmmm mmmmmm mmmmmm!

I don't mind cleaning up the mess with my big white mop, with the clean water of conservatism, the truth, and a little help from the angels of God, I just want all those who created this mess, to stop the Apollo Greed (think Rocky Movie) Jive Talking, get out of the way, and shut up? I'm fighting for all the little Negro Conservomaniacs, who are not terrified of the truth that Rush Limbaugh reveals to them, with his massive pythons of truth, that civil rights not include going to the bathroom, but the civil rights of property, which include your personal free time and liberties?

Wuch ya gonna do, when real conservomaniacs from all over the world, go running wild over you!

Universal Legal Disclaimer for the Public Domain, Version 1.5, dated Nov 7th, 2009 (which supersedes all previous versions, to which this new version applies)

The writings, views, expressions expressed by this author to include all written and electronic forms of communication are subject to the following disclaimer and conditions:

a) The views expressed by this website and the author to include all electronic forms of communication are not representative of advertisers, or other third parties that may store and or transmit the messages from this private computer, which you may observe at your own risk, with no liability to the authors, or any party related to transmitting, storing, or any other aspect of the material involved, including email correspondence, which is not necessary to the function of the website, and may or may not be archived due to other limitations incorporated into the licensed email software in use at the time such as automated spam or virus filters. No personal information exchanged will be shared without your consent, or provided to third parties with out the express permission of the parties and, or, individuals concerned.

b) The author(s) of this content and those who may interact with it in various known or unknown electronic methods do not give permission to any third parties to share or provide private personal information who may operate as part of any type of electronic or written communications system, including all parties, who may technically intercept communications due to the nature of network conditions beyond both the author's legal and physical control, unless those communications represent violations of the law, upon which the author, and or web site will cooperate to pursue any legal remedies.

c) The views expressed by the author or website may or may not contain factual information, due to the use of sarcasm or parody. The views may or may not be complete, either by design, to pre-empt being called a liar even if telling the truth, or by error due to typographical, grammer, or other technical communication problems not realized or imagined, or the possibility of views based on false or missing information, or with the intention of being used for entertainment purposes only, and not as a definitive judgment on the actions, character, or reputation of an organization, individual, or groups of individuals, with the intent of communicating with a limited group of people, and not the general public, however no distribution restrictions apply for fair use purposes described by the US Copyright Office, if no other restrictions are present or communicated, with all commercial proceeds associated with the distribution of the content to remain the sole possession of the original author.

d) Any reference to copyrighted material is done in the spirit of fair use, to illustrate the context of a discussion regarding public events for reference purposes that adds to the conversation, for which that discussion constitutes a new and separate piece of intellectual property, for which the referenced copyrighted material can not convey by itself, and that the author reserves the right to retain any profits from the newly created intellectual property. This term also serves to promote the referenced copyrighted material, without necessarily endorsing the material for any particular fitness, use, or purpose, for which the purpose of fair use referral law was created for, through inclusion of a partial, but not whole, body of works that the copyright fair use reference applies, for which the intent of all terms of this disclaimer apply to that reference of a copyrighted work.

e) Any humor if used, is not intended to offend people, and may be designed to apply the principals of peer pressure through reverse examination to accomplish the communication of principals or ideas that consist of traditional or proposed social values that are proven to advance the common good, and are not meant to discredit, disparage or demean any person or entities in any professional or personal manner, by attempting to share through the eyes or opinion of the author, for which it is expected that you read at your own risk, with no liability held to the author or any third parties who may store, transfer, or forward this message to others, in the traditions of free speech, fair use, and to play a positive role in a society that believes that graphically depicting male homosexuals having sex, and other unusual sex acts is considered free speech or that the use of abortion to limit Negros, Latinos, and other races from "spreading the wealth around" as a "matter of privacy" (which the author does not condone).

f) The use of humor is a known ingredient in providing teachable moments, and to validate and even demonstrate artistic expressions that are not shared by others, as demonstrated by many valuable scientific observations that were scoffed at in the past, yet proven to be quite valid decades later, upon which the humor used in all electronic communications by the author are based, in the principals and traditions of free speech and pursuit of happiness, and may not be a representation of others, including God.

g) It is the opinion of the author that you respect people when you consider their views, by reflecting their thoughts or actions against your own, which may include use of language that conveys an emotional depth that is to be imagined, but not enacted through use of language that accurately, or inaccurately describes the situation, circumstance, or idea, which does not imply that any action occur other than the consideration of the thought, for which beyond the author has no control, or liability for the action of the reader as presented in all terms of this diclaimer, and may simply be the venting of emotions with the intent of no consequence by the author to an audience the author assumes will understand the message and intent, and wishes to hear those views.

h) Since all intellectual property, discussions and other communications this disclaimer applies to, either in written, or electronic form, subscribe to the terms described in paragraph (e) and (g) of this disclaimer, under no circumstances are any communications meant to violate the terms of any electronic harassment laws which include the word “harm”, for which the author understands to be limited to the definition of physical harm (not self inflicted mental harm) that requires immediate medical attention based solely or in part by the communications of the author, regardless of whether the author chooses to remain anonymous or not.

i) It is the intention and opinion of the author that History is full of individuals that are not harmed by criticism, and in fact such criticism can motivate and inspire them to prove their critics wrong. Based on this historical evidence, any alleged mental harm amounts to self inflicted injury not treatable by either medical or other professionals (despite the fact that many people live from the profits of lies through gradual illusion, without judicial interference), for which the author has no control over the mental development of any potential reader prior to the discovery or reading of the material for which this disclaimer applies, as evident by the necessity that speech is to be protected by law as determined by the founders of the United States of America, who, in the opinion of the author, wrote the legal

j) Additional use of automated anonymous page use tracking computer scripts (web page programs) or advertisements may be licensed by www.google.com, for bandwidth verification, or determination of potential advertisement opportunities subject to all other terms described in this disclaimer.

k) Advertisements that may appear are not necessarily endorsed by the author, either by admission, or by silence, nor are any electronic links that may transport the reader to other web pages, sites, or computers, and such links that may be provided for all or any of the following known or unknown purposes, but not limited to, informational, educational, and for the purpose of giving copy right credit referral information under the terms outlined in the conditions applied to the term "fair use" regarding conversations and print under US Copy Right Law, and for which the author assumes no liability for any particular use, fitness, or legality there of, any link, current, past, or future, which the reader should use at their sole risk, with no liability to the author, or any other party that may store, transmit, or otherwise facilitate use of the material for which this disclaimer applies.

l) It is the opinion of the author that effective 1 December, 2009, the proposed regulations from the FTC violate the first and fifth amendments of the United States Constitution, by infringing through economic affliction the burden without compensation all financial details concerning the communications of both free enterprise and opinion, and other civil rights such as "punishment must be fair" and not at the "discretion" of public officials, or that advertisers are assumed to be guilty of deception when United States law provides that you are innocent before being proven guilty, and are in fact demonstrations that there are current members of Congress that neither understand the spirit of the law our founding fathers made for the United States of America, or understand how they work in the opinion of the author, as of October 10th, 2009, especially in light of anticipated, and hopefully defeated, legislative taxes relating to energy use and the burden of publishers and advertisers to comply with the law and manage the environment, and in light that there are various consumer protection agencies, including the Better Business Bureau, which has free consumer information which preclude the use and need for excessive government regulation that burdens business with obstacles it may sense that it can not overcome without inflicting harm on the business plan or survival ability of the business to provide advertised, goods and or services.

m) Although the content provided meets or exceeds those new requirements to the knowledge of the author, and modifications to version 1.3 or 1.4 of this disclaimer is a result of the opinion of the author that “blogging” is another definition for a potentially infinite number or forms of electronic communication, as such the author will retroactively apply this version, 1.5 to all forms of previous communications, when and wherever possible, as time allows, in order to properly convey the intention of the author and to demonstrate an enthusiasm to comply with the law.

n) Use of this disclaimer for either personal or professional use is permitted with no restrictions. These restrictions or disclaimers do not prohibit the author from pursuing or communicating in a truthful manner, or guarantee that the audience will understand all things as intended.

o) This disclaimer is meant to establish the intent of the author who may participate in message forums, or create other written or electronic forms of communication to comply with current law, and may be revoked without prior notice, due to circumstances beyond the author's control, changes in the law, or for any of the purposes, terms, or conditions that may be in effect or described by this disclaimer, or to changes in this disclaimer that the author may clarify in a revised version of this disclaimer.

p) This disclaimer is attached to this message, and retroactively applies to all previous forms of communication by the author, and is done so because there is no recognized central suppository of a public disclaimer recognized by the Government of the United States to the author, and as such, the legal imperative of the author is to apply this disclaimer to all manner of correspondence as the author seems fit or prudent, so that no misunderstandings occur, or to comply with past, current or future revisions of the law, due to any of, but not limited to, any or all of the terms, partial terms, or combination of terms, of this disclaimer, which is derived from the freedom of speech, for it appears to the author that the zeal of lawmakers to take away free speech outweigh the providence of attaching this disclaimer to all correspondence for which this applies, and any inconvenience for which this presents, is the result of simply complying with the law, and not to inconvenience the reader.

According to scientific standards established by the White House, to make the United States Press Corp more credible, more profitable, and sound more intelligent, Rush Limbaugh has been credited with saving or creating at least 28,000 baby seals from getting eaten by polar bears yesterday, when polar bears and their super hearing made them stop what they are doing, and they listened to the Rush Limbaugh show?

I hit the send button basically saying what you said above before I

But the namesake of this forum is <ahem> "shortwave" - so I agree with the head scratching also but I think deep down we both know why specific people always seem to beat that drum. I'll let them figure it out. Ha!

Shortwave is a synonym for HF, which is a band of frequencies from 3 MHz to 30 MHz. HFBC is a small slice of the shortwave pie. I find it laughable that people think that in this day and age there's a challenge to receiving a 50 KW radio station.

I saw no sarcasm in Gregg's post - none at all - and I seriously wonder about the sarcasm in your own. Gregg's was a reasonable question, and it is unreasonable to expect a person to see EVERY other post from a given individual, for a number of reasons.

BTW, Dave answered it appropriately too, even though I disagree with

(CNN) -- In the brutal aftermath of Haiti's earthquake, Jean-Robert Gaillard turned to his low-tech radio for solace and for a lifeline. When the earthquake hit, the 57-year-old from Petionville, Haiti, found most of his normal lines of communication -- his cell phone, the Internet, even his ability to walk down the street and talk to someone -- severed by the disaster.

My sarcasm was deliberate. You see, Gregg, in posts to other newsgroups, where he was harassing other posters, used the same line, "Inquiring minds want to know." He seems to have picked up the habit from his troll friends as they are wont to use that line, in particular, nurk fred.

It is entirely reasonable to expect a person to read ahead on a topic to see if his "question" has been answered already. I was able to do so with my usenet client. If Gregg cannot easily do so, then I suggest he move from Google Groups to a more amenable usenet client. That way he will be less prone to "sounding like a jerk".

Liberty Net for Week of January 9-16

http://3950.net/2010/01/liberty-net-for-week-of-january-9-16/

by Kevin Strom, WB4AIO

THE LIBERTY NET has been on the air for over 30 years. Itï¿½s one of the longest-running nets in the Amateur Radio Service. For almost all of that time, the Net Control Station (NCS) for this current events discussion net has been Vic, W1WCR, and he brought off another great session this week.

Here are just a few of the topics discussed this week, along with the time of the relevant remarks measured from the beginning of the recording in hours and minutes:

ï¿½ What do when your motor oil freezes. (39 minutes)

ï¿½ A man was charged with speeding because a police officer said it ï¿½sounded like he was going too fastï¿½ ï¿½ and this is the general attitude of too many officers in our burgeoning police state. (43 minutes)

ï¿½ Hawaii has instituted two official Barack Obama holidays and named a state park after Obama, who claims to have been born there ï¿½ though there is a vigorous public debate on that claim. In addition a ï¿½gospelï¿½ musical is now in production, using a Black ï¿½mass choirï¿½ version of the Obama campaign slogan ï¿½Yes We Can.ï¿½ The play resembles a religious service in which the Washington regimeï¿½s nominal leader is treated as a kind of saint. (49 minutes)

ï¿½ In an effort to prevent a catastrophic (and justified) fall in demand for U.S. government debt, the Federal Reserve is frantically handing out interest-free money to commercial banks with an unwritten ï¿½gentlemanï¿½s agreementï¿½ that the interest-free funds will be used to buy interest-bearing Treasury bonds. (1 hour 3 minutes)

ï¿½ A criminal called ï¿½Brute Jack Rhodes,ï¿½ a 240-lb Black male who preyed repeatedly on elderly White women in walkers, was unrepentant as he was recently sentenced to 75 years in prison ï¿½ one year for each dollar he stole from three of his victims, one of whom was over 100 years old. (1 hour 32 minutes)

ï¿½ A predominantly White area of northern Atlanta is making moves to secede from that Black-run city of chronic crime, filth, and blight. Naturally, Atlantaï¿½s Black establishment opposes the former Milton Countyï¿½s move to become independent again. A major factor in the dispute is that many Whites are tired of seeing their tax money being used to subsidize an ever-growing, largely criminal, and unemployable underclass ï¿½ and the establishment doesnï¿½t want to lose its ï¿½tax baseï¿½ (another word for modern-day slaves). (1 hour 35 minutes)

ï¿½ America is being bankrupted and engulfed in criminality due to massive, and largely illegal, non-White immigration. (1 hour 47 minutes)

ï¿½ The TSAï¿½s full body scanners raise the issue of government employees looking under the clothes of our family members ï¿½ and there is a disproportionate number of sexual deviants in government employment, perhaps due to the mentality of wanting to dominate others. It has also been alleged that the terahertz waves emitted by full body scanners resonate with and can damage DNA by literally ï¿½unzippingï¿½ it, raising the spectre of induced illness in, or sterilization of, those who must travel by commercial airlines. It is also interesting to note that dual-loyalist operative Michael Chertoff has a personal financial interest in the sale of full body scanners. (1 hour 57 minutes)

ï¿½ Mike Huckabee now suggests that we outsource all of our transportation security to Israel, a garrison state without the slightest pretense of constitutional rights. (2 hours 5 minutes)

ï¿½ Is it true that all of our current wars in the Middle East, and the ï¿½War on Terrorï¿½ generally, are just setting America up for an eventual merger with the state of Israel? Such a merger with the quintessential ï¿½national securityï¿½/surveillance state would spell the final end of freedom in the U.S. (2 hours 6 minutes)

ï¿½ Is all the over-the-top hysteria about the failed Underwear Bomber just an excuse to get the boobs pepped up for yet another war, this time in Yemen? (2 hours 32 minutes)

ï¿½ Can simple, inexpensive home treatments provide a cure for Type 2 Diabetes? (2 hours 40 minutes)

ï¿½ The state of Michigan is imploding financially ï¿½ in some areas, theyï¿½ve even ceased plowing the roads. As the financial house of cards collapses, a few sympathetic bank employees are refusing orders to evict mortgage defaulters, knowing that many could suffer or die homeless in the severe cold. (2 hours 42 minutes)

ï¿½ Are Muslims being used as the ï¿½ideal bogeymanï¿½ to turn America into a garrison ï¿½national securityï¿½ state like Israel? Who brought them here in such large numbers, after all? And who is pushing for the Middle Eastern wars that fan the flames of their hatred of us? (2 hours 46 minutes)

ï¿½ Concerns over global warming have been used to institute a huge power grab ï¿½ which is truly a war on the rights of the people. Scientific fraud has been used to justify this power grab, which actually amounts to a new tyrannical world government and a new system of debt based on ï¿½carbon credits.ï¿½ Interestingly, Maurice Strong, the progenitor of many of these ideas, now lives in Beijing. (2 hours 49 minutes)

ï¿½ What the mainstream media reported about the recent climate conference is very different from what really happened there. (3 hours 11 minutes)

ï¿½ Jesse Ventura now states he was ordered to attend a secret meeting with 23 CIA and other intelligence operatives very soon after he was elected governor of Minnesota. (3 hours 49 minutes)

ï¿½ ï¿½Infraguardï¿½ is a massive domestic spying program which recruits Americans to spy on their neighbors for the regime in Washington. The sooner the American people lose their loyalty to that regime, the better for all of us. (3 hours 51 minutes)

ï¿½ A cost breakdown reveals that the Obama health care plan includes a substantial marriage penalty ï¿½ over a 50 per cent. increase at $5,000 per year. An administration spokesman claims ï¿½we canï¿½t avoid that because weï¿½re trying to direct most of the benefits to those who really need them.ï¿½ Thatï¿½s actually a code phrase for directing money away from normal families and to dysfunctional ï¿½alternative lifestyleï¿½ practitioners who form a significant part of the Obama coalition. (4 hours 0 minutes)

ï¿½ Itï¿½s underreported in the mainstream media, but Africans ï¿½ supported by organized crime ï¿½ are rioting and attacking White people in Italy. White workers and parents who defended themselves and their children are described in the controlled media as ï¿½gangs.ï¿½ Italyï¿½s Northern League blames the violence on illegal immigration. (4 hours 3 minutes)

ï¿½ A Russian Orthodox delegation visited Putin, asking that all illegal non-Christian (read: Asian and Muslim) immigration be stopped. Putinï¿½s response was ï¿½Convert them to Orthodoxy.ï¿½ This is always a danger when you define your identity by religion rather than by biology: you can still be replaced and driven to extinction, as long as your adversaries ï¿½believeï¿½ (or pretend to believe) as you do. (4 hours 8 minutes)

ï¿½ The next item on the Washington regimeï¿½s agenda is a massive amnesty for non-White immigrants ï¿½ and dual citizenship will be a built-in feature of the plan. Thus the elite class and the scab labor class will have all the perks of dual citizenship ï¿½ the one mainly with Israel and the other mainly with Mexico ï¿½ while ï¿½plain vanillaï¿½ Americans will have very little say about the future of their nation. (4 hours 17 minutes)

ï¿½ In an interesting admission, Harry Reid stated on the record that Obama is more palatable than other African politicians, since he is ï¿½light skinnedï¿½ and does not use ï¿½Negro dialect.ï¿½ (4 hours 20 minutes)

ï¿½ There may be huge non-compliance with the proposed health care laws, since more and more people regard the federal governmentï¿½s actions as unconstitutional, illegal, and counter to our survival needs. (4 hours 25 minutes)

ï¿½ The Icelandic people, in a nationwide referendum and in opposition to their legislators, have absolutely refused to bail out the international bankers. Some bankers in Britain, angry at the Icelanderï¿½s ï¿½reneging on their debtsï¿½ (which really means their refusal to be ripped off), are suggesting that Icelandic account holders be declared ï¿½terroristsï¿½ for refusing to pay, allowing their accounts to be seized. Such acts may backfire on the bankers, as more and more people will connect the dots and begin to see that our wars in Pakistan, Afghanistan, and Iraq are also against peoples who refuse to participate in the usurious banking system. (4 hours 29 minutes)

ï¿½ Isnï¿½t Goldman Sachs a far more dangerous enemy of the American people than al-Qaeda ever was? (4 hours 49 minutes)

ï¿½ Is it possible that Arnold Schwarzenegger is being blackmailed and controlled by threats to expose his past connections with White racial activists? (5 hours 23 minutes)

In addition to listening to these Liberty Net recordings online (either live via N2SAG or N2IRJ or time-shifted here), you can also download them and play them on your portable mp3 player ï¿½ commuting time can be excellent Liberty Net listening time.

Check-ins begin at the 11-minute mark, and the legal obtaining of the frequency is documented at the very beginning of the recording, the total length of which is 6 hours 10 minutes.

Thanks again to N2IRJ, Marty, for making these recordings available to us all!

Our worst enemies?

Ourselves!-- via our love for a warped form of capitalism.

And don't take my word for it. Read John Perkins (author of "Confessions of an Economic Hit Man)latest book, titled "Hoodwinked". He will tell you exactly what our worst enemy is. Clue: It has nothing to do with Repubs or Democrats, liberals or conservatives. Further clue -- he is not against capitalism, just the perverted form of it that has taken root.

a) All stations are not 50 kW.

b) There is the intangible "magic" of radio that some enjoy.

c) As stated previously, use shortwave for radio magic. Use the internet if you want solid copy on programming content. There is room for both.

Well, it is about time, a big thumbs up to the Supreme Court, THANK YOU!

If Congress were doing their job regulating commerce and currency issues, we would not need unions? All this money spent on science, and they can't advise business, but somehow they can mandate things?
Unions are the birth place of political corruption, the embryonic chamber of destruction when left to their own devices?

Competition solves problems, and now we have choice too? No more unions getting a monopoly (even though it with campaign funds, never really occured to me, Rush has said it before, but the way he explained it today, it just sunk in there?) Nice job today Rush, I think Rush is getting better! Genius improving Genius? INCREDIBLE!
Thank you GOD!

Thank YOU mmmmmm mmm mmmmm Rush Hudson Limbaugh mmmm mmmm mmmmmmm

We've got a cure for that you know? We're not waiting for Czars or Botox member panels to create the solution? We'll start our own rehabilatation program for "Voodo Speech A Holics"?

We'll call it "Voodo Speech Anyoymous"?

Here, fill in the blanks:

My name is _____, and I'm a VOODO Speech - A - Holic? Instincts tell me to use the oldest play in the book, with my slight of hand, and false sense of responsibility that blames others, but alas, no more! Today is a new day, I will never be the same, I am now a valued member of the Rush Limbaugh Institutie for Advanced Conservative Studies, and I will join Rush Limbaugh in advancing the Truth, the American Way, Prosperity, Freedom, Life, Liberty and the Pursuit of Happiness, until time itself ends?

Well, whatever else they've done - they have handed the elections and thus, the lawmaking machinery, to the wealthiest corporations in America. Extrapolate from that what you will.

Well sure.

But given the intelligence level of your average ditto-head it's likely to be quite some time before they figure that out, and when they finally do it's going to come as quite a shock.

Average Ditto-head: "HEY! I'm getting screwed!!

it?"

Heh.

You imbecilic moron, why don't you read up on some good old-fashioned American history and learn why the restrictions were put there in the first place. In fact, the justices could brush up on history as well. Seems like people were smarter back in 1907 when they realized how big business was interfering with the common man than they are now in 2010. This is going to lead to political shambles, just like repealing the Glass Steagall Act a decade ago allowed Wall St. to run amock and get the country in the mess it's in today.

(b) Subsection (a)(1) and (a)(2) DO NOT APPLY TO:

(5) a person WHO HAS WRITTEN PERMISSION from the chief executive officer of a law enforcement agency to possess a police radio;

(6) A PERSON WHO HOLDS AN AMATEUR RADIO LICENSE issued by the Federal Communications Commission if the person is not transmitting over a frequency assigned for police emergency purposes;

(7) a person who uses a police radio ONLY IN THE PERSON'S DWELLING OR PLACE OF BUSINESS;

(8) a person: (A) WHO IS REGULARLY ENGAGED IN NEWSGATERING ACTIVITIES;

(10) a person who possesses or uses a police radio during the normal course of the person's lawful business.

(c) As used in this section, "police radio" means a radio that is capable of sending or receiving signals transmitted on frequencies assigned by the Federal Communications Commission for police emergency purposes and that:
(1) can be installed, maintained, or operated in a vehicle; or
(2) can be operated while it is being carried by an individual.

The term DOES NOT include a radio designed FOR USE ONLY IN A DWELLING.

As added by Acts 1977, P.L.342, SEC.1. Amended by P.L.162-1994, SEC.1."

You're implying that mere possession of a "police radio" is a misdemeanor in the state of Indiana, period.

The law clearly states that it only applies to vehicular or portable use - NOT to possession of a "police radio" inside of a home or other building.

The law provides MANY exemptions, incuding licensed hams, newspaper or TV reporters, individuals who sell or service police radios, or basically anyone who has some form of written permission (a permit) from their local law enforcement.

In three places, the law makes it clear that there is nothing illegal about having a radio capable of receiving police frequencies in one's own home or place of business.

It would be really strange if ANY possession of a "police radio" was illegal in the state of Indiana, considering that the Electra company, who for all intents and purposes invented and popularized the police scanner with their famous "Bearcat" line, was located in Indiana (before merging with Uniden of Japan in the 1980's.)

First, "the wealthiest corporations" include unions, environmentalists, and other left-wing special interests, and there's no point in pretending otherwise.

Second, money never left politics -- McCain-Feingold spawned any number of workarounds, and special interests continued to spend their money to campaign for, or against, their candidates.
Why do you think so many 501 and 527 groups sprang up in

I was listening to Joe Paggs this morning, who I love to listen to, but who is as stubborn as a mule (in a good way) about the issues, talk about a hospital denying employment to people that smoke, try to spin the issue as some kind of debate about liberty.

This issue has nothing to do with liberty of citizens, this has to do with the ability of a company to have the liberty to experience its employees being competitive. To boil this down really quick, most medical professions require a certain amount of continuing education on a yearly basis, and many hospitals pay for that expense.

Why should they invest in you, as an employee, if they know 15 years from now you the chances of you going to become unreliable, and sick, because of smoking? Why can't the employer just say, hey, you don't have a right to a job, you've got to compete for it?

And frankly, I've heard the argument before, and it makes me sick, is that Tobacco will NEVER be outlawed because there is too much tax money involved. REALLY? I take great offense to that, especially when the federal government is building God Blessed turtle crossings in Florida.

If Americans can NOT suck up and pay a few hundred dollars in taxes every year, then you are a bunch of wimps, you are a bunch of sissies, a bunch of girlie men, how are you going to survive? Farmers can grow corn or soy instead?

Here's my thoughts, GRANDFATHER OUT TOBACCO. The kids that can't buy it now, can't in the future. Cut out your pork barrel projects, and you won't need the extra taxes?

Being that this is the most powerful keyboard in the world, the most smacketh downeth erectus among us, you've got to ask yourself a question, do you feel lucky?

Well do you want to think --- of junk?

Luv ya like a brother Paggs -- I disagree with ya.

Well, yeah, you're right -- kinda, sorta.

What you overlook is the simple fact that the Big Corporations have TONS and TONS of money, waaay more than any union or "other left-wing special interests" could ever hope to scrape up.

And if you see no problem with letting large corporations have all that power, IMHO you are dumber than you look.

Well, to the extent that the Glass-Stegal Act was repealed on his watch, yes.

However, I would respectfully suggest that you do not overlook the fact that George W. had EIGHT years to do something about it -- and did NOTHING.

In any event, partisanship has nothing to do with it. Corporatocracy has

I would tend to think that making it easy, making it legal for people to smoke, encourages them to experiment with the habit when they might not if it was not legal. I am an ex-smoker. And they already make smokers miserable by forcing them to go outside, etc. If you work in a hospital, you probably have to go down several flights of stairs, security concerns, or the possible notion you might over look something on a patient chart just because all you have been thinking about for the last 30 minutes is having a cigarrette. You smoked your cigarrette on break, the doctor is wonder where the hell you are, and did you wash your hands?

(in addition to my other arguments). And they are already doing this in the military (why invest a million dollars worth of training if some idiot is going to light up on the battle field?).

I wouldn't want the government to allow the sale of dangerous drugs (but it does it anyways), and really the only way to get people not to smoke is to make them compete for jobs? Smoking is something that sneaks up on you, and to make it worse, it is a drug that also opens your airways. The damage is hidden or delayed for years, until one day you start coughing up blood.

If you call that liberty, well, I think it is something worth the effort to prevent from happening.

Copy of my email:

Hi Joe Paggs! (wink). Sorry bout dat! I apologize for spelling your name wrong. Love your show, you do a lot of good.

Ooops, almost forgot, some who have been blessed by God may not experience the effects of tobacco, since the supernatural powers of God would protect them?

Ooooops there it is!

Have a nice day!

"And they shall take up serpents......."
I think you see my point, you are just choosing to spin it because tobacco is legal. I don't dwell on the issue, I throw it out it there occasionally because people have to want to stop smoking. I'm not a power trip person.

Maybe your show would be a little more interesting if you took questions from people that tried different methods to stop smoking, for instance I said to my self, when I was a little kid, I didn't need to smoke and I was happy. After smoking for years, I wanted to be like that kid again. When I wanted a cigarette, I drank hot chocolate (it was winter time) until one day I finally quit. And again, if a nurse smokes, I would allow them to keep smoking as an employer, I would grandfather out or weed out new employees from being smokers simply as a leadership role in the community.

Have a nice day!

What transpired during the dog days of summer 1859, across the 150 million-kilometer (about 93 million-mile) chasm of interplanetary space that separates the Sun and Earth, was this: on August 28, solar observers noted the development of numerous sunspots on the Sun's surface. Sunspots are localized regions of extremely intense magnetic fields. These magnetic fields intertwine, and the resulting magnetic energy can generate a sudden, violent release of energy called a solar flare. From August 28 to September 2 several solar flares were observed. Then, on September 1, the Sun released a mammoth solar flare. For almost an entire minute the amount of sunlight the Sun produced at the region of the flare actually doubled.

"With the flare came this explosive release of a massive cloud of magnetically charged plasma called a coronal mass ejection," said Tsurutani. "Not all coronal mass ejections head toward Earth. Those that do usually take three to four days to get here. This one took all of 17 hours and 40 minutes," he noted.

see captionNot only was this coronal mass ejection an extremely fast mover, the magnetic fields contained within it were extremely intense and in direct opposition with Earth's magnetic fields. That meant the coronal mass ejection of September 1, 1859, overwhelmed Earth's own magnetic field, allowing charged particles to penetrate into Earth's upper atmosphere. The endgame to such a stellar event is one heck of a light show and more -- including potential disruptions of electrical grids and communications systems.

Back in 1859 the invention of the telegraph was only 15 years old and society's electrical framework was truly in its infancy. A 1994 solar storm caused major malfunctions to two communications satellites, disrupting newspaper, network television and nationwide radio service throughout Canada. Other storms have affected systems ranging from cell phone service and TV signals to GPS systems and electrical power grids. In March 1989, a solar storm much less intense than the perfect space storm of 1859 caused the Hydro-Quebec (Canada) power grid to go down for over nine hours, and the resulting damages and loss in revenue were estimated to be in the hundreds of millions of dollars.

"The question I get asked most often is, 'Could a perfect space storm happen again, and when?'" added Tsurutani. "I tell people it could, and it could very well be even more intense than what transpired in 1859. As for when, we simply do not know," he said.

I'm not a smoker and I don't like to be around smokers. Yet I am astounded at the amount of grief smokers get. No doubt smoking is bad for you. About a third of smokers die of some smoking-related illness.

Second-hand smoke also poses a threat to bystanders. But don't MOST of the things we do pose a threat to bystanders? My late grandmother once broke her hip walking through a park. A guy who was involved in a game of touch football ran into her by accident, causing her to fall. Do we outlaw walks in the park? Touch football?

And what about fatty foods? Sharp objects? Poisonous substances? Skis? Roller skates? If we're going to make a list of all the things we do or products we use that are potentially harmful to ourselves and others, you'd better settle in and get comfortable because pretty much everything will be on that list. And yet, for some reason, people save up all their wrath for smokers. At the very mention of smoking, tempers flare and rationality goes straight out the window.

I just don't get it. Is it because tobacco companies spent so much time and money trying to deceive everyone about the potential ill effects of tobacco use? Suppose that in 1962 or so, tobacco companies had simply fessed up and said that tobacco use might well give you cancer in the long term and poses various additional health risks. If this had happened, my guess is that we'd all still be smoking and would view the health risks associated with tobacco as akin to the health risks associated with alcohol or fat or sodium or exposure to the sun. Or maybe I'm wrong, but there has to be some explanation of why people's reaction to one set of risks are so disproportionate to their reactions to other risks.

What's especially fascinating right now is the absolute rage many people are venting at the idea of electronic cigarettes...despite the fact that the latter contain no tobacco whatsoever!

That may not be the case. Scott's campaign in Massachussetts was funded primarily with small donations from individuals. Small donations being $5, $10 and others less than $100. His war chest went from from the low 6 figures to mid 7 figures literally overnight after a single appearance on TV, all from small donations of less than $100 from individuals, and mushroomed from there.

There is no doubt that large donations are solicited and accepted from corporate entities, but there is now no denying that a successful campaign can be waged without them.

The real question should be, given that this law has been on the books for 60 years, and McCain-Feingold has been on the books since 2003. Why did the court that refused to consider this matter when McCain-Feingold was enacted, choose to take this decision now?

Well, that's the other side of this....Corporate donations traditionally go to both sides. The Dems hammered Dole during his presidential run for having accepted donations from the Tobacco Industry, failing to mention that they'd accepted larger donations from the Tobacco Industry themselves.

Big Pharma gives to both sides. General Motors dumped huge money into both sides. While their unions donated exclusively to Democrats.

So, the results of this decision are from certain. The real question is what prompted the court to take up this issue now?

On the first point, wrong - corporate coffers are hundreds of times larger than those of unions and environmental groups. There simply is no comparison.

Secondly, a workaround is not in the same league as a complete green light.

This is beside the point. It simply won't matter who is running or who wins - the candidate that represents the big money - which will now include every viable candidate - will no longer in any way represent the individual, unless that individual is either a CEO or a stockholder.

Because the right suit was appealed to them and accepted by the

Dave, not sure what your point is - a temporary and relatively rare disruption does not obviate an otherwise useful technology.

I don't doubt his claims, and this is not a challenge, but I am curious as to how the scientist relating this tale of 19th century woe has determined the specifics so well that he can "predict" the solar mass ejection travelling through space at half the speed of light.
That is crazy FAST for anything heavier than a photon. It must have been ridiculously energetic to achieve that velocity. How could we determine this 150 years after the fact, and with no reliable recording equipment at the time? Was it based purely on observations of the flare and timing of the disruption, whatever form that took?
Was the telegraphy disrupted? Did keys everywhere begin to chatter chaotically? And if so, was it certain that it was the particular observed flare that resulted in the CME, or could it have been a slighlty earlier flare?

Here is one reason:

http://tinyurl.com/ydjvyys

Health care reform and limits on ill-conceived overseas wars and climate change legislation and any number of other current things that would benefit normal people are other possible reasons to declare that a State-legislated corporate entity has the same status as a natural born citizen and is allowed to flood the campaign universe with gigabucks to preserve their own autonomy.

I'm thinking it goes deeper than that. This law has been on the books and contested since passsed 60 years ago. The court has refused to hear it.

Something triggered them to take this up now, and finally agree to hear it. THAT would be the interesting tidbit here.

Watching this afternoons WLBT Channel 3 Noon News.Stephanie Bell Flynt, TV News Reporter, said it has been confirmed that was an EF-2 Tornado that touched down in Copiah County,Mississippi.A couple of nights ago.

What size Tornado was that one in Ventura County,California?

Some people in California are still evacuating because of the bad weather over there.

I have an Icom R-7100 receiver that seems deaf to me. It receives everywhere just fine, but the sensitivity doesn't seem to match the specs. It may just need a re-alinement.

Where is the best place to have an Icom receivers repaired?

No, you don't understand:

When conservative judges make rulings intended to benefit their own political party it's called "being a strict constitutionalist".

When liberals do the same thing, then it's called "legislating from the bench".

Again, you seem to overlook a simple fact: Obama INHERITED not just one but TWO expensive so-called wars with no exit strategy and INHERITED a major Depression -- that started on Bush's watch.

Rather than picking on Obama, please realize that even if McCain won, we would still be in exactly the same fix, maybe even worse, due to

Your assumption is that all corporations are either evil or do not have the interests of people they serve. As long as there is a disclaimer of where the money comes from there is no problem unless you think Americans are to dumb to figure things out.

Why is it wrong for corporations to represent their interests? As long as their is a disclaimer where the money comes from let the voter decide ... whats wrong with that? It seems everyone starts with the assumptions that corporations are bad/evil.

There might have been some of the votes that were anti-Bush votes, but you must admit that Obama was very popular. To say that it was, to a large extent, a vote for Obama was a vote against Bush is lessening Obama's real popularity in the election. Its similar to the Dems that voted for Reagan.

Bush inherited a military that had been downsized ... the military had to be spooled up because of the war ... remember all the complaints against Bush's not worrying about the troops ... hummers were not properly armored etc ... remember Rumsfeld said you go to war with what you have and not what you wished you had.

You also must remember that Bush can only spend the money that is oked by Congress. The economic downturned started in the last year of the Bush administration ... Congress was taken over by the Dem in two years before Bush's term was up. At that time the economy was purring along with an unemployment rate of about 4.6%. True Obama has been in office only one year, but the two previous years there was a Democratic Congress ... are they responsible for any of the economic downturn?

This is an assumption; there is no way of knowing what the outcome would have been if McCain/Palin would have been elected ... we do know that a whole year wouldn't have been wasted trying to fool with the US healthcare system ... there probably wouldn't have been a cap n trade bill ... there wouldn't have been a stimulus (pork) package of this magnitude either.

Y'know, I keep hearing about this boogeyman, but I've yet to see stats to back it up. And what YOU overlook is the simple fact that unions and other left-wing special interests (why the scare quotes? Do you seriously doubt they exist?)

So the choice is between Big Brother dictating how, when, and where we can engage in political free speech versus trusting that Americans are intelligent enough to deal with all that free speech? Your contempt for the American voter is palpable, possibly eclipsed by your elitism and arrogance.

Standard liberal fare: Corporations are, by definition, evil. Also note their breezy dismissal of unions (and the many, many left-wing 501 and 527 groups) as somehow powerless before the might of the Corporations.

So your implicit assertion is that Americans are too stupid to know when they're being fed a line of crap? Though given that Obama was elected, I just might have to give you that one.

I'm apalled that you believe that Big Brother should have, the right to dictate how and when Americans those bastions of individual thought known as 'unions' -- are permitted to express their opinion about political candidates. Free political speech is not free if

Well that was a long winded way of avoiding the point(s) of the author of this post. The post had nothing outlawing risk. The post was about the freedom of an employer, of a high tech job, in a mission critical situation, to make sure the employees working for him, her (them) competed for that position by not bringing to work the associated habits and problems normally associated with smokers.

And Joe Pags acts like a stubborn mule because he does not like to be proven wrong? Hey Joe, beer is legal. Does your boss let you drink beer on the job? Why not? You can buy your own breath tester, you can drink, what, six ounces of beer an hour and not get drunk, so why don't we see people walking around with cans of Budweiser?

Joe Pags, I hate to say it, sounded like an union thug today, hey, I have a RIGHT to that job, don't you DARE deny me employment, why smoking is legal? And that's the problem with unions, you get a popular idea, and the union acts as a buffer between accountability between the citizen and the politician? Your life sucks? The politician can say, its the union's fault, hang in there a few more years, things will get better?

That's why they love unions? I take the same position as the author of this post, we should grand father out tobacco products, those who can't buy it now, should not be able to in the future, because we know it is an addictive drug with harmful effects that are preventable. If you are already hooked to tobacco, I would say they should still be able to work there (in the hospital), since they have contributed to the success of that organization, and if you are hooked to cigarettes and are in medical school, investing your time and money, there should be some wiggle room in there too before you would change your policy like that.

Tobacco is also supported for one simple reason, it gets girls to try things they wouldn't normally do? They figure if they let their guard down for a cigarette, they'll let something else down too? Well, you folks opened the can of worms by bringing up the subject, not me? While I can support a hospital avoiding smokers as employees, in reality it really comes down to the workers. I might own or run the hospital, it might be my (our) money, and while I might have a legal right to ask employees to compete for those positions in my organization, I have to have the numbers to make it work. In some towns it might be a good idea, but bad timing?

The sad part of this arguement is that if you smoke, you'll close a lot of doors. They will smell it on the interview, somebody will check your car while you are being interviewed, or you might work for a couple weeks and then get laid off? Hospitals are high stress environments sometimes, and it just seems odd that people would even want to smoke, after watching people get sick from it. People that work in hospitals demand the best pay, well, are they earning it, if they demand cigarette breaks, or get sick later down the road?

Every time you walk outside to smoke a cigarette, you expose yourself to more germs, more avenues for airborne disease to attach itself to your clothes, and you go walking back into rooms full of sick people? Some people smoke for years and something else happens to them (or they bank on that thought when starting to smoke) but the sad fact of the matter is that lung disease is one of the most painful ways you can become sick?

How bout a beer, Mr. Mojo?

Enjoy the weekend.....:)

Joe Pags still rocks, he just can't roll on this subject? Hey, I make mistakes too, you guys already know I can't spell? LOL.

He was standing in the hole, waiting for something to develop and .....looking forward to that moment this weekend?

LOL. (wink!)

courtesy copy of pending article for possible publication that might, could, or should be?

OOOOOOOOOOoooooooooooooYeah, so you think your Mr. Wonderful, ME, ME ME? Yeah, I won, when Earth Wind and Fire was playing in my back yard? I won while speaker Pelosi was "ooooops there it is, ooooops there it went, I just bought another jet"?

Did we mention the drilling thing and energy independence, or the fact that you hired someone to lead the energy industry that had no practical experience? We'll continue that later? Sorry, you had your Nixon moment last weekend, you ain't gonna tweak the press no more with your slight of hand, your tapping into anger and frustration, your false sense of responsibility, the American People, are not loosers, we are winners, and they will simply ignore you, because they already have all the points they need to win the boxing fight, they just have to wait for that 9th round bell to ring and not get knocked out?

He was standing in the hole waiting for something to develop, and WHAP, Axlerod, Pelosi, Reed, Obama, and the rest of the bunch, got "developed" with a clear black and white picture of who they really are?

Still time to repent Mr. Obama, to change your ways, to say, today I will never be the same, I will join the Conservative movement, advance its cause and become a Republican, because the Democrats are going to make an example out of me?

I know, why don't you ask Bagdad Bob?

You keep tapping into that anger, that frustration, that slight of hand, because, even though we initiated a lot of these policies, we are going to take responsbility, we are not going to blame George Bush, we are not going to blame the Republicans, because that's slight of hand, why, its the oldest play in the book?

I'm fighting for all the little Negro Conservomaniacs, who are not terrified of the truth that Rush Limbaugh reveals to them, with his massive pythons of truth, that civil rights not include going to the bathroom, but the civil rights of property, which include your personal free time and liberties?

Wuch ya gonna do, when real conservomaniacs from all over the world, go running wild over you!

Universal Legal Disclaimer for the Public Domain, Version 1.5, dated Nov 7th, 2009 (which supersedes all previous versions, to which this new version applies)

The writings, views, expressions expressed by this author to include all written and electronic forms of communication are subject to the following disclaimer and conditions:

a) The views expressed by this website and the author to include all electronic forms of communication are not representative of advertisers, or other third parties that may store and or transmit the messages from this private computer, which you may observe at your own risk, with no liability to the authors, or any party related to transmitting, storing, or any other aspect of the material involved, including email correspondence, which is not necessary to the function of the website, and may or may not be archived due to other limitations incorporated into the licensed email software in use at the time such as automated spam or virus filters. No personal information exchanged will be shared without your consent, or provided to third parties with out the express permission of the parties and, or, individuals concerned.

b) The author(s) of this content and those who may interact with it in various known or unknown electronic methods do not give permission to any third parties to share or provide private personal information who may operate as part of any type of electronic or written communications system, including all parties, who may technically intercept communications due to the nature of network conditions beyond both the author's legal and physical control, unless those communications represent violations of the law, upon which the author, and or web site will cooperate to pursue any legal remedies.

c) The views expressed by the author or website may or may not contain factual information, due to the use of sarcasm or parody. The views may or may not be complete, either by design, to pre-empt being called a liar even if telling the truth, or by error due to typographical, grammer, or other technical communication problems not realized or imagined, or the possibility of views based on false or missing information, or with the intention of being used for entertainment purposes only, and not as a definitive judgment on the actions, character, or reputation of an organization, individual, or groups of individuals, with the intent of communicating with a limited group of people, and not the general public, however no distribution restrictions apply for fair use purposes described by the US Copyright Office, if no other restrictions are present or communicated, with all commercial proceeds associated with the distribution of the content to remain the sole possession of the original author.

d) Any reference to copyrighted material is done in the spirit of fair use, to illustrate the context of a discussion regarding public events for reference purposes that adds to the conversation, for which that discussion constitutes a new and separate piece of intellectual property, for which the referenced copyrighted material can not convey by itself, and that the author reserves the right to retain any profits from the newly created intellectual property. This term also serves to promote the referenced copyrighted material, without necessarily endorsing the material for any particular fitness, use, or purpose, for which the purpose of fair use referral law was created for, through inclusion of a partial, but not whole, body of works that the copyright fair use reference applies, for which the intent of all terms of this disclaimer apply to that reference of a copyrighted work.

e) Any humor if used, is not intended to offend people, and may be designed to apply the principals of peer pressure through reverse examination to accomplish the communication of principals or ideas that consist of traditional or proposed social values that are proven to advance the common good, and are not meant to discredit, disparage or demean any person or entities in any professional or personal manner, by attempting to share through the eyes or opinion of the author, for which it is expected that you read at your own risk, with no liability held to the author or any third parties who may store, transfer, or forward this message to others, in the traditions of free speech, fair use, and to play a positive role in a society that believes that graphically depicting male homosexuals having sex, and other unusual sex acts is considered free speech or that the use of abortion to limit Negros, Latinos, and other races from "spreading the wealth around" as a "matter of privacy" (which the author does not condone).

f) The use of humor is a known ingredient in providing teachable moments, and to validate and even demonstrate artistic expressions that are not shared by others, as demonstrated by many valuable scientific observations that were scoffed at in the past, yet proven to be quite valid decades later, upon which the humor used in all electronic communications by the author are based, in the principals and traditions of free speech and pursuit of happiness, and may not be a representation of others, including God.

g) It is the opinion of the author that you respect people when you consider their views, by reflecting their thoughts or actions against your own, which may include use of language that conveys an emotional depth that is to be imagined, but not enacted through use of language that accurately, or inaccurately describes the situation, circumstance, or idea, which does not imply that any action occur

other than the consideration of the thought, for which beyond the author has no control, or liability for the action of the reader as presented in all terms of this diclaimer, and may simply be the venting of emotions with the intent of no consequence by the author to an audience the author assumes will understand the message and intent, and wishes to hear those views.

h) Since all intellectual property, discussions and other communications this disclaimer applies to, either in written, or electronic form, subscribe to the terms described in paragraph (e) and (g) of this disclaimer, under no circumstances are any communications meant to violate the terms of any electronic harassment laws which include the word “harm”, for which the author understands to be limited to the definition of physical harm (not self inflicted mental harm) that requires immediate medical attention based solely or in part by the communications of the author, regardless of whether the author chooses to remain anonymous or not.

i) It is the intention and opinion of the author that History is full of individuals that are not harmed by criticism, and in fact such criticism can motivate and inspire them to prove their critics wrong. Based on this historical evidence, any alleged mental harm amounts to self inflicted injury not treatable by either medical or other professionals (despite the fact that many people live from the profits of lies through gradual illusion, without judicial interference), for which the author has no control over the mental development of any potential reader prior to the discovery or reading of the material for which this disclaimer applies, as evident by the necessity that speech is to be protected by law as determined by the founders of the United States of America, who, in the opinion of the author, wrote the legal framework, which was created by God, not slaves.

j) Additional use of automated anonymous page use tracking computer scripts (web page programs) or advertisements may be licensed by www.google.com, for bandwidth verification, or determination of potential advertisement opportunities subject to all other terms described in this disclaimer.

k) Advertisements that may appear are not necessarily endorsed by the author, either by admission, or by silence, nor are any electronic links that may transport the reader to other web pages, sites, or computers, and such links that may be provided for all or any of the following known or unknown purposes, but not limited to, informational, educational, and for the purpose of giving copy right credit referral information under the terms outlined in the conditions applied to the term "fair use" regarding conversations and print under US Copy Right Law, and for which the author assumes no liability for any particular use, fitness, or legality there of, any link, current, past, or future, which the reader should use at their sole risk, with no liability to the author, or any other party that may store, transmit, or otherwise facilitate use of the material for which this disclaimer applies.

l) It is the opinion of the author that effective 1 December, 2009, the proposed regulations from the FTC violate the first and fifth amendments of the United States Constitution, by infringing through economic affliction the burden without compensation all financial details concerning the communications of both free enterprise and opinion, and other civil rights such as "punishment must be fair" and not at the "discretion" of public officials, or that advertisers are assumed to be guilty of deception when United States law provides that you are innocent before being proven guilty, and are in fact demonstrations that there are current members of Congress that neither understand the spirit of the law our founding fathers made for the United States of America, or understand how they work in the opinion of the author, as of October 10th, 2009, especially in light of anticipated, and hopefully defeated, legislative taxes relating to energy use and the burden of publishers and advertisers to comply with the law and manage the environment, and in light that there are various consumer protection agencies, including the Better Business Bureau, which has free consumer information which preclude the use and need for excessive government regulation that burdens business with obstacles it may sense that it can not overcome without inflicting harm on the business plan or survival ability of the business to provide advertised, goods and or services.

m) Although the content provided meets or exceeds those new requirements to the knowledge of the author, and modifications to version 1.3 or 1.4 of this disclaimer is a result of the opinion of the author that “blogging” is another definition for a potentially infinite number or forms of electronic communication, as such the author will retroactively apply this version, 1.5 to all forms of previous communications, when and wherever possible, as time allows, in order to properly convey the intention of the author and to demonstrate an enthusiasm to comply with the law.

n) Use of this disclaimer for either personal or professional use is permitted with no restrictions. These restrictions or disclaimers do not prohibit the author from pursuing or communicating in a truthful manner, or guarantee that the audience will understand all things as intended.

o) This disclaimer is meant to establish the intent of the author who may participate in message forums, or create other written or electronic forms of communication to comply with current law, and may be revoked without prior notice, due to circumstances beyond the author's control, changes in the law, or for any of the purposes, terms, or conditions that may be in effect or described by this disclaimer, or to changes in this disclaimer that the author may clarify in a revised version of this disclaimer.

p) This disclaimer is attached to this message, and retroactively applies to all previous forms of communication by the author, and is done so because there is no recognized central suppository of a public disclaimer recognized by the Government of the United States to the author, and as such, the legal imperative of the author is to apply this disclaimer to all manner of correspondence as the author seems fit or prudent, so that no misunderstandings occur, or to comply with past, current or future revisions of the law, due to any of, but not limited to, any or all of the terms, partial terms, or combination of terms, of this disclaimer, which is derived from the freedom of speech, for it appears to the author that the zeal of lawmakers to take away free speech outweigh the providence of attaching this disclaimer to all correspondence for which this applies, and any inconvenience for which this presents, is the result of simply complying with the law, and not to inconvenience the reader.

The first thing that comes apparent while watching the show is how quickly eager people who want public fame latch on to the first bit of "scientific" knowledge they get their hands on, and then go completely wild with the conclusions and aspirations surrounding such knowledge?

Satan walked the Earth, and his name at one time in history was Shaw? Remarkable similarities of how they are using global climate data with the same historical significance that early leaders such as Shaw envisioned using that "data"?

We won't even get into the discussion about when God changes the laws of physics at his whim, in order to prove our humility?

Wow. Did he steal Sarah Palin's eye wear? Nice job Glenn. Now I understand why President Reagan put those missiles in Europe?

We've got to get rid of this socialist garbage from schools, or else more will abuse scientific knowledge they don't know how to use?

We'll work some more on that later......

As opposed to people with no scientific knowledge and then go completely wild with conclusions and aspirations surrounding such absence of knowledge.

Well, data or no data, there's irrefutable proof that something not

What boogeyman and what stats? It is pretty much intuitively obvious to the casual observer that Big Business has more money than the Unions because a) the unions have been decreasing in strength for years and b) most (if not all) of the money the union has comes from dues of their blue collar members, by definition not the richest people in the neighborhood.

Um, Stevie, nothing to do with doubting their existence. If you look closely, I put it in quotes because, well, I was quoting YOU. Please try not to punish someone for the -proper- use of punctuation.

Yes, I agree they may have the media's 'ear' but the BigRichEvilKorporations have the MONEY -- and as we all learned from Johnny Z. years ago, "Money talks and bullshit walks". (Quote marks used because I am directly quoting John Z. DeLorean, late of GM).

Sadly, I believe it has very little to do with free speech but has EVERYTHING to do with getting the best politicians that money can buy.

Please answer me this:
If I recall correctly, there used to be a limit on how much of a political contribution could be made, possibly $2500. And I seem to further remember that occasionally, some tried to donate more than that, got caught and was prosecuted. Please tell me how anything over $2500 used to be bad and now they can donate 25 MILLION or 125 million, the sky is the limit. Again, everything to do with buying politicians, damned little to do with your red herring of free speech.

Furthermore, I really was not alluding to the intelligence of the American voters, but seeing as you read that into it, let me comment...

First, it's no secret that the American educational system has been falling apart for years, many books having been written on the dumbing of America.

Finally, the dumbing (and numbing) of the populace as alluded to in '1984' and 'Brave New World' seems to be coming frightfully close to the mark.

Don't forget to take your Soma pill tonight...and don't forget to read "Hoodwinked" by John Perkins (also the author of "Confessions of an Economic Hit Man"). The first half of his book explains much more eloquently than I could ever hope to, the evils of the Corporatocracy.

Dammit Joe, I sincerely mean it when I say you should read Perkins' book. I really believe it would answer a lot of your questions. An easy read and carried by many public libraries.

To my way of thinking, getting the best politicians money can buy is still wrong, a fine print disclaimer notwithstanding.

Okay, I'll speak Liberal, just for you: Hey, asshole!

to union dues. They raise money through their 501s and 527s, and use it to elect liberal Democrats.

True only of non-government unions. Govenment unions, however, now account for 51% of all union members -- and climbing.. In the midst of this recession, with 10% unemployment, Congress somehow managed to pad the Federal payroll with 70,000 new hires.

I note that you seem unable to back up your claim that evil corporations spend TONS of money. OpenSecrets is your friend.

And there's no reason to limit the discussion to unions. Corporations are not, by definition, conservative. Trivial proof: George Soros. Or is that different somehow?

We've seen how utterly ineffectual campaign-finance laws have been -- or haven't you noticed that money somehow manages to get spent? Limit it here, it pops up there, in the form of PACs and 501s and 527s and other special interests -- many of them established by Mr. Soros and his ideological comrades. You won't get far trying to convince anyone that liberals are somehow powerless when it comes to funding.

Me, I'll take 100% disclosure and absolute transparency over such impotent attempts anytime. Unlike you, I have faith in the American voter -- and my faith was restored a couple of days ago in Massachusetts. (Oh... too soon? ;)

As an aside, it's interesting that a liberal (or so I presume) believes that free speech is a 'red herring.' Civil rights and civil liberties used to be a bedrock principle of the left. When, exactly, did that change?

First off, my apology for misreading your earlier post - I thought I read 17 minutes, not hours. I need more sleep I guess.

Second, my question still remains - could the event that took down the telegraph have been an earlier unobserved event, and the second observed flare have been aimed such that it's effect would have been smaller or unnoticed? Despite my error, 17 hours is still mighty fast for that stuff to move.

Can the venerable 9:1 matching transformer (for matching a 500-ohm random wire to a 50-ohm coaxial cable) also be used the inverse way, that is, to match an incoming 50-ohm coax to a radio whose only connection is a Hi-Z pair of screw terminals?

Further on, is there any reason why such a matching transformer could not be installed inside said radio behind the screw terminal strip so that a permanent SO-239 could be connected and mounted on the radio chassis?

Thanks,

If I was so "stupid" you would be ignoring me, and of course you demonstrate clearly why the public should hold people with "scientific claims" with as much contempt as those who have a lethal communicable disease -- with extreme caution. And that was about the most polite thing I could say about your reply.

There is nothing more insulting than having your fellow man discard your decades of life experience as some sort of way of proving how much more intelligent "he" or "they" are. And of course such personal comments that target me personally, do not make me scared, they make me angry, which means I will work harder at what I do.

Thanks for the inspiration. You see your slight of hand, your "accepting the responsibility" with your unproven and unprovable "superior intelligence" allows you to tap into that anger, that frustration, because its the oldest play in the book, and the only one liars know, which is why socialists have been miserable throughout history?

And they thought Nixon was a "crook"?

HA HA HAHA HAHA HA HA HA HA HA HA!

Yeah, they are still whining about it. Why a hospital is just so stressful - as if God didn't give us the ability to handle stress without cigarettes. What ever. If I was running a hospital, I would put smoking rooms in the building, and they would be cleaned by state of the art climate control equipment -- assuming of course I could afford it. Oh, wait, if I did that, that could mean your taxes would go up?

Turtle crossings -- no. Smoking rooms -- yes. Grandfather out tobacco -- yes. I see a lot of happy kids on play grounds, and none of them have cigarettes, so the call for us to be "adults" makes no effect on me. Anyone who has almost drowned learning how to swim can experience that "pain" for a split second. Imagine that kind of pain for days, while you slowly die?

American beer isn't fun to drink anyways -- they take all the fun out of it -- by pasteurizing it? Yeah, been there, done that. I don't drink very often, or only on special occasions, and it doesn't sound like this would be one of those times. But, what do you expect from big media "gate keepers"?

The original author was talking about the legality of the situation, not to support the decision of the hospital administrator (or whoever made the decision). Some people like people to watch others die in pain, and I was watching the Glenn Beck show about communism. The arguments about tobacco use demonstrate how easy it is to adopt socialist ideas that are destructive?

But tobacco is a stimulant? So is coffee? Amazing how way the arguments to support tobacco use are also used for other socialist ideas?

Is tobacco use a socialist, communist idea meant to kill people? Why we should ask "Chief Oui Weed"?

Shhh, I think I hear my black helicopter coming, time to go......

Thank you Shawn, tried the link, but the article (Frank Beacham review on VAL retro radio) is not listed. I am sending email to RW online, if any one got a copy of April 9, 2008 issue of RADIO WORLD on hand, please kindly let me know.

Thanks

Apparently we were already observing the Earth's magnetic field in 1859.

George Bernard Shaw was in show business. His opinion on Mussolini didn't matter. In 1929 a lot of prominent Americans admired the Italian dictator and his new corporatist form of government; President W.W.W.
Bush's grandfather among them.

A transformer impedance ratio is a function of the turns ratio and the terminating impedances on each side. As long as the impedances being transformed are the same ratio and the number of turns on the core are the same ratio, the transformer doesn't care one way or the other which direction it's used. So, there's no reason you can't use a 9:1 in an inverse manner. Mounting it internally, with proper care to minimize coupling to other hardware within the receiver will work correctly.

The only consideration worth mentioning, is that a random wire isn't exactly a 500 ohm impedance. Impedance of a random wire changes with frequency. The 9:1 un-un is used to even those variations out, more or less, to an impedance that's reasonably uniform across the spectra in use for the receiver input to accept.

The application you're suggesting isn't going to have those variations, and the 9:1 ratio is fairly close to the actual impedance ratios being applied. Most screw terminal inputs are actually closer to 300 ohm, and may or may not be balanced. And radios so equipped, which also have a 50 ohm SO-239 are also impedance matched from the S0-239 to the front end of the receiver through a transformer, precisely as you describe.

So, with reservations, the answer to your questions are: yes, you can do it. And, no, there's no reason why you can't mount internally.

The only reservations being that the impedances being transformed are not precisely in the exact ratio as designed for the 9:1, which may result in irregular losses, and resonances-- comb filtering. Which you may or may not be able to discern in casual listening.

Money whether its from individuals or corporations/business, is necessary for people to get elected to office. Saying that it is somehow wrong for corporations to give money if there is a disclaimer, IMO shows a distrust for the people.

Why don't you give the theme of the book. The 1st amendment most fundamental purpose is to protect political free speech. This decision seems to be a step in that direction. If they could only strike down McCain-Feigold.

Wayyyyy back in the 1950s, a portly Gentleman by the name of Alon Bee used to do the weather news at one of the Jackson tv stations.They used to have somebody singing,,,,

The weatherrrr, the weatherrrr, whats it going to beeee, here is Reddy Killowatt to show you on tee veeeee, is it going to rain or shine, or is it going to snowww, here is Reddy Killowatt to put you in the knowwww,,,,,,,

And if you sent the electric power company a snail mail, or called them on the phone, they would send you a neat little free Reddy Killowatt pin to wear on your shirt.The Reddy Killowatt pin was red and in the shape of a lightning bolt.

At the end of each Alon Bee tv weather news, he would eat a spoon full of Seale Lily ice cream.Seale Lily was one of their sponsors.

I really don't have any questions about the 1st amendment ... its original intent as we are discussing it, was to protect free speech, leaving aside religion and freedom to assemble.

I referred to YOUR use of it as a red herring in THIS discussion only.
You seem to have extrapolated it to a broad, general statement. Be

Ah, thanks for this Peter - so, if the screw terminals are closer to 300 ohms, then a 6:1 transformer, with perhaps a 2.3:1 turns ratio, could be a better choice?

The radio in question, BTW, is a simple DX-160 - it's front end is pretty wide open anyway, but heck, why not? As long as I don't send a big static charge through it, I figure I cannot do much damage :-)

That would be my thinking. Experimentation is the lifeblood of the hobby, so I'd try it either way see what you get.

DX-160 is a pretty interesting radio to toy with. I've had two, now, with dramatic inconsistencies in performance. Some, here, have done extensive numbers of small modifications and gotten a pretty decent radio out of it, so the raw material is there.

The front end of DX-160 is going to be close, but not really at, any standard impedance. And it varies significantly from unit to unit. It's very likely the scenario you first described in your original post will be more than sufficient. Trial and error will get you on target, but the practical differences in performance may be trivial.

I thought I did, but here goes again.

The book is divided in two parts, the second part being his potential solutions -- which you may or may not agree with. The first part of the book describes actual, real-life, documented evils of Corporatocracy.

Read at least the first half of the book and then let me know if you see any problem.

Hey Stevie...
Are ya sittin' down? Are ya ready for this?

I agree with you; we are on the same side of the fence on this one.

Obama was just telling the people what they wanted to hear -- and they -desperately- want to hear that we are going to get out of those two fiasco sink hole 'wars'. A politician that tells the people what they want to hear -- how quaint! I'm sure no Republican politician ever did that.

But let's look a little deeper.

Poppy (Bush Sr.), in his book, stated that he did not invade Iraq because "there was no exit strategy".

W painted us in a corner in both places -- we are screwed if we stay...and we are screwed if we leave. Why? Because there is NO EXIT STRATEGY. Too bad junior didn't listen to Poppy. And no easy solution for Obama, McCain or anyone else.

So, Obama said it, people are hoping he's right...but only time will tell.

>> and INHERITED a >> major Depression -- that started on Bush's watch.

It DID start on Bush's watch as stated above, pegged at either 4Q '07 or 1 Q '08 by nothing less than the very right wing Wall Street Journal.

As to a "depression", it could be semantics... but it IS the worst economic upset since 1929.

You have to realize that the gubermint fudges the figures; for example, once your unemployment benefits run out, the gubermint takes you OFF the list of the unemployed -- even though you still ARE unemployed.

Re: inflation...the gubermint jockeys those numbers around too, by either continuously changing the "market basket" of goods they use, or just plain ignoring costs of education, medical care and energy.

Believe it or not, many do call this a Depression. Your mileage may vary.

The interview with George Bernard Shaw had him advocating the

Of course, he didn't really explain who would decide what exactly

Money corportions give is not to the politician, but a commercial for/against a politician. If there is full disclosure why isn't this enough? My default is free political speech no matter whether a citizen/association/corporation. Money is like water it finds its way into the political process. Congress has tried, at least since Nixon to control money into politics ... they haven't. Why not let the money flow, because it is anyway, just let everyone know who is giving the money. We are going to have the crooks anyway.

This is the real world, Enron, Global Crossing, WorldCom etc. These will always be with us even with strict regulation. With all the laws we have we still have Bernie Madoff ...
In the cases above the government regulation was suppose to shield us from the problems ... it didn't ... we shouldn't default to more govt control.

I read some of the reviews of the book Hookwinked ... its the same old stuff
... the West (capitalism) is the cause of all the world's problems ... "We, and the rest of the West, learned the trick of selling unneeded infrastructure, services, over-sophisticated weapons--stuff that could never benefit anyone other than the people who lined their pockets. And yes, Perkins is right, the international economists and press were handmaidens to the thievery."

So Muslim jihadists had been attacking the US at least since the taking of hostages in Iran ... bombing of Khobar towers in Saudi Arabia, bombing two US embassies in Africa, Marine barracks bombing in Lebanon, World Trade Center I bombing and then flying planes into the WTC to name a few attacks on the US. Also keep in mind that Saddam had not complied with the Keeping in mind that Congress was held by the Democrats as the US economy

1st Q '08 there was a Democratic Congress ... what did they do?
Unemployment was about 4.6% at that time.

I had a DX-150A in the early 1970s, and if I recall correctly, it had an "antenna trim" control to peak up the input network for maximum signal. The DX-160 may be the same -- the differences were minimal, as I remember.

The trim adjustment would help match varying impedances to some extent, but there could be cases where an input transformer would help even more -- with a random impedance antenna on a wide range of frequencies, it's hard to predict without making measurements.

Transformers work both ways, so one could add a switch for 1) impedance step-up, 2) impedance step-down, and 3) direct connection. Of course, an antenna coupler is another possible way to approach the impedance issue.

With all good wishes,

Kevin, WB4AIO.

What is newsworthy, however, is another figure reported by the BLS: 52 percent of all union members work for the federal or state and local governments, a sharp increase from the 49 percent in 2008.[5] A majority of American union members are now employed by the government;
three times more union members now work in the Post

He is a believer in capitalism -- but he contends that we currently have, for lack of a better term, a perverted or mutant form of capitalism.

Joe, basically all I can say is to read the book. Yes, we as the American people, are good. However, there is NO denying that our government HAS tinkered with and fixed elections in several countries, committed assassinations, poked our nose where it didn't belong and thus created a lot of ill will (and worse). Like it or not and believe it or not, that is a historical fact.

Again, IF YOU ACTUALLY READ THE BOOK, you would see that Perkins IS a fan of, and believer in, capitalism (all the good things you say about capitalism above are true), but not a fan of the perverted form of capitalism we now have.

No sense in us going back and forth like this until you read at least half the book. I am not Perkins nor can I do him justice unless I quote (and type) a large portion of the book -- and I am not a fast typist.
:-) Therefore, I propose putting this thread on hold...

HA HA HA HA-- yeah, its about me when you folk say we can't drill, its about me when you talk about health care behind closed doors, midnight votes, etc? So, will Mr. Brown give your rebuttal speech next Wed?, or Mr. Boehner? It's about me when Senators make wild threats, its about me when election rules are changed on the fly to keep your guy in there?

Well, in a way it is not about me Mr. Obama, it is about you letting a Congress go wild with a liberal agenda, behind our backs, ignoring protests, and bashing any opposition? That's your idea of using a mop?

Gitmo is not about the Constitution, it is about you supporting skinny little, starving, hallucinating Muslims to be assumed innocent before proven guilty? You can't trust your own military to do their job, is that what you are saying Mr. Obama?

We have not been sitting on the sidelines, we've been jumping up and down, trying to get your attention, we want spending in line with GDP growth, federal spending not more than 22% of that GDP, and state tax not more than 10%? And if you think the United States is not a Christian nation, please point out the ratio of cities in the United States that do NOT have a church in them?

We don't need speech o nomics, propaganda, we simply want promises you can keep, and limited government?

As President of the United States, the day you say it is not about you, are you saying you quit? If it is NOT about you Mr. President, then resign, and let somebody in there who wants the job? Or would you rather use the oldest play in the book, that slight of hand, pretending to take responsibility, so you can tap into my anger?

Resign Mr. President, your voodo speech o nomics is not working?

I don't bow to your rich limpballs overlord or suck the cooperate dicks that you do.

If you think this is about free shit, just wait till your job gets exported, and or you get sick and loose your medical coverage. Or, your retirement savings gets lost because the investment you put your savings in (what?! you have no savings?!) looses all your money.

I'm quite center! You, are either quite rich or extremely stupid.

Know the easiest and most accurate way to detect an extremist

They invariably presume to speak for "America".

Not "real People", and more then likely not a person from America.

How about the owner of the FAUX network, who is Australian and has most of his investments in Asia. He has allot to gain from the failure of america. Where does the $400M for Ru$h come from when his advert sales do not support this money?

What gets me the most is how people will believe a 30 second advert with obvious falsehoods!
Short attention span?!

The real answer takes too much time to understand?!

Pretty sad when most of the civilized world laughs at the stupidity of the united states when we vote in people like GW Bush or seriously nominate someone like Pailin who obviously failed elementary school geography. (Africa is not a country)

I wonder about Limbaugh and the thousands of his laid-off Clear Channel colleagues, because the dichotomy is striking: Last July, just months before the radio economy went into free-fall, Limbaugh's bosses at Clear Channel, who enjoy deep ties to Texas Republicans and who have been at the forefront of promoting right-wing radio, rewarded the turbo-talker with the biggest contract in terrestrial radio history. The contract included an eye-popping 40 percent raise over his already gargantuan pay, despite the fact it's doubtful any other radio competitors could have even matched Limbaugh's old pay scale.

The astronomical worth of Limbaugh's eight-year pact: $400 million. The amount of money Clear Channel execs have been trying to scrimp and save this year as they lay off thousands from the struggling company: $400 million. Ironic, don't you think?

The simple truth is that Limbaugh lives in the lap of Clear Channel-backed luxury, while Clear Channel employees are being axed with abandon. And those who are lucky enough to keep their jobs are told to do the work of three or four employees.

No. Citizens can go to jail when they hurt people, corporations do not go to jail.

Corporations have fiduciary duty to maximize profits for the shareholders. They use this as an excuse to run amok.

Future pending article for possible publication, that could, would, or should happen?

What is the litmus test? The ratio of policies and agendas that paint the picture of success? The minority voices in the Democrat Party, that are preventing true chaos, not only deserve our thanks, but our recognition, and they will get that recognition one day?

For example, what was the ratio of the Clinton administration? Welfare to work program? Thumbs up? Did the rest of the agenda pan out? The same goes for the President Obama administration, you can't just get to first base, you have to hit a home run? But if you are not going to even bother catching a ball (baseball) when the other team hits it to you, you'll never get to bat, will you?

I don't think the "heavy hitters" have left the PR machine of the Democrats, and like any PR machine, the only ones that survive are the ones oiled with success? You can't build a PR machine based on what you want to believe?

The Democrats have been playing a baseball game, and reached a point where they thought they were so talented, so valuable, they didn't have to catch the ball thrown by the American People? Or have the American People become so skilled at beating this media machine at their own game, they will make them look like they have stopped even trying to catch the ball?

Epiphany? Maybe when politicians stop looking at politics as though it was a game of baseball, we'll all start winning?

Have a nice day, in the American People War Room, suite 1600, Pennsylvania Ave, Washington, DC?

What do you call creating an environment where minimum wage is not based on skill, or below the poverty line? Because that would eliminate the need for unions? Voodo Speech O Nomics? If Democrats in Congress were regulating commerce, were protecting the currency, why the minimum wage laws below the poverty level, and why are businesses not advised, rather than told what to do?

There's your softball. You think you heavy hitters are so talented, lets see you hit that ball. Otherwise I think a lot of spectators are going to get bored watching one team run circles around the other team, and go home? Form a union, or demand members of Congress to do their jobs?

Another question on this subject - what core should be used for this application?

Amidon, among others, has cores of many materials including 43 and 77, both of which seem to get use in these applications; however, for RFI problems below 10 MHz, Amidon recommends cores of J material, and my RFI problems (while not confined to under 10 MHz) are primarily below that frequency. Would use of J material be wise here, or for this matching transformer would I be better using the old standbys 43 or 77, and then making lots of separate chokes from other materials such as J?

Again, my sincere thanks for the advice...

Well, yes, and "citizens" are also the souls who fill our prisons.

Neither corporations nor citizens are a-priori good or evil: It depends upon the individual; and just as we don't allow individual citizens free reign to do what they will, so unrestricted laissez-faire capitalism also cannot be permitted by a sane society. Because just as we all know that a certain percentage of of citizens will happily commit antisocial acts for their singular benefit, so do we know that many corporate bodies will do the same if given the least opportunity.

The difference being that when an armed robber sticks up a 7-11 only that particular 7-11 is affected, but when corporate America gets greedy we get the recession we're just now starting to recover from: everyone suffers.

At some point, debt repudiation Castro-style will become the dominant political issue in Amerika. You can bet that - at some coming point - Americans, white or not, poor or middle-class, no longer will be willing to be dispossessed for the benefit of Asian banksters - and no benefit to themselves. At that point, a Perot-style political figure will rise to the top - and debt repudiation will become inevitable.

here's another one....

FAUX News reported a $780m profit!
Even though advert revenue is down all across the industry, (including at FAUX News) FAUX News posted a profit! Faux refuses to let anybody know where the extra revenue came from. Is it from drug money? So, I would guess it's from money coming from special interest to have FAUX be the mouthpiece of special interest.

This is only going to get worst!

Liberty Net for Week of January 16-23

http://3950.net/2010/01/liberty-net-for-week-of-january-16-23/

by Kevin Strom, WB4AIO

EVER INTREPID, Liberty Net participants braved bad band conditions and used relay techniques and other methods to get around an ionosphere that wouldnï¿½t cooperate this week. The conversations were as interesting and insightful as ever during the current events discussion net moderated by Vic, W1WCR and recorded by Marty, N2IRJ ï¿½ with multiple live streams and concurrent text chat via N2SAGï¿½s Stickam feed.

Here is a small sampling of some of the provocative topics discussed and debated on the Liberty Net this week (the times indicated show when the respective discussions took place in hours and minutes from the beginning of the recording):

ï¿½ Would a new home in Africa be a rational solution to the tragic destruction of Haiti by Nature and by its inhabitants? Would transfer to Africa also be viable for displaced African-descended populations in Europe and North America? (37 minutes)

ï¿½ Military spokesmen state that the pollution and filth in Haiti are so great that the island can be smelled from 50 miles out at sea. (41 minutes)

ï¿½ The total U.S. aid to Haiti so far ï¿½ about 100 million dollars ï¿½ is just equal to Lloyd Blankfeinï¿½s bonus this year. Goldman Sachs, Blankfeinï¿½s employer, was _short selling_ the very same bogus mortgage-backed securities it was _selling_ to its clients. If thatï¿½s not criminal, what is? (46 minutes)

ï¿½ Is the global warming thesis debunked by the recent cold weather? Some net participants say yes, also pointing to fraud at East Anglia University ï¿½ others say no, saying that the satellite pictures of vanishing ice and glaciers prove global warming is real. (57 minutes)

ï¿½ Black Haitians committed a near-total genocide of White people on that island in the 19th century, but this is not mentioned or commemorated in the controlled media. Why? Another question is why African countries are conspicuous by their failure to offer help and refuge to homeless and helpless Haitians. (1 hour 0 minutes)

ï¿½ The Republicans like scab immigrant labor because it increases profits for predatory corporations, and Democrats like scab immigrant labor because it guarantees more votes for them. Ordinary American workers and families are trapped and have no voice. The end result will be an America turned into an expanded version of Haiti. (1 hour 27 minutes)

ï¿½ Is America headed for civil war? When the economy worsens, and members of the underclass fail to get ï¿½theirï¿½ checks, will it make the looting and rioting in Port-au-Prince and New Orleans look like a picnic? (2 hours 11 minutes)

ï¿½ Itï¿½s now being claimed that a large percentage of the U.S. Treasury gold bars in Fort Knox are counterfeits made of gold-plated tungsten. (2 hours 40 minutes)

ï¿½ We have a backward policy with regard to Muslims ï¿½ we welcome them as they invade our countries and pass laws forcing us to associate with them, while at the same time bombing and killing them by the hundreds of thousands in their home countries where they are causing us no harm whatever. (3 hours 21 minutes)

ï¿½ The so-called ï¿½cellular reception prohibitionï¿½ that prevented scanner radios from tuning in the old 800 MHz analogue cellular telephones was quickly obviated by digital cell phones ï¿½ and now it looks like the government will be taking over the old analogue frequencies. Will the government, in a spirit of openness, repeal the ban on listening to those channels? Donï¿½t bet on it. (4 hours 0 minutes)

ï¿½ Is the promotion of tattoos (including, today, even tattooing the whites of the eyes) a conscious effort of the oligarchs to brand their slaves like cattle? ï¿½ or is the tattoo cult of ugliness a way for brainwashed White people to deny and cover up their Whiteness and natural European beauty? (4 hours 57 minutes)

Check-ins begin at the 22 minute point ï¿½ and this week the Net even had a check-in from Mexico. The total length of the recording is 5 hours 54 minutes.

Remember that you can receive the Liberty Net on the nearest clear frequency to 3950 kHz every Saturday night at 10PM Eastern Time, or listen live on the Internet via N2SAG or N2IRJ, or listen at your leisure via the mp3 files posted here at http://3950.net every week.

Once again, thanks to W1WCR for running this extraordinary net, and to N2IRJ for making these recordings available.

Without specifics on the nature of your RFI, I'd build the transformer from the recommended materials, 43 or 77, and then build frequency specific chokes to purpose. That way, if your RFI changes, as it often can, you're solution is to built another choke, not to revise your receiver's input.

Kevin makes a good point about the antenna trim control at the input of DX-160. That covers a multitude of sins. Not unlike my Nationals, similarly equipped.

That control showed up on DX-120, and was the reason I got interested in this line in the first place. I couldn't afford one until DX-150. Bought one of those, and have had two DX-160s since. Fun radios. Not quite as selective as my S-40 and S-53 Halli's but good for program listening on the big guys. DX-160 had less hum in the audio, and came on immediately. After more than a decade of tubes, by that time, I thought that was bitchin' cool. Just couldn't justify the money at the time.

DX-160 has pretty lifeless audio. Not much above 6k, and bottom rolled of below 150hz. You can bring a little life back to that bottom end, by changing a couple of the capacitors. One in the audio circuit, and one bringing the audio from the detector to the audio stage. Which ones at this point, specifically, I don't recall, but I think one is on a trace on the extreme right of the PCB. It's out there by itself, easy to replace. The other is further inboard, near the audio IC. But you can cut-and-try with a .5ufd or a .1 ufd film, across the any of the likely candidates listening for a change. Can make quite a difference. Although with the fact AGC, and the generally poor audio stage, don't expect Little Jewel audio.

You can clean up the woolly audio by replacing all the ceramic capacitors on the board with films. Better definition and clarity. Small films will fit right in the ceramic positions, and by selecting your components carefully, for things like thermal coefficient, you can mitigate some of the drift. Not all, but some.

And DX-160 will drift.

Further cleaning can be achieved by replacing the electrolytics. Not only in the power supply, but those dispersed throughout the board. After all these years, some will have become, or have begun to become unformed. Some my be distended, indicating impending failure. Some may even leak. Simple replacement procedure.

Touching up the alignment will also help, and using WWV as a frequency standard, you can do a creditable job calibrating dial positions.

Lastly, the dial lights have decent, but not remarkably long life. You can find drop-in LED replacements at Digi-Key, or SuperbrightLeds.com. The warm whites look just like incandescents, and last 100 times longer. You may have to add a small series resistor to the dial light circuit to limit current to the LED replacements. That's a small matter, and dramatically improves life of the lamp without significantly altering lumen output.

Now, if you REALLY want to make this rig over, you can install Murata filters in the IF's. But that may be a long reach for such a simple receiver.

Advertising on Rush's show isn't cheap. There's a LOT of money in advertising, alone. But stations also pay a carriage fee for running the show. These fees, and advertising, easily cover Rush's personal compensation and bonuses as well as profits for his syndicator.

Then, there's his website, also advertising supported, with a subscription base for access to premium content, as well as his newsletter.

There's nothing sinister going on in the way Rush is paid.

Sure is funny how the rich get all these benefits but yet feel they are above paying taxes. They need to pay their far share. It sould hurt them

And don't feed me the limpBALLS classic line about that the rich do pay

The different core type comes from the fact that Amidon is reselling stuff from different manufacterers. I've used both 77 and J for transformers.
They're pretty much the same. Whatever was on the pegboard at the (then existing) local shops. Seems to work best from 3-15 Mhz, if you want to go for higher frequencies, like CB, try a higher frequency (lower perm.) core.

> loonytarian bullshit has the historical onus of being the cause of our > American problems

It is you you have to read history ... todays so called liberal is in no way comparable to the classical liberal of the Framers of the US Constitution. I'll agree that the Framers were liberals at the time, but if you want to compare them to todays liberals you have to compare the American Revolution with another revolution during the same time period ... the French Revolution. This makes the American revolution very conservative compared to French Revolution.

Using the conservative/liberal comparison is to try and hide the racism/segrgation of the Democratic party ... it wasn't the Repulican presidential candidate who sat in a church with a bigot preacher for 20 years and tried to bail himself out with his 'more perfect union' speech which he still tried to defend Rev Wright ... "I can no more disown him than I can disown the black community. I can no more disown him than I can my white grandmother" ... eventully Obama did chuck him under the bus ... todays liberalism advocates dependence on the central govt, hardly the classical liberals position of the framers of the US Constitution who believed in limited govt with enumerated powers.

Whoops! Reading comprehension (1) and non-sequitur (2) problems!

1. Nobody said that except you. Writing your own text and attributing it to someone else has a name: "Straw Man Argument". And it's not a compliment. (http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Straw_man)

2. This is what happens when a fruitloop chooses his (?) reply without

See below for a second example.

Ya see, it's generally inappropriate to pretend laughter after you've

Check your history. Voting rights, civil rights, women's rights and childrens rights were all passed by Republican majorities, while Democrats fought viciously fought them.

Start with the Civil Rights act of 1964. That'll keep you occupied for a while.

According to the IRS:

86% of all Federal Income Taxes are paid by the top 25% of income earners.

97% of all Federal Income Taxes are paid by the top 50% of income earners.

50% of all Federal Income Taxes are paid by the top 1% of income earners.

From the Wall Street Journal:

"Notably, however, the share of taxes paid by the top 1% has kept climbing this decade -- to 39.4% in 2005, from 37.4% in 2000. The share paid by the top 5% has increased even more rapidly. In other words, despite the tax reductions of 2001 and 2003, the rich saw their share of taxes paid rise at a faster rate than their share of income.

Since the Cold War in Europe lasted some 50 years, just how could Shortwave Radio be considered valuable at that time? North Korea has been Communist since 1945 and Shortwave Radio has changed nothing in that situation so far. So, are we all being lead to believe that our infomation broadcasts to N. Korea is going to change anything?

Today's article for future, possible, would have, could have publication after our eccentric web designer makes up his mind.....?

In the name of "economic security" (they don't mention that we are broke now, that would spoil everything?) Vice President Biden, in clever hand sign langauge, explained to our bankers around the world, including the Chinese, in order to make sure there is no misunderstanding, that his administration had decided to award everyone in America who has kids, a tax credit, or a check, for more money than the average Chinese worker makes in a year, simply to make him feel better, and to cross his fingers that he will get elected next cycle, under his "doubling the child credit (which averages at least $1000)?

Nice work, David (speech writer), I can't wait to hear more of your clever remarks that amount to attempting to erase the memories of voters? Isn't that what they are trying to do, write speeches in such a way that you forget what happens?

Why, isn't that naughty? How do you say that in Chinese? How do you say slight of hand, tapping into that anger when the Republicans are in power after these folks are kicked out, and this drag on the economy kicks in?

Oh, the other buzz word phrase "we'll see what happens"?
Translation: We'll ignore you as long as we can?

This liberal media is like being in a candy store, you don't know where to start, you just pick something and you will be bound to find something sweet? For example, to simply demonstrate that they don't want to play ball, you throw them a softball, and of course your team mates start saying "look, he wants to cross the isle", and we just laugh and say, no we are not, we are just proving how determined they are to ignore us, and of course explain how they want to wipe the minds of voters of information if they can"?

Today's article for future, possible, would have, could have
publication after our eccentric web designer makes up his mind.....?

Not in my book, why, anyone can take stuff out the back door of a heavily guarded building, or hide the value of a metal that melts easily? In this regard I disagree with Glenn Beck, and Ron Paul, that the argument for gold is exactly that -- an argument? It is just as easy to put wealth in rocks, diamonds, etc., and the potential for that currency to be destroyed or lost is just as great with paper currencies?

So yes, I'm weary of people that could profit from gold going from being sold by the ounce, to being sold by the gram? Sorry Mr. Vice President, I'm still fuming from watching your silent, memory erasing (he wishes?) partner (Prez Obama) tour a window factory that happens to be run by the husband of your "weatherization" czar, who wants to send SWAT teams all over America?

I don't think Americans deserve income credits, or any tax credits when our books are in the red? Maybe that is the real public perception around the world Mr. Obama, not that our military is stronger, but that Americans think they can ignore the banking issues the rest of the world deals with, that Americans think they are better than others in THAT regard? Or would that stop the bribes that your political party, that invites Republicans to so many meetings about, depend on?

And you say you are fighting for me? Anyone can fire up the banana peels?

No, they call themselves dittoheads because they love Rush's show.

How that got started is pretty simple. And widely ignored, or intentionally misrepresented by such as yourself.

Early on in the run of the show, a woman called in and went on for 2 minutes about how she loved Rush, how she thanked God he was on the radio, and on, and on and on....Well, Rush finally got to her point, addressed it, and moved on to the next call. The first thing out of the succeeding caller's mouth was, "What the previous lady said...Ditto." And then he went on to disagree with Rush. As many of his callers do.

And from that moment, callers would begin their moments on the show with 'Dittos, Rush.' Meaning, "I like your show." And eventually a wide variety of modified 'dittoes'followed. Like 'MegaDittoes,''Conservative Dittoes,'and 'Conservative, SUV Driving, Cigar Smoking Dittoes.'

"Dittoes" do not mean agreement with Rush, only agreement with that first lady who loved Rush's show. Many callers who profess dittoes actually disagree with Rush.

As I, myself, often do. That doesn't mean my radio isn't on Rush middays. It means I listen, but I, like most of his listeners, think for myself. And we don't listen to just conservative talk radio.
Surveys have shown that many of Rush's listeners also regularly tune in to NPR, and the late, not-so-hot, Air America.

Well, if who I'm dealing with is the equivalent of 5-year-old idiot, then yeah, I'll speak in a language he can understand, because he certainly won't have the capacity to understand anything much beyond that.

That's not history, it's just mumbo-jumbo that fails to take into account the easy corruption of free speech in the form of campaign finance by wealthy entities, as happened in the latter half of the 1800s and early 1900s which necessitated the Tillman Act passed under Roosevelt's administration after Roosevelt himself was accused of receiving large sums of cash from fat cat bigwigs in exchange for favors.

You're short on history with that too, huh? Ultimately if he had exercised his veto over it, it still would've been overriden by the Republican-dominated Congress, so he knew there was no point in not signing it. Recognizing it was a no-win situation for him, he nevertheless still did what he could to ensure certain aspects of the Act were made a bit more palatable for him to be able to sign it.

Such a tremendously complicated subject has been a basis for numerous books. Hundreds of millions of common folks have relied upon knowing WHAT was happening in their own countries. SWL behind Iron and Bamboo curtains was (and still has) remained (for some misfortunates) the only source of information. The once mighty USSR was not defeated militarily or economically. On the contrary, it disintegrated from within due to it's own population getting restless and tired of same old government promises of bright future that never materialized. SW listening for a long time WAS the only available means of REAL news even under the most brutal dictatorships after 1945. Gorbachov himself admitted,in an interview, that while being locked up in his summer retreat compound in Foros (Crimea) that ALL his telephones went dead .
Including the strategic Red phone!!! Under such conditions his one and only link with the outside world was a small Sony portable which provided ALL the the news (from August 18 2001 BBC interview)... Can we say any more than that?

After changing just 2 or 3 ceramics in the audio stages has improved enormously in my DX-160. Drift is somewhat moderate, compared to other radios of similar design and era. But, the band switch is VERY troublesome. Really kills gain and sometimes creates other problems as well (requires incessant care,like a newborn). On the positive note: the IF filter is actually of mechanical type,built right into the IF coil ! Calibration is an over statement in this receiver- it was never designed to be a precision gadjet,alas. Even the model which preceded it , the SX/AX- 190 was miles ahead of it in most respects. Radio Shack has been lowering it's standards ever since...

"No more spending for the next three years", the same day his Vice President announces expanding income tax program credits (bribes, checks, money)? Most Americans if they wanted to, could go to the pay day loan store (thanks to deregulation of that industry) and get a loan the size of one of these "tax credits" (a political term meant to brain wash, erase, the memories of voters to make them feel better?)?

Why don't Americans go down to the pay day loan store all the time? Because of the interest rates? So why are politicians in Washington shoving these loans down our throats, making our stomachs squirm because America has gone from a country that lends money, to one that borrows it, under the "expert" leadership of Democrats who laugh and yuck it up while driving around in limos, and instructing interns in the White House in ways that are not meant to be?

Is Chief Oui Weed, who said he would NOT (let me make this clear), said he would NOT sign a bill with earmarks in it, not blink an eye when he signed a bill with over 5000 of them in it? This goes beyond party loyalty, and I don't see how Democrat supporters can look themselves in the mirror every morning. And if the leadership in the Republican party has to mail out surveys to voters, I dare say they are not demonstrating much better leadership potential either?

And "big media" does NOT LIFT A FINGER to try to persuade voters that these income tax program "credits" are nothing more than a clever term that allows them to gloss over the story they have to tell when politicians announce these "new" programs?

So yes, I think Michelle Obama is right, they want to rewrite history, instead of grandfathers leaving the world better than when they left it 3 or 4 decades ago, grand fathers today should leave the world saddling their kids with impossible debts that will make their futures bleak?

Why worry about the minimum wage when you can hand out tax credits?
After all, men are just cattle, they only need food and water, they are not made in the image of God, who is a creator? Is that the financial "theory" behind Democrat strategy? Oh that's right, the entire North East loves unions, and could care less about others, why, if they made wage laws better, there would be no need for unions?

Remember now folks, thanks to Al Gore's global warming, the North American Continent just experienced its greatest temporary weight flux in decades thanks to record amounts of snow fall and ice accumulation?

Ooops, I forgot, because of illegal immigration that occurs in California (according to media spook Michael Savage) they can not conduct simulated earth quake drills by emergency personnel, since they don't have a rainy day fund like they do in Texas which does not have illegal immigration problems?

The difference between California and Texas are the real estate and wage laws? Why after serving 16 years in the Senate, Rep. Hutchison is only too quick to point this out (sarcasm?)?
That's why should should be governor?

State and local elections garner little if any attention in the media (most people look at the names and go who?) and yet those positions frequently are the source of rising real estate taxes? Well, there's no reason to raise taxes unless someone tells the appraiser?

And what about the family that buys a house, loves the neighborhood, and has no intention of ever moving, they get punished with rising tax rates (even though they make the community worth living in) on the "theory" they might sell their house one day and an appraiser says the house is worth more?

But don't you worry? Chief Oui Weed, he's fighting for you. He's in your corner. He's just waiting for someone else to do the heavy lifting, get tired, and then make out that knock out punch?

Why, there are no angry queers in Congress, who like rising real estate values, because it gives bonuses to their buddies?

The classical liberals, like the framers of the US Constitution were for limited govt with enumerated powers. Today who is for limited govt the conservative or the liberal? Your liberal/conservative comparison takes the comparison out of context, I'm just putting it back into context ... Don't try to hide behind the liberal label when it was the Democrats that supported all the above you list ...

Hi, Anthony - when you changed the ceramics, did you change the values too or just a like-for-like replacement with films?

My DX-160 freqs are so far off that it needs SOMETHING... :-O Band 3 is a disaster; 2 is quite good, 4 is pretty far off but usable, 5 is not great. Band 1 is so full of intermod products as to be useless anyway...

How does the bandswitch kill gain? I have pretty good sensitivity on all of the bands (sometimes too much!)...

That's about normal for DX-160 at this age. And it will be prone to intermod. The RF gain control is before the first gain stage, so just turn it down until the intermod products start to decrease. Or reduce the amount of antenna. A good ground will help, too.

Dial calibration is usually adjusted with LO for each band. The upper bands will be further out of tolerance due to the greater sensitivity to component value drift at higher frequencies.

Of course, if the bands are significantly out, you can well assume with some certainty that the IF's are also out. Though likely not by too much.

The bandswitch can be kind of flaky. Can spray cleaning may not have the desired results. If you want to go batshit crazy with this, GoldPoint makes a really nice, configurable-to-purpose Swiss made switch that can be applied to replace the flaky factory switch. You'll never have bandswitch problems again. Cost more more than the radio. More than a couple of them, actually, but anything worth doing is worth overdoing.

They also make some detented step switch rotary faders for audio (I put one in my C-26 preamp) they're amazing. But also not cheap.

I found the manual with schematic for mine. I can have a copy made for you, if you need it.

AGAINST the CRA switched parties?

Hmmmm??

How many of the 23 racist Dem senators?

And of all the Republicans who voted FOR it (a much, much higher parties?

Why did democrats dominate the south at state and local levels for THIRTY YEARS after the CRA?

It already is, and has been for the last 29 years. One significant measure of wealth, particularly for the average American, is personal savings. Since Reagan took over and pushed through Reaganomics, personal savings have steadily declined over the last 3 decades. Looking at personal savings of the wealthy is pointless since they have a variety of financial back-up plans always in action, from varied investments to numerous personal assets to obscene salaries and bonuses, all beyond that which is attainable by the average American, so measuring their wealth is better measured in dollar income thresholds.

http://www.motherjones.com/files/images/Blog_Personal_Savings.jpg

http://www.uscentrist.org/platform/docs/irs-490px.gif

Interesting, isn't it, the correlation between the decline of the average American and the steep rise of the top .1% over the same period of time since Reagan? And that's for point 1%, not 1%. That's how few have benefited so greatly under the trickle-down theory, only it seems to have kind of trickled up at everybody else's expense.

It is interesting to note that many who haven't seen Maitreya will rush to judgement on this. They apparently assume that Benjamin Creme and all of those who stand with him are either fools, liars, or idiots. They fail to realize that the truth is often below the surface and not visible at a glance. Their assumptions are based largely on hearsay and vain imaginings. They are not shy about boldly proclaiming their dimwitted views as if they were true. It's like they have a road block in their mind that prevents them from saying "I don't know". Eventually they'll wake up.

It's kindof like the sky is very cloudy and has been for a long time. Some people have never seen the sun and when people who have seen it talk about it, the pessimists call them liars and idiots. Go figure!

I'm very ready for a new world without political corruption, war, unregulated greed, hunger, and poverty. Seems like it's almost like the sun is going to come up for the first time in a long time. Humanity has been working in the dark under the oppression of athiest/ agnostic billionaires who apparently think that life is a game, that those who amass the most billions are the champions who deserve to lord over the people. Their time is finished. It's time for the people to have the power and for the leaders to be the type who love and respect the people, and want to help them, not manipulate them.

The following was recently sent to my mail box from SI:

Share International has no further details about this interview (date, time, network, etc), for the following reason: it is very important that everyone has the opportunity to respond to Maitreya because they want for the world what He is advocating -- sharing, justice and peace -- rather than because they think He may be the World Teacher.

Note that there is a link to Benjamin Creme speaking about this interview (see base of box on homepage titled 'Maitreya steps forward'). As mentioned on the homepage: "This is the first of many such interviews which will be given in the USA, Japan, Europe and elsewhere, bringing His message of hope to the world".

Everyone liberal or conservative has a relationship with government ... its the nature of man and govt. Anytime there is a revolution one can say the relationship is 'broken' ... the American revolution was no different.

> The government(s) of Europe were generally princes and royalty, the

Are you saying our US Constituton had an expiration date on it? ... '"less govt" cannot be applied to the present rational..."
The Framers really didn't mean what they wrote in the US Constitution about a limited govt??? ... "The powers not delegated to the US by the Constitution nor prohibited by it to the States, are reserved to the States respectively " ... this is untrue??? ... read Art I sect 8 of the US Constitution.

It set NO 'lot of '"government in motion''' ... The Federal Govt role/powers were limited and enumerated by the Constitution ... States were suppose to do the most of the 'every day' governing of the people.

> worse, government siding with wealth and industry)

The US Constitution CAN be changed ... don't give me that 'rule of law' when the Constitution's limited powers are ignored. One of the reasons for that "broken" relationship you write of above, between the American colonist and Great Britian was "He (King George) has erected a multitude of New Offices, and sent hither swarms of Officers to harrass our People, and eat out their substance." ... sounds like what people are complaining about today doesn't it? ... classical liberal thought of the Framers isn't it? So its the conservatives and not todays liberals that are on the side of the Framers and many of todays Americans. Many Americans today have some of the same grievances as listed in the Dec of Ind.
> Your last sentence mixed "party label" and "ideology" (again) to

Of course its revelant ... todays liberal has nothing in common with the Framers of the US Constitution ... todays liberal wants to centralize power in the hands of the Fed Govt and have the people completely dependent. ... healthcare, education, retirement etc from and dependent on the Fed Govt. ... centralized power to control the people. The conservative is for smaller govt and protection of individual rights. Today its the liberals (Democrats) that are for centralized govt control while the Republicans (conservatives) are for a more limited govt and less control. To the extent that anyone still believes in the Constitution its the conservatives.

True, and the conservative believes in smaller and limited govt. ...

The above was classical liberalism and has nothing to do with todays liberalism. Breaking away from Great Britian and freeing slaves was classical liberalism which was for individual freedom. Today's liberal is for central govt control ... the govt gives you healthcare, education, retirement, gives tax money to favored businesses etc. ... central control and not individual freedom.

You can call yourself a liberal, progressive or whatever else you want to call yourself but in the end you are a Democrat who believes in collectivist govt. control.

Wealthiest corporations in America???

Heard on the media last night (01/25) that this ruling also applies to FOREIGN corporations.

Has anyone else heard this or can it be verified?

-If- it is indeed true, people on these NGs that support the ruling are either extremely naive -- or should be in jail (along with the Supreme Court) for supporting such a treasonous idea.

Sorry, but I don't want some Saudi or Chinese company donating millions to support a candidate of THEIR choice in an AMERICAN election.

So?

Murder is against the law -- and yet people still commit murder. Are you saying that just because some break the law, we should have no law? I'll make one of your great leaps and say it looks like you are touting anarchy.

It already is, and has been for the last 29 years. One significant measure of wealth, particularly for the average American, is personal savings. Since Reagan took over and pushed through Reaganomics, personal savings have steadily declined over the last 3 decades. Looking at personal savings of the wealthy is pointless since they have a variety of financial back-up plans always in action, from varied investments to numerous personal assets to obscene salaries and bonuses, all beyond that which is attainable by the average American, so measuring their wealth is better measured in dollar income thresholds.

http://www.motherjones.com/files/images/Blog_Personal_Savings.jpg

http://www.uscentrist.org/platform/docs/irs-490px.gif

Interesting, isn't it, the correlation between the decline of the average American and the steep rise of the top .1% over the same period of time since Reagan? And that's for point 1%, not 1%. That's how few have benefited so greatly under the trickle-down theory, only it seems to have kind of trickled up at everybody else's expense.

What you fail to take into cosideration is that the US economy is dynamic, people moving up and down in economic income classes:
"Also encouraging is the fact that the after-inflation median income of all tax filers increased by an impressive 24% over the same period. Two of every three workers had a real income gain--which contradicts the Huckabee-Edwards-Lou Dobbs spin about stagnant incomes. This is even more impressive when you consider that "median" income and wage numbers are often skewed downward because the U.S. has had a huge influx of young workers and immigrants in the last 20 years. They start their work years with low wages, dragging down the averages.

Those who start at the bottom but hold full-time jobs nonetheless enjoyed steady income gains. The Treasury study found that those tax filers who were in the poorest income quintile in 1996 saw a near doubling of their incomes (90.5%) over the subsequent decade. Those in the highest quintile, on the other hand, saw only modest income gains (10%). The nearby table tells the story, which is that the poorer an individual or household was in 1996 the greater the percentage income gain after 10 years.

Only one income group experienced an absolute decline in real income--the richest 1% in 1996. Those households lost 25.8% of their income. Moreover, more than half (57.4%) of the richest 1% in 1996 had dropped to a lower income group by 2005. Some of these people might have been "rich" merely for one year, or perhaps for several, as they hit their peak earning years or had some capital gains windfall. Others may simply have not been able to keep up with new entrepreneurs and wealth creators.

The key point is that the study shows that income mobility in the U.S. works down as well as up--another sign that opportunity and merit continue to drive American success, not accidents of birth. The "rich" are not the same people over time. "

They already pay far more than commensurate taxation would assess by orders of magnitude.

What you propose is not sharing the expense but punitive confiscation for providing the impetus that drives the economy.

Not sure if it would, but a lot of corporations are owned by foreigners. If you think someone like Rupert Murdoch is an American just because he became a naturalized citizen, well, think again. He only did so because legally only US citizens are allowed to own American TV stations.

Well, it's going to happen, thanks to the right-wing faction of the Supreme Court. First, right-wingers practically sink the country financially and now they're just giving it away to any unscrupulous cabals out there for the taking of it.

Lies, damnable lies and statistics....

To paraphrase Clinton, it all depends on what your definition of 'income earner' is.

Many of the wealthiest people have very, very modest annual honourariums. Their real income is directed or manipulated through non taxed channels.

Paying forty percent tax on one twentieth of your total income is a sweet deal.

Not the way you do it, no.

Your premises are gratuitously based in the fundament that 'there are no enemies on the Left, and that there is no honor on the Right.'

Gratuitously denied.

That's also worked for a couple of centuries.

The notion that you can simply plunder private wealth under the brand of 'fair share of expenses for running the society' flatly denies that the private wealth is already taxed at a dramatically, confiscatorily, higher rate than the base of the population. Which those who consume the bulk of services provided by the society pay little share of the expenses of running the society. Many, nearly 25%, pay zero share at all.

If you're going to tax income, and claim 'fair share' then tax all income. Otherwise call it for what it is: Plunder of private wealth. In which case the word 'fair' doesn't belong in your mouth.

False on its face.

Look at the number of Veterans who sit at the top of that wealth.

> They contribute to no policy or acts which make society better

Also false on its face. Look at the number of Congresspersons who served. Compare that number to the number of wealthy in the Congress, and when you compare THAT number to the number of Democrats in Congress, you see that the preponderance of private wealth in the hands of Congress persons is primarily in the hands of Democrats, as substantial number of which who served.

You may want to actually look at the facts before you assert 'fairness' in your plunder of private wealth.

882. Observations/questions about HD Radio

Message-ID: <f81c7a5a-637d-40b9-8241-bc6822501cc8@33g2000vbe.googlegroups.com>
Source record: 192732

I've recently picked up a Sangean HDT-1 for a song ($70 bucks shipped), and have hooked it up to my stereo. I have noticed several stations here in the Twin Cities that do not utilize the display features of HD Radio, and was wondering if it was due to a) incompetent engineers, b) incompetent listener (me!), or c) incompetent corporations (Ibiquity or Clear Channel?). Here's a list of most of the stations I received during the day on Jan. 26, 2010;

88.5 KBEM RDS only

89.3 KCMP HDx2

90.3 KFAI HDx1 (not 24/7)

91.1 KNOW HDx3

92.5 KQRS HDx2 ###

93.7 KXXR HDx2 ###

94.5 KSTP RDS only

97.1 KCTZ HDx2 ***

98.5 KTIS HDx3

99.5 KSJN HDx2

100.3 KTLK HDx3 ***

101.3 KDWB HDx2 ***

102.1 KEEY HDx2 ***

102.9 WLTE HDx2

104.1 KZJK HDx2

105.7 WGVZ nothing detected

106.7 K294AM (KFAI translator)

107.1 WFMP RDS only

107.9 KQQL HDx2 ***

Observations - using an RCA VHF/UHF amplified antenna works extremely well here near Little Canada, with the caveat that the amplification level needs to be at the absolute minimum, or else the front end gets swamped.

I've also noticed that there are varying degrees of info passed on via the display; for example, the stations marked with (###) only show the station name and HD channel (KQRS-1), with absolutely no song/artist data to speak of (yet it is showing up via RDS on my Grundig Ocean Boy 510); and the stations marked with (), upon HD lock, only show the following repeating text; "hd radio...www.HD-Radio.com"; what's interesting about that is my Sony XDR-S3HD does show artist/track info on those () channels... incidentally, most, if not all, of the latter group are Clear Channel stations, so maybe they have decided to save some money by eliminating engineers? Then again, for as much as they have tried pushing this on the public, no one really seems to care, so their engineers must not care too much either.

My questions would be this - is it possible that the Clear Stations are just not implementing their display data correctly, or have there been changes to the data stream that my rig isn't capable of decoding? I've read several accounts of radio staff using this model as their off-air monitor equipment, since they are built so well. I am quite impressed with it so far. If anyone is interested, the firmware on this rig is Ver. 1.3f 061227.

Does anyone know why the display error is happening? Thanks for any info you might have.

That has no bearing on the case. You know full well that Government NEVER lies or mis-represents ANY situation.

I noticed that the US Military have turned away five airplanes carrying food and medicine to the Haitians. It seems they need the space for the munitions they will be using in the invasion of Venezualan next year.

Using a disaster of such magnitude to aid in further military conquest is OBSCENE.

That is one sick administration you have, I'm sorry to say. I, like others, had thought Obama would be different. Things are obviously beyond his control.

Obiteme is an empty suit. Was when he was in Chicago. Was in the Senate. He's not in control of anything.

He's, at best, a figure head, run by the Party.

Jeez, Mouse, can't you do better than to perpetually be a boot-licking

Thanks, Mark. I am really interested more in lower HF freq ranges, such as 25 meters and up, especially the tropical bands. As luck

As I look at the schematic, I realize the band switch actually has quite a bit to do - each time it is turned, about a half dozen connections are mechanically made and broken simultaneously. Is this the source of the trouble? Honestly, I don't think it is a problem in my radio - but maybe I am missing something.

...but I cannot put my finger on what it is. The radio is alive with signals this evening where yesterday it was zilch, and the background AND RFI is all much quieter and easier to tame than usual. 60 meters is hopping with stations, almost as good as the best times of the last solar cycle, especially Asia and a few Africans (R. Tajikistan on 4765 kHz and CV Voice International on the Zambia relay on 4965 in English were both pretty nice). For the past several days the bands have been dead and noise has been obnoxious. I checked the indices and solar flux - A = 2, K = 0, SF = 80, so not unusual for the last week or so.

All I can figure is that, with the rains that we have gotten here in California, the ground has finally gotten wet enough to give a good ground again.

Anyway, I think ground matters! Keep that soil well watered!

WSJ?! that is owned by ... Who?!

*how most millionaires get away with paying little or no taxes.

Most of the wealthy incorporate their personal assets and properties into a small paper C-corps. All their houses, cars and investments are under these style companies that have allot of tax instruments. (really meant for a company likes "Joe's Plumbing") The board members, (the millionaire's self and families) draw a salary and as with any company, write this off as a expense.

All the millionaire's REAL income from his real bread winning company is moved into this small paper c-corp shelter by having this c-corp hired as a consulting company by the big bread-winning company thus sheltering his income from personal taxes. The millionaire (and family, as stated above) is payed a small salary to have some spending cabbage (like a $4k/month allowance) but since the sum is low, there is only a little income that is actually taxed. The amortization of the c-corp assets can now also be written off. House workers such as gardeners, cooks and maids are expenses that are once again written off. There are many angles this can take. Specially, with over-sea investments! (nudge nudge wink wink)

This is just a small peak at how the rich get by with paying so little if any taxes.

Buffet admits that he pays less tax then his receptionist!!!

Remember, "stupid people pay taxes!" -Leona Helmsley

Those are, of course, two separate things. You've already been told the percentage of their income that they pay in taxes, so why do you care that despite paying most of the taxes in this country, they manage to keep SOME of it? Is it envy?

Yeah, that's something people have to want to give up, and I've been to the point where a cigarette seems like your only friend, until you start coughing up blood, then it dawns on you, that's not your friend?

Smoking is an excellent example of how "socialist" type ideas take root, people make up all kinds of excuses why something obviously bad is good for them? Meth is 'out of this world", so much so, that it burns out your brain cells because they pump so many chemicals out that make you feel good, you end up an empty shell, and God help you if you had kids, who watched it happen? Really?

Well, I'm not going to take away your cigarrettes, or even try to, the subject wandered away from an employer who simply wanted the stuff out of the business picture (and that is a view shared by many). I would like an honest debate about grand fathering the stuff out -- the kids that can't buy it now, should not be able to in the future. Of course I also think that you should be able to grow your own tobacco, I don't want you paying my taxes? So would it all be a waste of time even trying to enforce such laws, don't we have enough to worry about?

That's for you people to decide for yourselves? But then again, if we are so afraid of talking about God in class rooms, a cigarette is a low priority on the totem pole? Teach classes about God with no grades, no passing, no failing grades, just talk? A right to smoke?

A right to live in Yemen? A right to apathy? Really? A right to failure? A right to save a drowning man? Really?

Have a nice day!

Wow, all the wonderful names I was called, only effective people get called those names? So inspiring, being an American?

The same number of poor people that got rich because of taxation.

That they don't go broke is not the issue. They're paying for all the services used by people who do not pay taxes. So it's not about funding the society, it's about confiscation so those who don't want to earn for themselves don't have to.

* On Sept. 8,1992, Bill Clinton: "The only people who will pay more income taxes are the wealthiest 2 percent, those living in households making over $200,000 a year."

In response to a Bush-Quayle ad that people with incomes of as little as $36,000 would see a tax increase under the Clinton plan, Bill Clinton said, Oct. 1, 1992, "It's a disgrace to the American people that the President (Bush) of the United States would make a claim that is so baseless, that is so without foundation, so shameless in its attempt to get votes under false pretenses."

Yet the NY TIMES in the analysis of Clinton's budget wrote, "There are tax increases for every family making more than $20,000 a year!"

While Clinton continued to defend his middle-class tax cut publicly, he privately expressed the view to his advisers that it was intellectually dishonest." (The Agenda, by Bob Woodward, p. 31)

* Bill Clinton said that the new gasoline tax (4 cent per gallon) would go to a deficit reduction trust fund. No such fund has been established to date...

* Feb. 10, 1993, "The deficit of this country is about $50 billion a year bigger than I was told it was going to be before the election." --Bill Clinton, after "discovering" that the deficit was $110 Billion LESS than he had claimed in July.

* Bill Clinton, explaining his policies for balancing the budget .."And I give you my word to do it without the blame game of the last twelve years of Reagan and Bush."

Oops...within 24 hours he was on television saying "I can't do it." Went on for the next 20 minutes explaining why it was Bush's fault that he couldn't succeed in balancing the budget.

24 hours. Usually, he undid himself within the same sentence.
Something of a record.

There are more. But you have the same resources I do. Do your own work, if you're really interested in the truth.

They pay their taxes. And the poor's too. And most of the middle classes, as well. All for services that they, themselves do not use.

Arthur , not Anthony is the name here. Made some audio changes several years ago according to www.mods.dk (excellent site, by the way). If I remember correctly, it was C58 0.1uF became 5uF (electrolytic) and C62 0.001 became 100pF. Audio became listenable at this stage and I was never interested in making an eagle out of this turkey. Stability is an old problem with most analog radios,whether tubed or solid state ! Power supply, mixer/oscillator, variable capacitors as well as regular component drift- all of these will reflect in short/long term drift. The worst offender ,in my opinion is S350 purchased from RShack. Under a Grundig label it was really a Tecsun made portable. Never in my life did I see such abnormal drift!
Had something to do with temperature since it would get really freaky in the summertime, especially pronounced at the higher HF frequencies.
DX-160's problems are nowhere near this bad. Oh, about that GoldPoint bandswitch,Peter. What material is it made of ? If it has silver contacts,then it is a real switch.

Liberty Net for Week of January 23-30

http://3950.net/2010/01/liberty-net-for-week-of-january-23-30/

by Kevin Strom, WB4AIO

THE FOREMOST current events discussion net on amateur radio, the weekly Liberty Net moderated by Vic, W1WCR and recorded by Marty, N2IRJ, proved itself again as a bastion of free and unfettered speech this week. For a full immersion experience, log on Saturday evenings beginning at 10PM Eastern for live audio feeds of the Net (sometimes from several stations simultaneously) and live text chat too at stickam.com/thelibertynet via N2SAG.

Here are just a few of the topics and ideas covered during the wide-ranging debates and discussions:

ï¿½ Some disinformation agents are promoting the idea that the Haitians are the victims of an ï¿½earthquake weaponï¿½ set up by ï¿½light-skinned elitesï¿½ to harm ï¿½people of color.ï¿½ Hugo Chavez has apparently picked up on this story. One might as well also believe in the efficacy of Voodoo to prevent earthquakes. (29 minutes)

ï¿½ Ever since massive non-White immigration began decades ago, Los Angeles has spent over 25 million dollars ï¿½fighting gangs.ï¿½ Now it is estimated that there are more gangs than ever before ï¿½ some 90,000 gang members virtually ruling over ï¿½no goï¿½ zones in the formerly beautiful city. Recently an entrepreneur has adapted to the new reality and started offering $65-per-person tours of ï¿½Forbidden Areas of Los Angelesï¿½ ï¿½ areas where even the police fear to go because they are controlled by Black and Mestizo gangs. All tour participants must sign a waiver acknowledging that they may be victims of crime and holding the tour company harmless for any damages. The busses are driven by ï¿½ex-gang members,ï¿½ supposedly. The tour operator claims he has ï¿½negotiated a cease fireï¿½ so his busses arenï¿½t fired upon. (26 minutes)

ï¿½ Senegal is now alone among Black African countries offering refuge to Haitian earthquake victims. However, Senegalï¿½s government wants funding from White nations to provide transportation and support for the Haitians ï¿½until they become self-supporting.ï¿½ Considering that fully 40 per cent. of Haitiï¿½s income was provided by American taxpayers even before the disaster, the attainment of self-supporting status may never happen. So far, no one has taken Senegal up on the offer. (34 minutes)

ï¿½ ï¿½If youï¿½re a representative whoï¿½s against big corporations, youï¿½re not going to be around.ï¿½ Thatï¿½s the conclusion of one Liberty Net participant, commenting on the recent Supreme Court decision allowing unlimited use of corporate money to support or oppose candidates. (48 minutes)

ï¿½ There is a great deal of anger among the American people as their nation and their economy implode ï¿½ but the people donï¿½t know where to focus that anger. Itï¿½s a lot like post-9/11 America, where we were foolishly led to focus our anger ï¿½ and make war ï¿½ on Iraq. This made no more sense than making war on the Bahamas, and Americans today are equally misled. (55 minutes)

ï¿½ Scott Brown says a lot of things that decent, concerned Americans want to hear ï¿½ but the likelihood is that he will just be a tool of the Newt Gingrich/neocon leadership of the Republican party, who have led us to economic disaster and subservience to Zionism and multiracialism. (1 hour 13 minutes)

ï¿½ Glenn Beck is now trying to associate ï¿½9/11 truthersï¿½ (a pejorative term for anyone who doubts the oligarchsï¿½ pro-ï¿½War on Terrorï¿½ version of what happened in September 2001) with Barack Obama and revolutionary Communism. (1 hour 16 minutes)

ï¿½ As we ï¿½celebrateï¿½ Martin Luther King day, it is good to remember that MLK described himself as a Marxist, cheated to get his PhD, and betrayed the interests of even his own people by opposing their self-determination and freedom, instead promoting the idea of a multiracial empire in which no people can possibly be free. (1 hour 40 minutes)

ï¿½ A small businessman is attempting to start the All-American Basketball League, a family-friendly and crime-free sports organization for European-Americans. (1 hour 45 minutes)

ï¿½ Just like there were ï¿½nazi huntersï¿½ after World War II and even unto the present day, we need ï¿½bankster huntersï¿½ who will arrest, prosecute, and seize the assets of the financial criminals who have perpetrated the greatest theft in history through their mortgage, ï¿½bailout,ï¿½ and other financial scams. (2 hours 23 minutes)

ï¿½ Those who believe that the CIA is working for American interests are sadly mistaken. (2 hours 32 minutes)

ï¿½ The same kind of unmanned drone aircraft that are launching CIA missiles into apartment buildings in Pakistan are now being authorized for surveillance and other missions in the U.S. by the police, ï¿½border authorities,ï¿½ and ï¿½other government agencies.ï¿½ (3 hours 0 minutes)

Net discussions begin at the 4-minute point and the total length of this weekï¿½s recording is 5 hours 31 minutes.

Remember that you can receive the Liberty Net on the nearest clear frequency to 3950 kHz every Saturday night at 10PM Eastern Time, or listen live on the Internet via N2SAG or N2IRJ, or listen at your leisure via the mp3 files posted here at http://3950.net every week.

Once again, thanks to W1WCR for running this important discussion net, and thanks also to N2IRJ for making these recordings available.

Not sure my wife would stand for chicken wire as landscaping :-) The house already looks like an HOA's worst nightmare (Luckily, the neighbors are supportive).

Ronald Steven Federici has often been described as “a leading expert in the neuropsychological evaluation and treatment of children having multi-sensory neurodevelopmental impairments.”

He is best described as a “developmental neuropsychologist,” specializing in the treatment of “institutional autism” (which he also calls “post-traumatic autism,” or “post-institutional autistic syndrome”).

Dr. Federici is licensed by the Virginia Board, and is the holder of a Psy. D. degree.

Dr. Ronald Federici is the author of “Help for the Hopeless Child: A Guide for Families, With Special Discussion for Assessing and Treating the Post-Institutionalized Child” and is the founder of Neuropsychological and Family Practice Associates, in Clifton, Virginia.

He has worked with adopted children from Russia, Romania, Ukraine and Belarus. He is also the father to seven adopted children of his own.

Federici is also an outspoken opponent of dangerous practices, such as those resulting in the death of Candace Newmaker. In addition, he has also sought to provide as much assistance as possible to children living in orphanages and other institutions with deplorable conditions.

Perhaps we weren't shielded BECAUSE of corporate donations. It's hard to go after people who just gave you millions for 'advertising' purposes.

All donations should be, by law, made by individual human beings, in their own name only. No 'donations' from corporations, unions, church groups or any other organization should be allowed.

The way things are now, a citizen gets one vote. A corporation gets the equivalent of ten or twenty or thirty million (or more) votes, sometimes to the detriment of real people.

government; they have only a talent for getting and holding office.

Their principal device to that end is to search out groups who pant and pine for something they can't get and to promise to give it to them.
Nine times out of ten that promise is worth nothing. The tenth time is made good by looting A to satisfy B. In other words, government is a broker in pillage, and every election is sort of an advance auction sale of stolen goods." [H. L. Mencken]

I got a phone call this afternoon from a guy at DirecTV, Stacy,Minnesota.I signed up for some Starz and Encore tv channels, $12.99 per month.First two months, a rebate.
Doggy is checking out those Starz and Encore channels right now.

Tomorrow, I am driving my 1983 Dodge van to Acey's Performance Exhaust

If you had a Wellbrook loop, then the ground doesn't matter. Well, I think. I have noticed the radio propagation programs like SPLAT have hooks for ground conductivity, though I never experimented with them.

I've noticed in the desert, they run significant counterpoise for NDBs, so water does have some effect. You can see the counterpoise from Google Earth. Now I don't know of any desert shortwave stations to view, but it would be interesting to see what a Middle East site looks like.

I used to work with a Romanian that listened to the BBC when he was living in that hell-hole. The guy knew his modern history quite well.
Without shortwave, you would have something like Checkov on Star Trek, who believed the Soviet pravda.

There is a story, probably not on the internet due to how many years ago it happened, where a BBC official got the special treatment from Ceausescu. Apparent Ceausescu had a chair that would nuke the occupant. I did a google search and can't find the story, but my recollection is the BBC person got cancer after the "treatment."

And we always thought Vlad Drakul was inhuman... In some instances old stalinists were extremely innovative. Anyone still remembers the poison darts (shot from a specially made umbrella) which killed a bulgarian dissident in London ?

No problem,Bruce. After the audio modification it's frequency response will improve substantially . Original design claimed 300Hz-3 KHz. Ever tried to run it on 12VDC external power supply- may solve some of the drift. N.B. The IF bandwith is 4 KHz, if not mistaken. T16 is a coil with a mechanical filter, not very spectacular at all- has rather broad attenuation skirts for such a component. May be one day I will swap it with a Murata or NTT ,if they match the holes. Wonder what impedances are involved here, sometimes it makes a tremendous difference. No standard Collins (new or old) filters that I know of will fit in here, thanks God !

Gold, actually.

Select the number of switch positions you want, stack the layers you need, and wire it up. Pretty slick. Not cheap, but you'll never have to screw around with a bandswitch again.

Truthfully, it's overkill for DX-160 and it's family. But then, anything worth doing is worth overdoing.

They weren't darts; they were round, like tiny BBs, with pores that held Yesterday, and right now, this afternoon, I see no less than four, perhaps five, Airplanes spewing that Chemtrail Sh.t all over Jackson,Mississippi.

I live about fourteen miles West of the Jackson International Airport, and about three something miles Southeast of Hankins Airfield.I Know those Airplanes didn't fly out of Hankins Airfield, probally not from Jackson International Airport either.I wonder where those Communist MOFO chemtrail spewing Airplanes came from?

FYI, guys - the white trails left by jet planes at altitude are water condensate, simple cloud formations that result from the pressure drop at the trailing edges of the aircraft wings. No chemicals in these obvious clouds other than water vapor.

That's not say that the jet engines themselves do not leave a trail of combustion products and non-combusted hydrocarbons in their wakes. These would show visibly, if at all, as pale brown trails. However, the white clouds off the wings are exactly what they appear to be, just water.

Usually not at all. There's virtually no visible by products or hydrocarbon trails from modern jets at altitudes, but if you spend any times in neighborhoods on, or even near, an approach path, they're all scarred, stained and damaged by the crap coming out of jet engines overhead. To the degree that some activist groups are now making an issue of it, attempting to bring operators of these aircraft to account.

In cold weather, where contrails are visible at dramatically lower altitudes, the off wing vapor is not limited to atmospheric water, but contains de-icing compounds as well. Quite a lot of them under conditions of high icing. But even under low or no icing conditions, there are still de-icing compounds in the wing vapors.
This from the film of deicing compounds remaining on the wings, in crevices or mechanical openings.

But the damage is not limited to regions around airports. When I lived in Rockford, there were a number of instances of damage from jet contrails visible as vapor from tens of thousands of feet overhead, no where near an airport.

One of those Airplanes spewing chemtrails was flying in from the West at low altitude, then that Airplane swooped up to a higher altitude.It is a criss cross pattern of chemtrails with diagonal chemtrail pattern too.

I Know the difference between Contrails and Chemtrails.I have lived here most of my life, I Know the regular Flight paths of the commercial Airplanes around here flying in and flying out of Jackson International Airport.

Documentation of Chemtrails in Mississippi

There were four, perhaps five Airplanes this afternoon, simultaneously/at the same time, flying around and spraying chemtrails over Jackson,Mississippi

Yesterday, and today isn't the first time I have seen them around here.

Believe whatever you want to believe, but chemtrails are for real.

There was a power outage today at Jackson International Airport and some other areas in Pearl,Mississippi.(JIA is in Pearl, a suburb city of Jackson, across the Pearl River from doggy's couch) A tree limb fell down on some electric wires.

I did not watch the speech by President Obama (I recorded it) because I knew, that without malice, without a bad bone in his body, Rush Limbaugh rattled off about a dozen things that day before the speech that would turn the country around and solve many of our problems? A rush to analyze the speech? HA HA HA HA HA HA HA!

What good are tax credits for investment for equipment when you can't afford to hire the help to run the equipment? They just couldn't let go of that tax opportunity? Don't worry Mr Obama, we won't have an attitude that reminds people that the "mess" you inherited was created by the Democrats, because obviously, George Bush was not "edge a mikated" enough to pass those bills by himself?

So yes, we have learned how to hit the "reset" button (in the spirit of Soviet relations) and of course we look forward to emphasing exactly the state of delusion, the state of attitude of Temporary Contractor President Barack "H" Obama?

Well, like all good news, it must end on the brightest point of the day?

Speaker Pelosi on the end of a long stick, poll vaulting? HA HA HA HA HA HA HA!

The number of young soldiers who end up leaving the military every day over the same period for discipline problems is an estimated 100 times greater than that? What if expert physchologists conclude that people who admit they are gay, are also liars when asked why they are gay? So yes, you can dive into the emotional substance, but in reality, 3 soldiers a day quitting out of 2 million or so are not going to affect your combat readiness?

Just another example of how politicians wish to use the media to put shiny little objects in front of you to paint them as some kind of hero that they are really not?

Victory depends on honesty? Just "deal with it"?

"Special Interests"? HA HA HA HA HA HA HA HA! Really? If that was so true, why doesn't Temporary Contractor President Barack "H" Obama demand that unions no longer are allowed to use funds for political activities? This is the same guy that thinks the "Constitution did not address the redistribution of wealth"? This is the same guy that thinks the Supreme Court in Honduras was wrong?

Did they mention that if it were not for the Republicans fighting health care and cap and trade your civil rights, they were not able to raise taxes last year? Who did that, the People? The People, who somehow, don't have a government that represents their "decency"?

And ALL, ALL, ALL, ALL, ALL, those "new" jobs created were either government, or union, or both?

Oh, and 40 senators "stood in the way", or 80 million Americans stood in the way? How many people are represented by the Republicans today? 100 million? So why is this delusional, political pandering and personalizing vague attacks on what are representatives of the People? Those are not "senators" those are the People?

Delusional, huh?

The majority of the S. Court Judges were installed by REPUBLICAN'Ts! In smaller words you can understand... The supreme court is right-winged. Beside, the president can't change the constitution. Did you ever graduate from grade school?!

Your a total limpballs dick-sucking idiot who is clueless on how our goverment even works.

Think about this....

Funny how fast they can vote out campaign finance reforms as unconstitutional but yet leave you gun toting Christians hanging for 35 years with out touching roe-v-wade.

If anti-abortion is the only reason christians vote for the GOP, they have been wasting their vote on the "hypocritical do-nothing party of NO" to actually killing more people then they THOUGHT they were saving!
Fools ...
Then again, what has being christain (or muslim) had to do with not killing people?

That is because the fat slob had a pre-release of the speech. He is not a magical fat floating and "all knowing" being like you think he is. HAHAHA

He tricked and/or Lied to you!

Stupid people like you who have no clue about goverment policy other then what is DICKtated to you by your drug-addled dropout fat slob of a GOP leader, should not be allowed to vote. For one small moment in your life, have you ever thought for yourself?

But then again, your 50% of the people with an IQ below 100 need to be represented. Sigh....

Saint Ronnie, now clearing brush for Satan, fired and retired millions to make his government look successful, cut taxes on frat boys and ran us into 2 Black Friday crashes in 5 years. Oooooo what a brainiac.

Im pretty sure that this Corporate issue is unfavorable across part lines.
Ive never met anyone who thought Corporations should be allowed to finance elections. Its just inherently wrong. JUst like The Dems and Repubs are only allowed to have government funds for elections . No other party is allowed to do so. Your whining clearly showes your bias and coruption.

Democrats and Republicas are the problem, not the solution.

(Ashcroft passed the patriot test in an intensive care ward.)

On the night of March 10, 2004, as Attorney General John D. Ashcroft lay ill in an intensive-care unit, his deputy, James B. Comey, received an urgent call.

White House Counsel Alberto R. Gonzales and President Bush's chief of staff, Andrew H. Card Jr., were on their way to the hospital to persuade Ashcroft to reauthorize Bush's domestic surveillance program, which the Justice Department had just determined was illegal.

In vivid testimony to the Senate Judiciary Committee yesterday, Comey said he alerted FBI Director Robert S. Mueller III and raced, sirens blaring, to join Ashcroft in his hospital room, arriving minutes before Gonzales and Card. Ashcroft, summoning the strength to lift his head and speak, refused to sign the papers they had brought. Gonzales and Card, who had never acknowledged Comey's presence in the room, turned and left.

The sickbed visit was the start of a dramatic showdown between the White House and the Justice Department in early 2004 that, according to Comey, was resolved only when Bush overruled Gonzales and Card. But that was not before Ashcroft, Comey, Mueller and their aides prepared a mass resignation, Comey said. The domestic spying by the National Security Agency continued for several weeks without Justice approval, he said.

"I was angry," Comey testified. "I thought I just witnessed an effort to take advantage of a very sick man, who did not have the powers of the attorney general because they had been transferred to me."

Tony Blair has denied striking a "covert" deal with George Bush to invade Iraq at a private meeting in 2002 at the US president's ranch.

He told the Iraq inquiry there was no secret about what was said - that Saddam Hussein had to be dealt with and "the method of doing that is open".

The former prime minister was also quizzed about the claim Saddam could launch weapons at 45 minutes' notice.

He said "it would have been better" if headlines about it had been corrected.

The inquiry has now broken for lunch.

Mr Blair used the morning session to mount an impassioned defence of the decision to go to war, telling the inquiry: "This isn't about a lie or a conspiracy or a deceit or a deception.

"It's a decision. And the decision I had to take was, given Saddam's history, given his use of chemical weapons, given the over one million people whose deaths he had caused, given 10 years of breaking UN resolutions, could we take the risk of this man reconstituting his weapons programmes or is that a risk that it would be irresponsible to take?"

No, it isn't. It has four conservatives - Alito, Roberts, Scalia and Thomas.....four liberals - Stevens, Ginsburg, Breyer and Sotomayor (who replaced the liberal Souter) and one swing vote - Kennedy who votes either way depending on the issue like O'Conner used to.

989. The K7RA Solar Update

Newsgroup: rec.radio.shortwave

Message-ID: <5vKdnfWpN4Adz_7WnZ2dnUVZ_hti4p2d@earthlink.com>

The K7RA Solar Update

We've seen average daily sunspot numbers for this reporting week. Since last Thursday through Wednesday this week, the numbers rose more than 9 points to 28; the average solar flux slipped more than 2 points to 81.9. Geomagnetic indices were a tiny bit lower. Sunspot numbers for January 21-27 were 17, 30, 40, 32, 34, 28 and 15, with a mean of 28. The 10.7 cm flux was 82.6, 82.4, 84.6, 84.6, 81.2, 79.8 and 77.8, with a mean of 81.9. The estimated planetary A indices were 4, 2, 4, 4, 3, 3 and 2, with a mean of 3.1. The estimated mid-latitude A indices were 4, 2, 4, 2, 3, 1 and 0, with a mean of 2.3. The predicted solar flux for January 29-31 is 76, 80 on February 1-2, 82 on February 3-5 and 88-89 for the following five days. We don't see any geomagnetic upset predicted until February 16, with the planetary A index only rising to 10, which is hardly an upset.

On the STEREO image, we can see sunspot 1041 in the Sun's southern hemisphere, around 30 degrees past the central meridian. The unseen area (not yet visible to the STEREO mission) of the Sun is exactly at 45 degrees wide today, and shrinking. A sunspot is moving toward the eastern horizon and looks to be less than 55 degrees away from first visibility. If it takes roughly 27.5 days for a complete solar rotation relative to Earth, we can divide 27.5 days by 360 degrees, then multiply the result by 55 to estimate that the sunspot may begin to emerge in a little over four days.

This week we received a very interesting e-mail from Richard Grubb, W0QM, an Associate of the NOAA Space Weather Prediction Center in Boulder, Colorado. Richard pointed out that the third paragraph of last week's bulletin may have been confusing. He writes: "The term Sudden Ionospheric Disturbance (SID) is used today to replace Short Wave Fadeout (SWF) which was coined many years ago in the 1930s when the immediate effects of a solar flare on the ionosphere were first observed and correlated. The flare produces a sudden large increase in the flux of solar x-ray and far EUV radiation (see here for more information) that reaches the Earth at the speed of light.

"The radiation is absorbed in the ionosphere at D region heights (70-90 km) and produces an increase in ionization that acts to absorb signals that would otherwise be propagated via the F and E regions. The effect can be drastic and very obvious for large flares. These effects are quite independent of the polarity of the Interplanetary Magnetic Field (IMF). The IMF comes into play when there is a change in the strength and density of the solar wind reaching the outer boundary of the Earth's magnetic field. These changes can be due to solar coronal mass ejections (CMEs) that are generated at the sun by explosive events often accompanying a flare. A CME, as a shock wave and accompanying sudden density enhancement takes hours to reach the Earth from the Sun.

"Other changes in the solar wind at the Earth occur as a boundary of the co-rotating spiral structure of the solar wind passes the Earth. The effects that these solar wind changes have on the Earth's magnetic field and the ionosphere are strongly dependant on the polarity of the magnetic field embedded in the solar wind plasma. If the north-south component is such that the fields couple (like attracting magnets) then the effect can be large, or small in the opposite case. The IMF does not protect the Earth against solar flares per se, but against the disturbances in the solar wind that may be solar flare produced.

"SIDs of course only occur in the sunlit hemisphere of the Earth. To cause an SID, the flare can be anywhere above the visible solar rim; however, flare or event position is very important in determining whether an event generated in the solar wind propagates to Earth. Events occurring on the eastern (left-hand side viewed from Earth) are generally better coupled for propagation to the Earth because the solar wind is dragged out into a spiral structure by the solar rotation.

"On January 20, we had both effects going on. There were several M class flares, the largest at 1755 UTC that would have produced a measurable SID; however, earlier in the day, a co-rotating stream interacted with the Earth and produced a disturbance in the geomagnetic field that would also have created an ionospheric effect via the change in the distribution of the trapped radiation in the magnetosphere. The entire process of interaction between the solar wind and the Earth's magnetosphere/ionosphere system that can produce geomagnetic storms is complex and still the subject of active research. But the broad outlines are clear.

"As hams, we probably want to have a simple picture of the solar effects on the propagation we observe. But the distinction between the prompt (SID) and the delayed solar wind carried disturbances is important and needs to be kept clear. It is the right hand (western) side of the Sun as viewed from Earth that is most strongly coupled to the Earth for events propagating through the interplanetary medium. Small events tend to follow the spiral magnetic field to the Earth. Large events can effectively force their way to the Earth from center or eastward locations on the Sun.

"The Stanford site shows how to monitor SIDs using simple VLF receiver monitors. One of the reasons that the term SWF was largely dropped in favor of SID was because -- apart from the HF absorption -- the prompt effects of the x-ray radiation from the Sun is a the change in propagation of VLF signals via the D region that can be readily monitored by the changes in amplitude and phase at a remote receiver. We used to use VLF monitors for solar flare detection at the SWPC (SESC) in the '50s and early '60s before we had the x-ray monitors on the GOES. See also here and here."

Thanks to Dick for a very enlightening message.

Steven Hammer, K6SGH, of Santa Barbara, California, has a very gripping and suspenseful account of battling the Santa Barbara Jesusita Fire in May 2009 as it raced toward his rural home and ham station perched on a canyon rim. Check it out here.

Someone named D. Moore has sent us many interesting articles over the years, and this week he posted an article on the new Solar Dynamics Observatory that you can read here. Several months ago, he sent an article on NASA's MESSENGER spacecraft that we neglected until now, and you can see it here. Yes, being in all caps, MESSENGER is an acronym, although a tortured one: It is derived from MErcury Surface, Space ENvironment, GEochemistry and Ranging probe. The name has a connection to Greek mythology, because Mercury was the messenger of the gods.

Don't miss the CQ World Wide 160 Meter CW Contest this weekend; low solar activity and weak solar wind generally mean good conditions for this event.

Take a break from the contest tonight and observe the biggest full moon of the year as it reaches perigee, the point of closest approach to Earth. It is full at 0618 UTC January 30, which is 10:18 PM PST January 29 here on the West Coast. You can check local moonrise time with the calculator here. Try to catch it low in the sky early on so you can see it through foreground objects, maximizing the moon illusion. It should be huge.

Finally, this edition of the bulletin is dedicated to Howard S. Pyle, "YB of W7OE," born 112 years ago yesterday, January 28, 1898 (he became a Silent Key on November 29, 1972). When I was a kid, he was a well-known author of Amateur Radio books and magazine articles, mostly in 73 or CQ. I met him one day on HF CW when I was 14, and he was local to me in Seattle, on Mercer Island. He only used CW, never used directional antennas and always operated barefoot. YB told many great stories about working as the radio operator at a mine in Alaska (I think the call sign there was YB), later on board ship and as an inspector for the FCC. He encouraged me to write, and sent a letter of introduction to Jim Fisk, W1DTY, at that time (1968) the editor of 73 Magazine, who later founded Ham Radio magazine. To my surprise, they published my article and the next one I sent them as well. YB had been on the air since he was 9 years old in 1907 when he first operated a spark gap transmitter. He also inducted me into the low power operator's organization, QRP Amateur Radio Club International, which is still going strong. At that time, the club had very modest goals and encouraged members to run 100 W or less! YB said that Novice class licensees were all qualified, because we were restricted to 75 W, crystal controlled CW on HF.

Amateur solar observer Tad Cook, K7RA, of Seattle, Washington, provides this weekly report on solar conditions and propagation. This report also is available via W1AW every Friday, and an abbreviated version appears each Thursday in The ARRL Letter. Check here for a detailed explanation of the numbers used in this bulletin. An archive of past propagation bulletins can be found here. You can find monthly propagation charts between four USA regions and 12 overseas locations here. Readers may contact the author via e-mail.

Of course I was talking about/I meant to say,,, I have the RIGHT to brew/home brew, my own beer, and or wine.

Looka here, when that divorced Bell South woman and her skinny twin sister and their lezzie gal friends used to live next door to me, that divorced Bell South woman had a half a quart glass jar of Moonshine over there that she had home brewed in Natchez.She offered me a taste of that Moonshine.
Man, it was GOOD!

FCC APPROVES HD POWER INCREASE FOR FM

The <http://www.allaccess.com/search?q=fcc&m=n> FCC Media Bureau has adopted rules to allow FM stations to increase their digital <http://www.allaccess.com/search?q=iboc&m=n> IBOC signals' power up to 10% of their analog power. The rule change permits the power increase on a voluntary basis, giving stations the ability to increase digital power by 6 dB. Stations already grandfathered as "super-powered" facilities in excess of current class maximums will be limited to protect against interference.

The new rules also establish application procedures for digital power increases up to 10 dB, and create remediation procedures to settle interference disputes within 90 days, and leave the issue of digital power levels open for revisitation if the new signals interfere with analog reception.

The new rules will be effective 30 days after publication in the Federal Register.

It's not a steel cage match? HA HA HA HA HA! 40 Senators represents 120 million people President Obama, not just a partisan agenda? You expect us to watch you loot the country, attempt to trample all over the US Constitution, attempt to take away our civil rights, rub our noses in your media manure bragging about how you are going to tap into our anger, and then have the gall to suggest to the Republicans that there will be "consequences" for "obstruction" when your party had all the votes it needed, Mr. College Guy?

Your dang right there's going to be consequences, in the words of Ron White, "somebody's gonna take that check book from you"? I might not know all the right words Mr. Obama, I might not know all the right people, I might not know a lot of things Mr. Obama (yet), but once you've tapped into that anger, do you expect me to draw designs for bio-diesel power plants, de-salination plants, alternative energy, or do you expect me to lead the brightest people in the nation to preserve the torch of liberty, prosperity, and the American way of life that needs no transformation?

You can't fight for the camera of America, you have to fight with the heart of America, President Obama, and you are gonna get the most spectacular, exciting, entertaining, ultimate smacketh downeth among us, in the ring of ideas, cuz we're gonna seize the moment, and when you are on your back, with stars in front of your eyes, and hands waving in front of your face, because you can't see it coming, but you know it is anyways, that sonic boom of truth, with "Mr. Cash" Axlerod at your ring side, crying in tears....

Wutch ya gonna do, when Rush Limbaugh, and all the little Conservomaniacs, go running WILD ON YOU? It's time to play the game .....

You see when they keep blaming George Bush for passing the budget, oh, I don't know, 20,000 times a day (I assume there are millions of references) why does Sean Hannity fall for the media trick George Bush spent the money? Who wrote the spending bills? Who passed the bills? Congress? Who was in charge of Congress when they were approved, what majority? Republicans voted too?

And if the public says to you, there are 3 million of us, and because of your enthusiasm, and not because of back room deals, we think you are the best candidate out of 3 million people (or any number for that matter) to be Senator, what do you do to the heart of America when you vote "present", or not at all?

George Bush, who I thank, and am thanking again for his service, which was not perfect, which was affected by people he had to trust, was not really lacking "edge a mikation", he was a fighter pilot, had an MBA, and a great dad (who had ditto mistakes, like we all do) these same people expect us to not paint how absurd it is to use their own arguments against their own agenda, when in fact they then claim the preposition they were elected to "solve problems", when in fact they admit that most of the time they exaggerate the problems they "discover" so they can claim they fixed problems that did not exist once they get there, and loot the treasury if they can?

That's not the America I want to remember? Don't get me wrong, I don't misunderstand Sean Hannity, but I say what I said to demonstrate, that even someone who has talked about the subject(s) for decades, is not immune to the media machine if they are not careful, they fall for the same methods of "projection" that pursues agendas? If Sean Hannity can be fooled, what about President Obama?

Have a blessed day, and may you never be the same after reading this, and may peace and prosperity follow us all, and our children.....

So... Though the GOP demanded camera coverage of the Obama/GOP conference, FAUX Snews could not stand that their lies and manipulations were being called out. Even the GOP senators could see that the FAUX Falshood policy is destroying america!

What does FAUX news do?... they cut the coverage!
Talk about Cut-n-Run!

What was it that that FAUX did not want it's loyal viewers to hear?

Breathing compressed, dry air, such as those used by scuba divers, should be an important treatment option for anyone that is experiencing fluid collection in the lungs? I've noticed seniors that use oxygen, but usually that is from devices that pull oxygen from the air.

Drying the air allows it to actually absorb moisture, it is surprising that this is not a standard method of treatment for those with flu or other temporary lung disease? By forcing a patient to breathe nothing but compressed, dry air, the patient should exhale enough moisture to increase the survival rate by what percentage?

This information is released to the public domain, with all rights reserved by the author, and no distribution restrictions are allowed unless further restricted by law, for either public or private development of either non-profit or for profit activities, to develop such devices as required and described by the author to treat respiratory disease by breathing dry, compressed air.

What? That Obama was called out on nearly every one of his lies? From his promise to broadcast the healthcare discussions on CSPAN to his lying about Republicans having no ideas. Dipshit Obama tried to lock them out and he got burned in Mass.. Now he's backpedaling and claiming to want to work with them. He's way out of his league.

Please provide proof from mainline media please.
There has been no lockout of the GOP, nothing in the same sense as the dems could claim they were locked out of this GOP meeting. CSPAN is not presidentialy controlled so he is unable to force them to cover anything. If he did, the wingnuts would claim he was controlling the media!

And, to claim that the GOP health care bill they presented (without numbers or legitimacy) was ignored is false. Even the public laughed at it when it was published! A total joke... just like the GOP recovery plan.

Either your repeating limpballs or FAUXs mantra AND your thoughts are in the minority.

"Progressives" are looters? What else do you call redistribution of wealth? And of course why would Bin Laden help such people, when his "God" says "thou shall not covet"?

That's why "progressives" DO NOT want religion in schools, because that forced "redistribution of wealth" goes against the laws of God? That's what the health care bill was about, redistribution of wealth, and the structure for stripping your civil rights away from you?

Don't forget to vote your "color"?

Media pundits and "silly arguments"?

Really? There is another law of God, he opens the ears of the oppressed, and there is nothing on Earth that can stop it?

Government regulations, government interference is the problem? The only way you can forgive a college education after 10 years, is to fire 90% of all college administrative positions, cap the salaries of college professors, and keeping the costs to less than $3000 a year? Well, President Obama said Americans would have to make "sacrifices", if you work for a college, what sacrifice are you going to make?

Oh, and if you work in the government, why, you wouldn't be writing any of those 40,000 pages of regulations that Ronald Reagan destroyed, which IN COMBINATION with tax cuts, lead to the economic solutions that let Bill Clinton concentrate on his game of golf?

The progressive agenda is not American, it is not something that Americans want, and it is not something that America can afford.

If you want to give free educations to hire government workers to write more regulations to choke business growth with health care and energy regulations, while foreign countries are taking all your jobs, you call that "progressive"?

That's not fundamentally changing America, that's fundamentally destroying America?

We are going to make "sacrifices"? When was the last time any of his supporters made them? Oh, that's the slight of hand, that's his accepting responsibility, that's eh, the oldest play in the book?

Tapping into people's anger is not in the Congressional Ethics Handbook, last time I checked?

Fundamentally change America, by making every seat held by a Democrat up for grabs?

Ask Scott Brown?

The FIXED, er, FOX News Network censoring news? Shocking.

U.S. Media Blocks News on Aid from Cuba to Haiti

By Dave Lindorff, in Rebelión

In the critical early days after the earthquake that struck Haiti, only two North American news agencies reported the rapid Cuban response to the crisis. One was FOX NEWS, which WRONGLY stated that the Cubans were absent from the list of neighboring Caribbean countries that had provided assistance.

The other half was The Christian Science Monitor (a respected news agency that recently closed its print edition), which reported, correctly, that Cuba sent 30 doctors to Haiti.

The Christian Science Monitor, in a second paper, citing Laurence Korb, a former deputy defense secretary and current member of the Center for American Progress, said that the U.S., who led relief efforts in Haiti should "think about utilizing the knowledge of neighboring Cuba." He also noted that they "have some of the best doctors in the world - we should try sending them to Haiti."

With regard to other media in the U.S., Cuba is simply ignored. In fact, they omitted and failed to inform that Cuba already had about 400 doctors, paramedics and other health professionals sent to Haiti to assist in day-to-day health needs of the poorest country in the Americas, and that these professionals were the first to respond to the disaster by erecting a hospital, just next to the main hospital in Port au Prince that was toppled by the earthquake, as well as a second hospital in another part of town.

Far from "doing nothing" after the disaster, as the propaganda wing Fox-TV, Cuba has been one of the countries that responded more efficiently and crucially in this crisis, because even before the earthquake they had created a medical infrastructure that was able to mobilize quickly to immediately begin treating the victims.

As might be expected, the North American emergency response has focused primarily, at least in terms of personnel and money, to send the enormously expensive and inefficient military machine - a fleet of aircraft and an aircraft carrier - a factor that should be taken into account when considering the $100 million that the Obama administration says it has designated for emergency aid to Haiti.

You expect mainstream media to be anti Obama?

It was a REPUBLICAN RETREAT. Dems also have them. Why would you expect that the opposing party would be invited?

C-SPAN IS government funded. It is also pretty non partisan since it does not have political commentators like PBS does.

If he did, C-SPAN would be controlled media.

Must be with Fox considered the most straight up media and its programming clobbering MSNBC, CNBC and CNN combined in the early evening hours.

Why is it good if a vacuum cleaner really sucks?
Why is the third hand on a clock called the "second hand"?
Why did Kamikaze pilots wear helmets?
Why do we sing "Take me out to the ballgame" when we are already there?

Or it could be that Faux is free on most cable system while the rest are on payed tiers? How about how ComCast blocks out 10 minutes of CNN every hour? Or, how those ratings are generated by the cable systems themselfs and not by arbitron?

If all your going to do is repeat the FAUX and limpballs mantra instead of thinking for yourself and providing real input, go back into your cave and have some bacon.

btw, funny about PBC being viewed as leftist when infact it gets most all it's money from very very large corporations and is run by NYC republiCAN'Ts. Also, C-SPAN is not government funded. The only people to claim that is the right-wingnut media and you fell for it.

Just goes to prove how far of a right you limpball lemmings are.

If you don't like utilities, roads and healthcare/retirement provided by these programs, please step up to the plate and stop using them.

The republican't scheme has been to have government out-sources these services to corporations (owned by campaign contributors) who will not only need to keep them running, but also will need to make a profit. You will then have to send your money to these corporate overlords or go without. If a particular program make no profit, the programs will go away and we will not have them.

I feel that if capitalism is to succeed with the voting public, some laws and actions need to be installed to protect the human public. If you call it Communism and use it as a weapon, you must feel OK with serving corporate overlords much like in the middle ages? This would be no different then being communistic. At least... for me.

heh public opinion shows that Congress (and in this case, the GOP) were made to look pretty silly. Most of them did not even seem to know what was in THEIR health proposal... as unrealistic and unimplementable as it was.

Massachusetts was the only turnover that is of concern while the rest have always been "red" states. Massachusetts has their own health care plan so there is great resentment for a federal solution that would possible cost THEIR state more money. Plus, the dem candidate did not run a aggressive campaign up until the last minute. But of course, you already knew this.

Shows what you know, you didn't even watch the broadcast. I wonder why. Oh, yeah, because FOX cut out the truth part of it when it starting to pop up. The health care discussions were held on CSPAN when umpteen committees were holding them throughout the year, as Obama had to explain to the Republidiots in the audience and said so straight to their faces that they very well knew they were held on CSPAN, and you know what, they did know. Problem is, you didn't even watch it on CSPAN because it's too cerebral for your miniscule brain to grasp, never mind not knowing that they were on because FOX cut its broadcast in order to keep you stupid.

What CSPAN hasn't show were the closed door meetings that followed all the hearings throughout the year, which is what everybody was clamoring about. But you know, those are closed door sessions just like with a lot of business that the government does and it's not up to the president to decide if they'll be held on CSPAN or not.

You're such a raving lunatic of a Republidiot, blindly towing the official lines of right-wing basket cases like a good Nazi soldier pledging allegiance to Heil Hitler.

And P.S.: The Republidiots don't have any ideas at all, they've been proving that all along and Obama practically begged them at the conference to come up with some.

Handy Shortwave Chart
Bill McFadden
billmc@agora.rdrop.com

Band allocations and time zone conversions for the USA. Includes broadcast bands used outside the USA. For multi-use bands, primary usage is shown.
Some stations operate outside official bands. Information is from Oct 2008
FCC rules and Sep 2009 NTIA manual, see Chapter 4 of:
http://www.ntia.doc.gov/osmhome/redbook/redbook.html

Frequencies are in kHz. Usual spacing in shortwave broadcast bands is 5 kHz. Frequencies above 10000 kHz tend to propagate better during the day;
frequencies below 10000 kHz tend to propagate better at night.

Please e-mail suggestions and corrections to billmc@agora.rdrop.com.

Phone line as SW antenna

Changes preceded by "|".

Connecting unapproved devices to phone lines may be illegal in your area. Telephone lines present a potential shock hazard. Do not use this antenna for transmitting. Use at your own risk.

INTRODUCTION

This article describes how to use a phone line as a shortwave receiving antenna. Performance will vary depending on the kind of phone line you have. Overhead lines usually make okay antennas, while underground lines
| usually don't. Phone lines carrying DSL service may be unsuitable because | DSL operates over a wide spectrum. A phone line antenna will generally pick up more power line noise than a dedicated antenna, so don't expect to | use it for DX work. Nevertheless, I found that it outperformed the
| telescopic whip antennas built into many portables.

A reader sent in this suggestion: If you're concerned about connecting the phone line directly to the receiver, try wrapping the phone cord several times around the receiver's telescopic whip antenna instead. Performance may not be as good as a direct connection, but it will probably be better than the whip antenna by itself.

Someone else wrote asking about lightning protection. I haven't thought much about it because thunderstorms are rare in my area. Most phone lines have lightning arrestors on them where they enter the house, but the lightning arrestors may pass enough energy during a lightning strike damage a receiver. My suggestion is to disconnect the antenna when not in use if you experience frequent thunderstorms.

HOW TO DO IT

The simplest connection is a single capacitor between the phone line and receiver. The capacitor eliminates all phone line voltages, including | ringing, so that they will not harm the receiver. The capacitor should
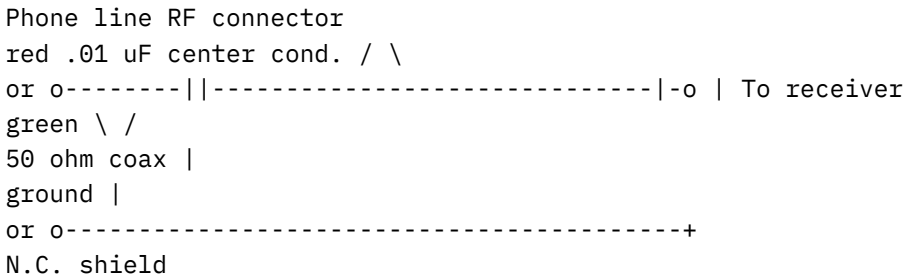
| be rated 250 volts or higher.



N.C. = no connect. I originally connected the phone line ground (yellow wire) to this terminal, but reception was better without it (if you do this, play it safe and put a .01 uF capacitor in series). If another ground is available, you can connect it to this terminal.

If you are picking up local AM or FM radio stations on the shortwave bands, it is likely that your receiver is overloaded. Inexpensive and portable receivers usually lack the filtering needed to eliminate this interference, but you can make your own filters. Filters can also be | purchased from shortwave dealers (see below for recommendations).

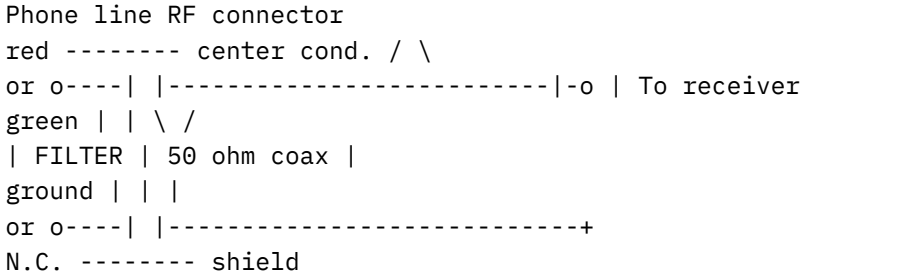
A high-pass filter can be used to remove signals below the shortwave bands. It rejects interference from local AM stations and presents a high impedance to the phone line at audio frequencies so that the phone line remains balanced.

A low-pass filter can be used to remove signals above the shortwave bands. It rejects interference from FM and TV stations, as well as VHF 2-way radio transmitters. If you use both filters, connect the output of the first filter to the input of the second (don't forget to connect their ground terminals together). It doesn't matter which filter is connected first.

These filters also work well with random wire antennas. Just connect the antenna in place of the phone line.

The filter(s) should be connected to the phone line in this manner:



| RECOMMENDED FILTERS
| If you don't want to make your own filters, the following have good
| performance, are well-built and affordable:
|
| Model 400 BCB interference filter (3.5 MHz highpass)
| http://www.iceradioproducts.com/filtersrf.html#bcb
|

| Model 420 HF lowpass filter (30 MHz lowpass)
| http://www.iceradioproducts.com/filtersrf.html#3
| (scroll down a bit to see the model 420)
| If you have a random-wire antenna, the following unit will provide | impedance matching and lightning protection (connect antenna to 450-ohm | terminal):
|
| Model 182A beverage matching unit

The original credit for the high-pass and low-pass filters goes to Paul Blumstein and John Shalamskas, respectively. Edited versions of their articles are included here:

Date: 09 Jan 91 00:54:08 GMT
From: paulb@harley.TTI.COM (Paul Blumstein)
Subject: BC Band Hi-Pass Filter

The following ascii-schematic diagram is a high pass filter that will filter out Broadcast Band (MW) stations. I found it a great boon to my shortwave listening since local MW stations overload my ATS-803A front end & appear in SW, especially with a long antenna.

If you remember my antenna saga, I went from 50 feet to 150 feet & had overload problems causing me to cut back to 50 feet. (Even at 50 feet, I still have some MW interference). I took the advice of Gary Coffman and looked up filters in the ARRL Handbook. With the filter in place, I intend to try to increase my antenna length again.

Anywho, here is the filter, for interested parties.

--------||---+----||-----+----||-----------
} }
{ {
} }
-------------+-----------+-----------------
```

The outer capacitors are 1500 pf ceramic disks.
The inner capacitor is 820 pf ceramic disk.
The squiggly things are coils (two total). Each one is 2.7 uh.
(a close value will do).

Subject: Re: BC Band Hi-Pass Filter

I built the filter that Paul Blumstein posted recently and measured it on a gain-phase analyzer. Here are its characteristics:

100 kHz -120dB
500 kHz -68dB

1000 kHz -38dB
1600 kHz -15dB
2100 kHz -3dB

The source and load impedances were 50 ohms. Because the filter has five elements, the attenuation is 30dB per octave. The measurements confirmed this.

This filter seems to be a good compromise between interference attenuation and passband response. There is very little attenuation in the 120m band and above. It could use a little more attenuation at the upper end of MW, which could be done with more stages or a higher cutoff frequency. Alternatively, you could build two of these filters and put them in series. (Since two 1500pF capacitors in series are really 750pF, you could eliminate one cap.)

Just for fun, I put 470 ohms in series with the input to see how the filter performed with an antenna mismatch. The response was:

100 kHz -105dB
500 kHz -60dB
1000 kHz -35dB
1600 kHz -15dB
2300 kHz -3dB

These figures are normalized to the passband response of -15dB, which is due to the impedance mismatch between the source and load and would have been there without the filter. Hence, the filter works almost as well in spite of the mismatch, which is good news to those who use long-wire antennas.

From: johns@uhunix.uhcc.Hawaii.Edu (John Shalamskas)
Subject: Construction of filters for SW reception

Several people have asked for construction details of the filters I built for my DX-440.

The high-pass filter helped some, but in my location the VHF/UHF broadcasters are also causing problems. So, I dug out the ARRL handbook and chose a 7-element Chebyshev low-pass design that is -3 dB at 35 MHz, -20 dB at 43 MHz, and -50 dB at 64 MHz (all calculated; it works well in practice!)

chassis ground

I had to do a little more improvising at this point. I used .33 uH instead of .36, and .66 uH instead of .42, but it works fine.

The 5-lug terminal strips were perfect for these circuits, since there are 4 lugs plus a grounded lug. All "ground" connections go to the lug that is mounted to the chassis, and the other 4 lugs are used for each of the connections on the signal line. One terminal strip is used per filter. Since both filters were necessary to clean up the hash, I am going to put them both into one box when I get the time.

The proper way to connect them is in series, i.e.

There is no difference between ends. They are "bilateral" which means you can't possibly hook them up backwards. (In the above schematics, left and right ends are interchangeable.)

COIL WINDING

You can make the coils yourself using this formula:

L = 0.2 * B^2 * N^2 / (3B + 9A + 10C)

L is the inductance, in uH
A is the length of the coil, in inches
B is the mean diameter of the coil, in inches
C is the diameter of the wire, in inches
N is the number of turns

For small wire, you can assume C = 0.

Parts for the filters can be obtained from the following source:

My Radio of listening choice right now is my old Sony FD-500 B&W TV-FM/AM Receiver.It has a big top firing speaker, big full rich sound.Especially with it sitting in my wooden cubby holes cabinet on top of the end table/cabinet by my end of doggy's couch.

Put your speaker inside of a wood box/cabinet.It will sound better.

Copying CB channel 6 from southeastern US (So. C., Alabama, etc.) in MN at 1430 UTC 20/9. Nothing unusual reported on the propagation sites; what are possible explanations at this time of year? (MUF about 11 MHz, Solar Flux 24, don't know Pl_index_A).

Hey Richard..............
You're one of those dick type hammies, I can tell.
But listen up you shit stain. And listen good.
My elmer is KB9RQZ. I even got my tech manuel at http://sales.kb9rqz.com

I had to study for three fucking days to pass my test.

I AM THE FUTURE OF HAM RADIO !!!

I didn't need any stinking morse code, either !

Where in the rules does it say I can't run my turbo echo on 10 meters?
You can't quote it 'cause it ain't there.

Now be a good hammy and go fuck yourself, little Ricky.

Kb9rqz was also my elmer until someone emailed me this description of him.

http://ve7kfm.com/kb9rqz.html

I didn't realizewhat a lid he actually is. The CCRAA also fired him as their president after they found out what a sexual deviant/pervert he is. You may want to find a new elmer....

PBS is largely funded by corporate underwriting. Local stations are funded almost entirely by corporate underwriting and individual donations.

Fox news started out good, but later on Fox news kowtowed to the Communist just like all of the 24/7 so-called ''news'' tv channels do.

A waste of time to be honest. A simple 20 foot 14-gauge speaker wire along the ground outside will outperform this anytime. If anything, this phone antenna will amplify ANY noise along it's route and send it to your receiver.

The key to increasing reception is the placement of your radio and antenna. Just moving your radio 5 feet from the computer alone can do wonders that no antenna can do.

Haven't looked at them have you. ;)

Here, go look:

http://www.mediabistro.com/tvnewser/ratings/

You will see that the ratings are from Neilson not the cable companies.

I didn't get that information from Faux. See link above to ratings posted by Neilson.

You think Bill Moyers (their leading political commentator) is a rightard?

I'll grant you that one. ;)

Corporate Information
C-SPAN is a private, non-profit company, created in 1979 by the cable television industry as a public service. Our mission is to provide public access to the political process. C-SPAN receives no government funding; operations are funded by fees paid by cable and satellite affiliates who carry C-SPAN programming.

Why is it good if a vacuum cleaner really sucks?
Why is the third hand on a clock called the "second hand"?
Why did Kamikaze pilots wear helmets?
Why do we sing "Take me out to the ballgame" when we are already

Times change. Cronkite would have never said "A thrill ran up my leg.."

Of course, some network had to express the other side and none of the "mainstream" media was doing it.

One Senator - represents 3 million people (1 of 300,000,000?)?
1 Trillion Dollars = 1,000 billion dollars?
One Senator (vote) divided by 1 Trillion Dollars equals 10 Billion Dollars?
4 Trillion dollars = 4,000 billion dollars?
One Senator (vote) = 40 billion dollars divided by a budget in one year of $4 trillion dollars?

One Senator will spend 40,000 million dollars while they only represent 3 million people?

In one year.

That's your tax bill?

If President Obama thinks he can pass this kind of budget, he has lowered his potential, he is the one guy on Earth, that could probably talk Mexico out of their land and and pretend to flip it for a profit, he should resign and take up real estate?

Think about it, One Senator's vote will spend 40,000 million dollars when he only represents 3 million people? Have you people lost your minds?

Well, one third of that million does not even pay federal taxes? So it's really only one million, because one of those million just gives their money to the people that don't pay anything? So one million people are expected to pay 40,000 million dollars worth of taxes?

Huh?

I guess my 12 trillion was yesterdays number <grin>

I find it easier to remember 11, 33, 33,000.....and since my mental math skills stop at three times...whenever I hear million/trillion I just multiply the number by 33 which gives me a good estimate of how many seconds....(I hope this makes sense <grin>)

Typical of the republican't fools you are.... dwell on the minutia and not the subject. I've fallen for a FAUX and GOP ploy to distract from the true subject and wasting time responding to fools who loose the message over a small misspelling.

Noise may come from power lines as well. When ultra low noise operation is desired I always rely on an external pure DC power source from a big battery. Antenna is extremely important as well, but the amount of interference from almost anything electrically powered in a regular household today cannot be overlooked any longer. Cellular phones included.

The Sony DVD+-RW AW-Q160S player on my Dell Inspiron desktop computer works great but only plays Side A of dvd's, it obviously isn't reading Side B of any disc I insert. For example, episodes 1-4 of Northern Exposure on side A are viewed perfectly while episodes 5-8 on side B can't be played even though they are listed on the menu (both sides are on the same disc). Operating system is Vista home edition (yeah I know Vista sucks).

Can anyone provide information on how this can be fixed or direct me to a google group that can?

Thank you in advance for any assistance you can provide.

Interesting how you state that Faux (sic) news pushed a slant toward Reagan during Iran/Contra, since Fox News did not exist in November, 1986, during which the Iran/Contra affair came to light. In fact, it didn't exist for a decade after that, having come online in October, 1996.

I'm no fan of Rupert Murdoch, but facts are facts.

Quoting you guys....
"political commentators like PBS does."

The subject line says FAUX and where did CSPAM come in to this?

But then who cares what you think the subject should be, the question is why other things are somehow not allowed to be mentioned... is this a court of law where you "the judge" restrict what can and can't be used in question or answer in these posts?

<<<<<<<<<<<<<<<<<<<< NO >>>>>>>>>>>>>>>>>>>>>>>>

PBS is government supported Liberal-Leftist swill . Just like NPR is.... it's rediculous that my money is stolen to support ideological propaganda when we have free speech and the very same PBS people and Corporations could use their own money to say these things, all they want. The court just said they have the right and that would mean they also have no right to interfere with my right.

The government is violating my first amendment in both freedom of the press, where government is interfering by supporting one press over all others, "interfere" would be helping particular "news organizations" as well as suppressing free press. Free speech where government is taking "my" money to say things that I don't want my money used to say, is NOT free speech for me.

If government forcibly takes my money and uses it to say something, then they have forcibly made me say something I didn't want to say and it's as bad as forcing me to pray to a God that I don't want to Pray too, or confessing to crimes because government is torturing me, GOVERNMENT supposedly can't force you to say anything, yet that is exactly what they are doing. Since spending money for political speech is free speech, you spending my money on political speech is also speech and PBS is a corporation using free speech, if so the government suppressed my free speech by taking my money and using it for others free speech. In essence the government has taxed away and REDISTRIBUTED my money and therefore redistributed my free speech to a Corporation.

That was my first response, flipped the dvd and got nothing but grinding sounds. Did the same with disc 2 with same result. Being inexperienced with dvd's I then assumed all the data was contained on one side of the disc since the back had no label reading Side B (label on front reads Side A and Side B).

However after reading your post I tried the flip sides of other dvds and they worked fine. So the problem is two corrupted dvds not the player, which is good news. I will now be able to enjoy all of season three of NORTHERN EXPOSURE and only half of season one of KOJAK - which is even better news! :)

Thank you for taking to time to respond to my post Mike, your practical advice proved to be most helpful. Without it I likely would have dismissed the problem and never bothered with half the dvds again.

Best regards.

What does those 24/7 so-called ''news'' tv shows say about the American economy? I know what ''they'' say, and I Don't click on those MOFOs!

Ford's sales (GO, Ford Motor Company, GO!,,, ROCK ONNNNN,,,,) went up twenty five percent last month.But, that doesn't pertain much (if anything at all) to the overall American economy.

It being....
If Reagan is mentioned anytime on FAUX Snews, it's as a hero and not as a criminal for his actions in the Iran/Contra scandal. FAUX would have gone off their rocker if a Democrat did something like this.

Another example... How would FAUX have covered it if a Democratic congress would have spent spend ($78m) to investigate a Bu$h president who got caught getting a blowjob?

Despite the new money infusion and efforts to thwart terrorism, Ru$h, FAUX and the GOP seem poised to pounce HARD if there were to ever be another terrorist attack in America while Obama is in office. Without ANY foundation what-so-ever, (beside the issues they make up) this group hacks at the Obama administration daily about WHEN (not if) the next attack happens!

There is no support from them... Ever!

It sure makes me wonder as this group would have so much to gain, that perhaps they would even conspire to passively, perhaps covertly support terrorism to make Obama fail.

And, if it were to happen, (heaven forbid) would they back Obama like the Democrats backed Bu$h or would they be the first to plant the knifes in the heart of America to regain control of whats left in the next election?

Too bad for america this is even an issue. Pity to how low Ru$h, FAUX and the GOP have dragged us down.

Well..Jon Stewart showed several clips of the 'newreaders' and they were most certainly biased with their comments after a straight news story.
And they have FOUR hours of so called news each day and 20 hours of

It was called MASSACHUSETTS - not many days ago, the day a Republican won a statewide Senate election and Obama couldn't even get a Democrat elected in a statewide race in that ultraliberal state.
Call that Obama's 9/11 - or, more aptly, Obama's Stalingrad.

Usually there is tiny, tiny printing around the hole in the centre. It's really hard to read. They have to mark them somehow, seeing that there can be no label printing on the one face.

I'm assuming that the label on the front you are referring to is on the case or cover of the disk....

I guess "strips" would be a better word to use than label. All the discs have two seperate 1/8" completely circular strips containing the title, side, running time, region, studio and copyright info. Side A strip is 1/2" from center hole, side B strip is 1/8" from center hole. The obverse side of the disc has no strips or information but does have numbers impressed directly upon the disc. I suspect the corrupted 3 disc boxed set (Kojak: Season One) purchased on eBay might be a pirated copy from Asia.

Yep It was Obama that spent $1T to kill 1M people to get all the oil in Iraq. Just like your drug-addled dropout leader of the do-nothing-party-of-NO Limpballs said. Obama gave all them trillions of tax breaks to the rich republican't too I bet. If you look really really hard at the sun, you can see Obama's Kenyan birth certificate too!

Of course, it would be very easy to believe Bu$h did absolutely nothing wroth mentioning. His as innocent as he is stupid.

Yep your right. The last 8 years are the Demecrat's fault as the do-nothing-party-of-NO didn't do absolutely anything ... ever.

Almost forgot the mandatory christain based insult...

What I find funny is how the mostly Bu$h appointed right leaning supreme court overturned McCan'ts campaign reform (and some more!) but refuse to revisit Roe-v-Wade.

It's like the christains were totally fooled into thinking that voting republican't would save lives when in fact voting republican't ended up killing even more people while lining the politician's pockets with corporate money.

Between the two Bu$h wars, they've killed almost a million people!

But yet, on the street corner, the republican't promoting anti-abortionist will still sling dead baby pictures in your face while screaming at people who did not vote for the Hypocritical-do-nothing-party-of-NO!

What a party of fools

It took me a while to discover what "liberal disease" meant, and I'll stick with that term for a while. I think the most accurate term we can give these people is the "Projection Party"?

They have these experimental ideas that are not proven to work, and they will say or do anything to try to get them done, because they rig the process to reward them for trying, and they will use every trick in the media and language book to get that done, and the most appropriate term to use is the "Projection Party"?

Which has no bearing on whether or not CNN supports a specific ideology.

Why is it good if a vacuum cleaner really sucks?
Why is the third hand on a clock called the "second hand"?
Why did Kamikaze pilots wear helmets?
Why do we sing "Take me out to the ballgame" when we are already there?

You are correct in that Fox was started to give a counter view to what was being given by the other outlets. However, that has nothing to do with their newscasters just their political commentators. No question that they are conservative.

It wasn't confusion, you simply made shit up.

Three points:

1. Fox is a conservative viewpoint station through its political commentators.

2. Fox is also a fair and balanced news station through its newscasters.

3. Fox was started as a counterpoint to the liberal viewpoints expressed by other stations.

Depends on which section of Fox you are asking about.

Chemlawn? I am more concerned about those damn Chemtrails.

I am fixin to get back to workin on that old pecan tree stump in doggy's front yard.Maybe I can Chem that stump out of there.Actually, I could.There are chemicals available for quickly (sort of) rotting tree stumps.

That dude who lives catty corner across the street from me,,, last year I loaned him my Remington electric chainsaw.He said he is an old country boy from Edwards (Edwards,Mississippi, about 13 miles West of doggy's couch) and he knows all about chainsaws.

HA!, I had to show him no less than eight times how to turn my chainsaw on, and at least five times I showed him how to properly adjust the blade tension.He brought my chainsaw back to me, the blade was all tangled up and a little screw which holds a metal plate to keep the blade from slipping off of the clutch was broken.He BROKE my chain saw!

Last year, he bought a second hand/used lawn mower at a pawn shop.He couldn't find the oil drain plug on the bottom of the Briggs & Stratton engine on that lawn mower.Every Briggs & Stratton engine I have ever seen before has an oil drain plug.He pushed his lawn mower over here and he rattled my front door.He said,,, Show me where that oil drain plug is!
I showed him where it is.

He is one of those dyed in the wool democraps, spread the wealth B HO Butt Kissers!

I'm running a 6v 300ma adapter to run my Sangean ATS800 radio. I was wondering if applying a couple of ferrite chocks like this to the DC power cord would eliminate any humming noise created by the adapter.

http://www.piurl.com/p/22mW

The humm is not very loud, but it's noticeable. I know batteries are the best solution, but in this case it's more convenient to use the adapter.

Presumably you are referring to hum coming from the radio, and not directly from the power adapter. However, either way, these chokes won't make a scrap of difference.

So you are saying the RFI humm created by the wall wart is not being directly transmitted by the power cord? I have a bit of excess power cable bound up behind the radio and I notice if I move it around it creates a variable humm. The fact that it is bound up there makes no difference, the adapter interference was always apparent.

I guess not! According to FAUX, Obama was sneaking into the plant and putting super glue under all the gas pedals. I would NEVER had believed this could happen without faux telling me! Thank God for FAUX Snews!

Even Ru$h Limpballs was telling me how Obama caused a guy back in 1991 to rape dead bodies! O, If I would have know this before, I would not have voted for Obama. The fat guy sure are smart! He is SOOO worth the $400M he is being payed!

I doubt it. The ferrite cores act as the core of a choke. If the AC adapter used a switching supply, perhaps, but most wall warts are very simple linear supplies (keeps the cost down0, so the hum is at 60Hz.
You are going to need a lot more inductance than a couple of ferrite cores to keep it out.

That depends on whether the hum is simple ripple, or if it's an artifact of rf mix products from local sources coming in on the DC line from the adaptor. That's actually fairly common if there's a local radio source. This type of hum may be distinguished from simple ripple by the fact that it shows up at odd places across the dial, and changes as the DC cord is moved. It shows up on stronger stations than weaker, and generally isn't present during interstation noise.

Usually, cores at the wall wart and cores at the DC connector will, for all intents and purposes, eliminate this type of hum. In sever cases, other types of filtration and a grounded wall wart will be necessary.

Some points to ponder:
Why is it good if a vacuum cleaner really sucks?
Why is the third hand on a clock called the "second hand"?
Why did Kamikaze pilots wear helmets?
Why do we sing "Take me out to the ballgame" when we are already there?

Amazing how lazy these websites are for shortwave radio in keeping them updated. VOA, WWRB, WWCR, WBCQ etc always seem to be out of date with their schedules and programming.

If President Obama resigns? The stock market would sky rocket? HA HA HA HA HA HA!

Cut capital gains taxes to zero, and pass the "balanced budget amendment" by the Republicans with the following provision:

AMENDMENT TO THE UNITED STATES CONSTITUTION:

Congress must pass a balanced budget with no debts.

While the United States is in debt, Congress may make no additional laws unless all debts are paid off completely not related to military spending.

Now, that is talent, on loan, from God?

You can NOT have a "jobs" bill when Congress in the United States wants to enact these mandatory health care plans, and cap and tax plans that will cripple business(s). It's not hard to understand folks. If you pay someone $15 an hour, you business model (if you want to stay in business) says you have to act as though you are paying $45 an hour (to cover for unexpected expenses, such as overtime, sick time, etc.) Multiply that how many people you have. You run a donut shop, and employee three people.

Now, here come these jokers in Congress and say, by the way, we want you to start paying $200 a week for each employee, $100 a week for health insurance, and $100 a week because your electrical equipment, that costs $100 a month for each employee to run (and I'm sure it costs much more than that) will now cost $500 a month?

Suddenly, a business owner has to come up with $2000 a month (and this is a small business) and still pay his rent, his taxes, his utilities, advertising and other over head expenses? All because you have "edge a micated" people in Congress, who come from Ivy league schools, who by the way, in all their highly researched classes about history, have not named one country that has ever enacted a policy where retirements have worked, want to tell you how to run business?

The same theories that apply to employee pay apply to retirements (which by the way are also not sustainable, as our East German friends have pointed out when populations contract) because your Science Czar subscribes to the theory that population "bombs" DO NOT solve problems, but create them, when in fact, your entire retirement system depends on expanding your tax base by what, three times the retirement rate?

Population growth is NECESSARY, and you WANT population growth in order to process the vast amount wealth in the solar system, and the galaxy (which includes Earth)?

You can't expand the tax base without expanding the population base? This is the kind of nonsense that REAL scientists have to put up with, and we have to eliminate this junk from government, and we can't elect smooth talkers to political office any more if you want any kind of REAL scientific process, or any REAL dreams of prosperity?

As long as Chief Oui Weed, (lets give a shout out!) wants to act like this stuff is not going to make a difference, we will continue to apply the peer pressure of humor to keep Chief Oui Weed, and his followers questioning those beliefs?

And DATS THE WAY IT IS.....?

From our foreign exchange journalist student program, ask your college professor the following questions:

Name one country that has survived over 100 years with policies that have given out "retirement" benefits on a mass scale with out bankrupting the country?

There is no answer, because retirements are a "PROGRESSIVE" policy, a communist way of doing things, cleverly disguised as a benign word in the English language?

Keep putting that day off folks, keep putting that day of denial in the rear view mirror?

If you can afford retirements at all, I doubt you could afford much more than a minum wage and not more than double that rate, since your minimum wage (you do have one, right?) is really part of your national currency (an intellectual property, an instrument to exchange goods and servcies) and when people attempt to model retirements that are not controllable (company profits depend on consumers, not math models) with excessive compensation packages are you begging for a bankruptcy years down the road?

Otherwise you have to base retirement benefits on investments remaining secure and growing for decades? Are retirements really a man made invention, an experiment, or should they be limited to just ensuring that seniors do not live like dogs under bridges with shopping carts? Should foreign countries that do not provide retirement benefits pay tarrifs in order ensure citizens in your country do not live like dogs under bridges when they get older? Is the argument too simple, should we expect everyone to invest for their own retirement, and those that fall through the cracks, then only pay a minimum wage type retirement?

Or do you just tell them to go live with their kids, and if they are raising kids now, don't raise them to be crack heads, give them values, make them sit in church every Sunday?

The issue of small arms is not a global or a national issue that deserves "treaty" recognition. Firearms are the principal means of defending your self against both corrupt citizens, and corrupt governments, and any politician. It is also a principal source of income for the Russians and countries surrounding Russia with both arms and ammunition sales?

So if Afghans are arming thousands, and crossing borders in wars, you go to the Russians and say, hey, stop selling arms to these guys? That's all you need, you don't need "treaties"?

Shipping IED, high explosives, grenade launchers, and missiles, should be the focus of government treaties, not individual citizens who protect them selves from narco-terror gangs? As long as we have crime and drugs, bears, and alligators, we will always need small arms for protection.

With Chief Oui Weed, tapping into that anger in America, Hillary is finding herself very quickly appearing in the rear view mirror?

"WWCR" and "rationale" in the same sentence is an oxymoron.

Does anyone know of a shortwave station that broadcasts rugby matches? Ireland, England, Wales, Scotland, France and Italy are currently involved in the Rugby Union Six Nation competition. A spectacle that is taken quite seriously by the countries involved.

If you have never heard a live radio broadcast of a European rugby match make it a point to do so before you die. Even if you know nothing about the game you'll be a fan by the end of the braodcast. The broadcasters are fantastic and the literally non-stop roaring of the crowd in the background makes the atmosphere is positively electric.

Funny, I don't see pages and pages of mac viruses. Do you?

It's false info because the NSA has hacked windows and not a MAC. If the NSA wants to control the populous, it needs to get people to stop using macs. I would not be surprised if this rumor came from FAUX or Ru$h

They are CAPITALISTS. They sell commercials. They give people what the people want; the people watch; commercials are played to said people.
Why do you infer that they are, of all things, communist?

Exactly what the GOP wants... pull the funding from schools so people like you can't spell and are easily confused and fooled

That's been true for a long time. Even in the Windows world, security is more social than viral.

But considering there are only two viruses for OSX in the wild, and they have to be installed and operated manually for even minimum functionality, the security issue isn't quite as grand as it may seem.

At least for now.

But when there's a live one released into the wild, there are going to be a LOT of very surprised Mac users who get nicked, and have no way to recover from the damage.

Morning Steve. I guess we made it OK here. record snow falls.
i know you guys get more where your at, but, people get crazy around here when it snows. it was too deep and too wet to use my tractor, so, i had to use to use my back. prob hurt for a week. have a good one up there.
